Council adopts minor role in Noble appeal

Ken Sapwell

Tweed Shire Council will stay on the sidelines when the owner of a Kingscliff manufactured home park launches legal proceedings in a bid to squeeze an extra 45 homes onto the estate.

Noble Lakeside Park owner Keith Noble will appeal refusal of his $10.4 million project by the government's new Joint Region Planning Panel (JRPP) which was set up to approve developments worth more than $10 million.

Residents cheered the JRPP's recent surprise decision to knock back the controversial canal-style development after it had earlier been given the green light by council's own planners.

Council's chief planner Vince Connell said in a report to this week's council meeting that the NSW Department of Planning would pick up the tab for the appeal, believed to be the first in NSW.

'Limited capacity' only

He said the council could either become directly involved in defending the appeal, refuse to take part in the proceedings or assist only with preparing conditions for any future consent if the Land and Environment Court upholds the appeal.

The council adopted a recommendation which involved the council in a 'limited capacity' only and to seek reimbursement from the department for any legal costs.

The five-man JRPP received a standing ovation from a packed public gallery in August when it unanimously rejected an application by Baclon Pty Ltd to build homes which would partly sit over a lake, supported by stilts.

It agreed with residents that it was an over-development of the site, with chairman Garry West saying this was clearly demonstrated by the fact that the houses had to be built out over the water.

Rejected for multiple impacts

It rejected the application mainly because of the impacts on their amenity, flood and drainage concerns and damage to endangered ecological communities in the area where the extra 45 houses were to go.

Council planners had also acknowledged similar concerns but had recommended that the project be approved on a deferred commencement basis requiring Baclon to satisfy 96 conditions.

Mr Connell told this week's council meeting that the proponents had not yet given their grounds for an appeal but more would probably be known following a telephone hook-up next week.

Cr Warren Polglase, who is employed by Mr Noble as a caretaker of the estate, absented himself from the debate.

A crowd of more than 200 surfing enthusiasts and former champions dropped in to Gold Coast Surf World at Currumbin last Thursday night for the launch of an exhibition featuring legendary Aussie surfer Bobby Brown.

Host Andrew McKinnon told the assembled guests at the surfing and beach culture museum that he had been 'totally inspired' by Bobby Brown when growing up on the Gold Coast as a 'gremmie' and dreamt about being as good a surfer.

Andy, who plans to write a book on the legend, said he went on to win the last of only three Bobby Brown memorial events in 1970, crediting well known Gold Coast surfer/shaper Tony Dempsey who drove him down from the Gold Coast to Wanda Beach in his mother's car 40 years ago to compete in the event.

'I became the custodian of the perpetual trophy as a result,' he told The Echo.

Bobby Brown died, aged 20, in 1967 as a result of a 'glassing' over a game of pool in a Sydney pub. He and his fiancée Lorraine were planning to marry at the end of the year and go to Hawaii for their honeymoon. Lorraine provided photos and memorabilia of the legend to the museum.

'Like Andy Irons, Bobby Brown of Cronulla was ahead of his time but was sadly struck down in his prime. During the sixties he was rated among the best surfers in the world, such as Australia's first surfing champions Midget Farrelly and Nat Young,' Andy said.

Bobby Brown's older brother John reminisced about his younger sibling and how the key to his success was the 'freedom' he experienced from his surfing.

Cronulla surfing pioneer and artist Gary Birdsall flew up especially from Wollongong with a new painting of his close mate who he said could easily have been a world champion.

Among other well known surf legends attending were Cheyne Horan and Richard Harvey.

The exhibition is open till the end of January and then hits the road in March for other surf festivals and events.

Council Roundup with Ken Sapwell

Rebates a burden says mayor

Rate rebates given to the shire's growing pensioner population are imposing a serious financial burden on other ratepayers, says Tweed mayor Kevin Skinner.

In apparent off-the-cuff comments sure to raise the ire of retirees, he told this week's council meeting he was worried about the impact that the traditional half-price rebate had on the council's bottom line.

'I'm concerned about the incredible amount of money that is lost to pensioner rebates,' he said in reference to the council's annual report revealing the scheme had cost $2.7 million during the year.

'It badly impacts on our shire... we are being badly impacted by people moving here to retire,' he said, adding that council had to pay $1.35 million towards the rates subsidy enjoyed by pensioners with the government paying the other half.

He said other ratepayers paid an extra five or six per cent in their rates to subsidise the shire's pensioner population.

His comments were met by a wall of silence from colleagues apparently aware of the potential for a grey backlash. No action was taken.

Mayor offers open door – to developers

The newly elected mayor courted more controversy when he championed changes to the way councillors arrange closed-door briefings with developers.

He won support to change meeting rules so 'that requests from various parties to have an audience with councillors' no longer have to be decided at council meetings.

Instead councillors will text or email each other about any requests for private briefings and their willingness or not to attend, with general manager Mike Rayner appointed to decide whether the request has majority support.

Cr Skinner said the move was designed to speed up the process but it came under fire from Cr Katie Milne who said the subjects discussed would not be published until well after the event and did nothing to promote transparency of council's processes.

Tavern hours extended

Tweed Council has given the Terranora Tavern the go-ahead for extended trading hours following a six-month trial.

The village pub, which opened last Christmas, has been given approval to stay open between 10am and 12 midnight seven days a week after getting initial approval for 11pm three nights a week and 10pm for the remainder.

Residents have objected to drunken behaviour of patrons and loud music but police and council staff say there've been few official complaints.

Cr Katie Milne tried to extend the trial period for a further six months but staff said a permanent consent allowed them to impose more controls on the pub's operations.

Aged-care home set to grow

The council also approved a request from a proposed 200-unit aged care and retirement complex at Kingscliff to add an extra 25 units to increase their yield and in order to pay for the upgrade of a stormwater system to cope with their effluent.

Cr Joan van Lieshout said opposition to such projects could result in developers becoming an endangered species on the Tweed, adding 'they need to be encouraged'.

Reflection by the temple pool

Krishna, Savitri, Shamala, Asavari and Gopina enjoy a moment by the garden pool near the Hare Krishna temple at the New Govardhana Farm in Eungella near Murwillumbah last Sunday. Around 200 people attended the farm to celebrate the festival of the sacred cow, known as Go Puja, which included an offering to colourfully decorated cows. The farm, run by the International Society for Krishna Consciousness is dedicated to cow protection and is the only dairy farm in Australia to produce non-violent, or 'Ahimsa', milk. Council moves to acquire dam land

Luis Feliu

Tweed Shire Council is moving to resume land at Byrrill Creek southwest of Mt Warning as a first step in its contentious plan to dam the area to boost the shire's water supply.

Councillors on Tuesday voted 4-2 (Crs Barry Longland and Katie Milne against) for a staff recommendation to develop a land acquisition plan to determine processes, timing, costs and other factors to facilitate resumption of property needed for the dam.

They also opted for the larger 36,000-litre version covering 398 hectares, which would cost around $60 million and affect 35 residents, compared to the smaller dam of half the capacity covering 235 hectares, affecting 30 residents and costing around $45 million.

Council's director of natural resources David Oxenham told the meeting that council had received 'numerous' inquiries from property owners from both the Byrrill Creek area and Doon Doon

Let's build the whopper: Polglase

It's official – Tweed Council will push for a super dam of 36,000 megalitres rather than one less than half the size.

This was confirmed at this week's council meeting after Greens councillor Katie Milne asked pro-dam colleagues what sized dam they envisaged when they voted last month to build a new one at Byrrill Creek.

'We're going for the whopper,' declared Warren Polglase, who is leading the push for the new dam along with mayor Kevin Skinner and Phil Youngblutt.

General manager Mike Rayner said it was important a formal decision was made because the preferred option for Byrrill Creek in the event it was chosen was for a smaller dam of 16,300 megalitres.

He suggested this crucial issue should be resolved through a notice of motion at the next council meeting so staff would be aware of the scope of the preparatory work.

Creek, where the Clarrie Hall Dam sits, concerned about the fate of their properties. Some landowners were also concerned the dam plan had stalled the potential sale of their properties.

Mr Oxenham estimated it would take around '300 days' before the necessary legislation was enacted to begin the land resumption.

He said the council was developing a 'framework' for the land acquisition as a result of the council resolution earlier this month to adopt the Byrrill Creek dam plan as the preferred option to boost water supply.

But council staff also revealed another potential hurdle which could ban the controversial new dam: the impending gazetting of the draft Water Sharing Plan for NSW.

A staff report said council had still not received a reply from the state water minister to an earlier request for him to lift the ban of a new dam at Byrrill Creek when the state government's Water Sharing Plan is gazetted, and decided to urge him again in writing immediately.

Councillors also decided to proceed with planning to upgrade the spillway of the existing Clarrie Hall Dam and to retain ownership of land at Doon Doon Creek around it, with the view of keeping open the option for raising the dam wall.

The gazettal of the Water Sharing Plan, originally due last April, is now expected next month.

Staff said that complex planning and approval steps for the new dam would 'have a long timeframe' of around seven years.

They also said council should consider the 'uncertainty that will be faced by landholders at Doon Doon Creek as to the long term land use for the area' and liaise with them to reduce the 'inconvenience to them.'

New tourism project to boost coastal road trips

Luis Feliu

A new federal government-funded project is set to encourage people to visit the Tweed on driving holidays.

Richmond MP Justine Elliot and minister assisting on tourism Senator Nick Sherry last Friday announced the $670,000 project which is named the Legendary Pacific Coast Touring Route. It is aimed at boosting tourism along the highway corridor between Sydney and Brisbane.

At the launch at Point Danger, Ms Elliot said visitors to the Tweed and Byron shires could experience some of Australia's great holiday attractions and the World Heritage listed rainforests around Mt Warning.

The project involves signage along the route, website development, marketing and promotional activities.

Ms Elliot welcomed a tourism industry convoy in Tweed Heads which had travelled up from Sydney to launch the touring route.

The Tweed launch was the final event of the week-long road show, which started in Sydney and visited the Hunter Valley, Port Stephens, Port Macquarie, Coffs Harbour, Yamba, Ballina, Lennox Head, and Byron Bay.

'The Legendary Pacific Coast Touring Route has potential to attract even more visitors through the many communities along the pacific coast and increase the turnover for local traders,' she said.

(Real) Advice from Mrs Product Tester

Dear Mrs Product Tester, My boyfriend Sammy wants to surprise me with a nice present, what sort of hint should I give him? Cheryl

Dear Cheryl

I'm really glad you got to me before you let him loose – you never know what men will turn up with these days.

Now as we both know, there's nothing like a beautiful bunch of flowers and dinner at a fancy restaurant, however might I suggest the gift of travel. There are some lovely destinations to visit – Uki is lovely at this time of the year, or what about a night at Byron with a glider flight around Mt Warning. But if he's loaded, what about Paris, Venice and Rome – very romantic!

Now of course there are a few things you might need to help you make it an occasion to remember. As a matter of fact I heard about a shop called Outdoorism in the main street of Murwillumbah (the Paris end – you know – where the outdoor cafes are). This shop's got everything you'll need for travelling and adventure – backpacks and travel bags (plus extra bags for shopping), lightweight warm waterproof clothing (it may be a touch chilly in Europe at the moment), comfortable shoes, and all sorts of bits and pieces you'll need for your trip.

So good luck Cheryl, you'll convince him and you can thank me later

All the best. Cathy PS Send us some photos!

Costs increase but no breakdown

Ken Sapwell

Councillors' internet and telephone bills have nearly doubled but the costs of attending conferences and seminars have nearly halved. These figures are recorded in Tweed Shire Council's annual report tabled this week.

The seven councillors had a monthly internet and phone bill of $1,540 during the 12 months to June 30, compared to an average monthly bill of $860 in the nine months after they were elected.

The costs of conferences, which were blasted last year as exorbitant by new mayor Kevin Skinner, fell from an average of $2,280 a month to $1,440 during the same period, while no one claimed for spouse or childcare expenses.

But the report does not provide any individual breakdown and does not show the amounts councillors are charging for travel, meals and other out-of-pocket expenses.

They've been combined and lumped in with the undisclosed costs of providing secretarial services, with the combined costs increasing from an average of $9,100 a month to $9,700.

A list of councillors' individual expenses was traditionally published in the annual report until senior staff quietly axed the practice after the new council was elected in September 2008.

A bid by Greens councillor Katie Milne to reinstate the list was narrowly defeated after corporate services chief Troy Green said providing a breakdown would be too complicated and 'give a warped view of reality'.

The report shows that general manager Mike Rayner, who is to begin a new contract next May for a yet undisclosed sum, increased the value of his salary package from $257,215 to $268,280.

The report provides a list of the council's main achievements for the year, including a master plan to turn Arkinstall Park into a regional sports centre, a new waste service and a revamp of Cabarita's main street.

Councillors reveal campaign funding

Ken Sapwell

Cr Polglase's disclosure of a $5,000 election campaign contribution from Brisbane-based property investor Godfrey Mantle has shone a belated spotlight on who really funded our councillors' campaign expenses.

While their returns to the Election Funding Authorities show that the head of the Mantle property and restaurant empire was the only developer to contribute to a campaign, other councillors had an array of cash cows ranging from major political parties to an unwanted donation which apparently proved impossible to return.

Greens Party councillor Katie Milne was given $6,000 cash from the Tweed Greens while veteran councillor Phil Youngblutt, who headed a group which declared their affiliation as 'independent' on election papers, copped $5,000 from the National Party's Tweed Heads South branch.

Inaugural mayor Joan van Lieshout declared that her election expenses of $12,425 were covered not by the Liberal Party under whose banner she proudly campaigned but by a cheque from her husband and would-be developer, Peter.

The council's first deputy mayor Barry Longland revealed 22 small 'political donations' totalling $1,792 and a $3,000 loan from his brother while the Tweed Community First group he headed pulled in a further $1,730 from fundraisers.

Another community councillor Dot Holdom declared her group provided its own funding of $16,441 and that she received a 'small political donation' of $100, but has since said she was rebuffed when she attempted to return the cheque to her benefactor.

Current mayor Kevin Skinner, who headed a ticket with four others, has implicitly denied rumours of National Party funding by declaring in his return that his campaign expenses were 'self-funded' to the tune of $6,577.

Under funding rules, candidates are required to list reportable political donations that are $1,000 or more each or multiple donations from the same source in the one year that total $1,000 or more.

Grinners are winners

The Les Peterkin Portrait Prize, regarded as the only major art prize exclusively for children in Australia, now in its 14th year, drew over 1,000 entries by students from 19 local primary schools with the prize-winning entries now on display at the Tweed River Art Gallery.

A special opening celebration for the exhibition at the gallery was held last Sunday at which the prize's founder and inspiration, well-known former Tweed artist Les Peterkin attended.

The prize, which this year had as its theme 'Smile', involved 'smiling' portraits created in a range of materials from pencil, paint, digital imagery and crayon to collages of cotton wool, sticks, sand and leaves.

Les, who lived at Tyalgum for 20 years and operated The Bakehouse Pottery, told The Echo he was proud to see the prize had grown since he launched it 14 years ago. 'It's wonderful to see it's still going,' he said, adding that the prizes on offer such as art equipment were also 'very useful' for the children.

Les left Tyalgum nine years ago to take up the artist-in-residence role at Lindisfarne College at Terranora, before moving south to Newcastle to be near family.

'But I plan to return and get back into it again. I have lots of contacts here. I'm happy to have caught up with lots of people while I was here just for today,' he said.

Les praised the prize's volunteer coordinators, Deb Cocks and Anouk Beck, and the gallery for supporting the prize.

This year the 44 works receiving major awards are framed and displayed on the gallery walls, while a further 125 entries are presented in folders in the gallery foyer. The exhibition will be open until December 5.

Set the information free

All three tiers of Australian government have been reluctant to let the public know what's going on, which is strange when you think they're there to serve the public. Party politics and bureaucratic control and sometimes just petty bastardry intervene in the free flow of information. There are legitimate reasons to restrict information, such as individuals' privacy and national security, but too often these reasons are used as excuses to hide wrongdoing.

Last week we reported how Tweed Council has refused to release details of a new contract for council's general manager or the criteria used in his performance reviews, with council's public information officer citing privacy concerns for not doing so. Yesterday, the Sydney Morning Herald published details of information obtained under the new Government Information (Public Access) Act 2009 (GIPA Act) which revealed that more than 100 police officers have been charged with 320 criminal offences over the past two years, ranging from drug dealing to aggravated sexual assault, drink-driving and unlawfully altering official records, information which would otherwise have been kept under wraps.

The recently formed NSW Office of the Information Commissioner (OIC) is meant to serve the public's need for access to information held by the government. Yet already councils are claiming open access under the new GIPA Act is jeopardising the privacy of members of the public in relation to submissions on development applications (DAs). This is a legitimate concern, but it must not be used as a means to restrict access to related DA files.

Information Commissioner Deirdre O'Donnell is so concerned she launched a consultation paper at the recent Local Government Managers Australia (NSW) forum in Fairfield, Sydney.

The Commissioner said the consultation would enable the OIC to develop guidelines on how local councils should apply the public interest test to decisions about publishing open access information that contains personal or sensitive information, with specific relevance to DAs. Ms O'Donnell said she would also consult with Privacy NSW as part of this process.

Hmmm, the public interest test. I can see a bureaucrat saying, 'Does the public need to know about this? Nah.' Not that I'm dismissing the right of the individual to privacy, but it makes a good lever for officious types to be 'frugal' with the flow of information. 'Commercial in confidence' is another good excuse often used.

'Consultation paper 1: Development applications and personal information on websites – issues for local councils', as it is so fetchingly named, is being distributed to local councils throughout the state. You can download it at www.oic.nsw.gov.au. Submissions close on Friday, January 14, 2011.

You can also contact the OIC on freecall 1800 463 626.

Court redefines a fair suck

The Liberal Party's cadaver in waiting, Phillip Ruddock, described last week's High Court decision on the rights of asylum seekers as 'diabolical'.

The misuse of the word was so grotesque as to suggest that the former Immigration Minister and Attorney-General's use of it might have itself been satanic inspiration.

The court's unanimity, a rare enough event in itself, bringing together conservatives and Liberals, Coalition and Labor appointees, was an endorsement of the law of the land – but in a sense it went further than that. By finding that the treatment of certain boat people had lacked 'procedural fairness', the court was also making a statement about justice, ethics and human decency.

In the most basic Australian terms, the judges found that at least two Sri Lankans had been denied a fair suck of the sauce bottle.

And the reason was, quite simply, that the law propounded by Ruddock for John Howard and adopted by Kevin Rudd and Julia Gillard had not been properly applied.

When dealing with those confined on Christmas Island, the government had tried to have a bob each way – successive ministers had applied the Migration Act to knock back their applications for visas but had refused them the opportunity for appeal that the Act gave to those on the mainland. And the whole scam had its genesis in the legal fiction concocted by Ruddock and his fellow conspirators when they declared that Christmas Island could be excised from Australia's migration zone, while remaining subject to the rest of Australian law.

The trick was, as my mother might have said, too clever by half. And now, finally, the whirligig of time, in the garb of our nation's final arbiters, has brought in its revenges and established that the idea was, in the dictionary sense, indeed diabolical – fiendish, outrageously wicked; (colloquial) difficult, unpleasant, very bad.

Where we go from here is unclear; in spite of what the optimists have been saying, the decision does not consticuit breaker to the hysterical paranoia over the issue.

These people are our fellow human beings, and as such must be given fair dealing under the law.

Successive governments have tried to deny them this; how would we feel if the politicians decided to treat us with the same cynical disregard for our rights? We would consider it truly dia-

The whole scam had its genesis in the legal fiction concocted by Ruddock and his fellow conspirators...

by Mungo MacCallum

tute a new Magna Carta or Bill of Rights, an irreversible blow for human freedom. The government could try and legislate its way out of the impasse, and would presumably have the support of the opposition, whose leader, Tony Abbott, has declared that judges are out of touch with public opinion and that unless they start listening more closely to the shock jocks should perhaps be elected rather than appointed, thus shredding the concept of the separation of powers which is the very basis of our system of government.

And there is no need for such drastic measures. The government's actions were found not to be unconstitutional, but unconscionable; it broke its own rules.

The foundations of our democracy remain firm. But Julia Gillard and her advisers will now have to rethink their whole approach to asylum seekers, and this can only be a good thing. At the very least the decision might act as a cirbolical and, unlike Ruddock, we would be entirely correct.

For a self-confessed amateur in the field of foreign policy Julia Gillard is proving a commendably adept student. Her performances at the G20 and APEC may have lacked the panache of those of her predecessor, but they were competent and gaffe-free, and did nothing to diminish Australia's won-back reputation as good global citizen.

The best thing about them was that our Prime Minister was able to separate the long term national interest from her current political travails.

It cannot have been easy for her and Treasurer Wayne Swan to argue for special treatment of the local banks at a time when they are at their arrogant, self-serving worst on the domestic scene, but they held their noses, gritted their teeth and did just that. They now have all the more reason to give the ungrateful bastards a good kicking once they return home.

Equally commendable was Gillard's vigorous and unequivocal commitment to the free trade agenda, which would not have pleased some of her key supporters in caucus and beyond. At a time when many of the countries which have emerged from the GFC in tighter economic straits than Australia are slipping back into protectionism, it was a bold and forthright stance – even one of leadership.

Kevin Rudd must have approved. His own leading role in the expansion and enhancement of the G20 as a pre-eminent intergovernmental body is perhaps his most important and lasting legacy from his brief period as Prime Minister.

He would have looked on in envy as Gillard reaped the benefits of his work. But at least he would be pleased that she shows every sign of following it through, rather than ditching it as she has done with most of his domestic policies.

The Greens are understandably disappointed at the announcement that the Liberals will preference Labor ahead of them in Victoria, but they shouldn't be: the Libs are, after all, a party of the right and these days Labor is far more inclined in that direction than are the Greens.

For the Greens to expect Liberal preferences is as absurd as imagining that Labor would preference a party of the far right, like One Nation.

If the decision had gone the other way the Liberals would have justifiably been accused of blatant political opportunism, a cynical abandonment of principle, and that couldn't be the case, could it?

Well, okay, it was a couple of months ago, but that was Tony Abbott. It would never do for a Baillieu.

Public/private

So Tweed Shire Council is considering entering the crematorium business – in direct competition with two existing private operators.

Councils entering into competition with existing businesses is very definitely a bad idea.

In another council area where I have lived I saw the local council do a similar thing in a different industry sector and they drove their competitor out of business.

The council has a natural competitive advantage because the lines between the 'public' and 'private' business aspects of council operations become blurred.

If Tweed Shire Council proceeds with this proposal then it is the community that is likely to get burned, in more ways than one.

Police liaison

After the long debriefing process with local anti-rally groups, Acting Tweed/Byron Commander Owen King says he will liaise with Coffs Harbour police to prevent some of the issues with the 2009 rally recurring.

I hope he means he will advise them how to maintain their public trust and credibility if residents again oppose the event. All parties agreed that the liaison process in 2009 was flawed. It seemed the police focus was on the perceived threat to public safety from demonstrating residents, rather than on copy-cat driving, unruly behaviour, trespass and drink-driving by rally fans. Residents were surprised to find that acting on their concerns when drivers and fans broke the law was not part of the liaison officer's brief. Importing Riot Squad from Sydney undermined the liaison process and heightened tensions, as these police had no understanding of the local issues.

When governments make bad law, it puts police in an awkward situation. The Motor Sports Act undermines civil protections and may again spur residents to defend their values and rights. If Commander King takes one lesson to Coffs, I hope it is that when forced to balance bad law with residents' sense of natural justice, the onus is on police to protect their own credibility and public trust in them, as well as public safety.

Save Byrrill Creek

The National Party's Three Stooges on Tweed Council (Polglase, Youngblutt and Skinner) have decided to build a dam at Byrrill Creek against the advice of the experts. Council staff said that raising the wall of Clarrie Hall Dam should be first option as that would produce greatest water security at least cost. Are existing residents being asked to foot the costs of a new dam to benefit already rich developers?

We don't need the water: Clarrie Hall Dam was designed for a Tweed population of 160,000 and currently caters for about 90,000 people. With new technologies and water saving initiatives there will be no problem meeting future water needs.

We have don't have to accept the developers' mantra the population will double in the next 20 years. Many councils take a planned approach to growth and we can too. If a dam goes ahead at Byrrill Creek we will lose irreplaceable biodiversity assets that do not occur anywhere else in the world!

Why risk the possible extinction of endangered plant and animal species so the fictional Tweed population explosion can flush their toilets with drinking water? What about mandating rainwater tanks for new developments? Why not ban the use of drinking water for washing pavement and gutters?

It's time to add your voice: it's our money and our backyard. Please write to Frank Sartor, Minister for Planning, NSW Parliament, Sydney NSW 2000. Ask him to Save Byrrill Creek.

Puppets' preferences

The preferencing of Labor above the Greens by the Liberal Party in the Victorian elections proves (if proof were needed) that there are only two major political entities in Australia: the Labor/Nationals who, like most of the media are the puppets of large corporations, and the grass roots democratic and independent Greens.

green scene

Go green

Operating a green business is not only good for the environment but good for your business's bottom line because conserving resources and cutting down on waste saves money.

TEN EASY-TO-IMPLEMENT IDEAS FOR RUNNING A GREEN BUSINESS

1. Turning off equipment when it's not being used. This can reduce the energy used by 25 per cent; turning off the computers at the end of the day can save an additional 50 per cent.
2. Encouraging communications by email, and reading email messages on screen to determine whether it's necessary to print them. If it's not, don't!
3. Reducing fax-related paper waste by using a fax-modem and by using a fax cover sheet only when necessary.
4. Producing double-sided documents whenever possible.
5. Not leaving taps dripping. (One drop wasted per second wastes 10,000 litres per year.)
6. Installing displacement toilet dams in toilet reservoirs. Placing one or two plastic containers filled with stones (not bricks) in the toilet's reservoir will displace about 4 litres of water per flush.
7. Finding a supply of paper with maximum available recycled content.
8. Choosing suppliers who take back packaging for reuse.
9. Instigating an ongoing search for 'greener' products and services in the local community. The further your supplies or service providers have to travel, the more energy used.
10. Before deciding whether you need to purchase new office furniture, see if your existing office furniture can be refurbished.

Last call for support

Please, if you support our proposal take five minutes to go to our website and write a submission www.northbyronparklands.com

Bill Hauritz, Founder of the Queensland Folk Federation Inc and Founder and Director of the Woodford Folk Festival "It is our organisation's hope that Splendour in the Grass remains at Woodford. I should declare though, in the interests of fairness, that we support the application to house this wonderful event at the Yelgun site.

As probably the most experienced festival organiser in Australia, I observed a passion for 'doing the right thing'. Splendour organisers went the full distance in observing community protocols, endearing themselves to the local community and ourselves and demonstrated complete integrity in their attitudes and actions.

I have studied many of the objectors' reasons objecting to the well thought out and transparent proposal for the Yelgun site. It is my view that these objectors have exaggerated their claims and have been less than fair in their assessments; misinformed on both the intentions and science.

In our town planning work at Woodford the objectors have all but disappeared and the environmental lobby that opposed us are now our fiercest allies. There is a way. Splendour in the Grass is one of the great festivals in Australia. It needs its own home and the Yelgun property is the right place."

Regional Development Australia Northern Rivers "The activities of North Byron Parklands and Splendour in the Grass result in regional economic, environmental and social benefits. The loss of the festival would have a detrimental ripple effect across the arts, music and tourism sectors."

Geoff Parmenter, CEO Events NSW "Splendour in the Grass has generated millions of dollars in economic benefits to the businesses of Byron Shire. Events NSW would be delighted to see an event that delivers these types of benefits return to Byron Bay and NSW."

Dr Matt Allworth, BSc (Vet) BVSc Hons, Byron Bay "I am convinced the indigenous animal community has more to gain from the proposed funding of conservation activities by NBP, than letting it revert to traditional farming practices. The conservation zones and philanthropic dispersals will benefit not only wildlife living on the site, but also those further afield. It's a shame vocal NIMBY-ism is drowning out the interests of a speechless wildlife community."

Phil Villiers, General Manager Tweed Tourism "Tweed Tourism supports this important proposal for both shires. It will bring economic, tourism and jobs growth to the regions plus the community will win via the Community Grants program. A win, win for us all."

HOW FAR HAS YOUR FOOD TRAVELLED?

"THINK GLOBAL, LOVE LOCAL" is Currumbin RSL's 2010 motto and throughout the month of November they will showcase what has gone on behind the scenes in 2010 from environmental sustainability changes to showcasing and supporting local farmers and food producers.

'Slow food' is not a unique concept to most nor is it a new concept for the Club with Alleys Restaurant menu having contained local produce for some time. The Club has held signature events throughout the month to further showcase Tweed and Southern Gold Coast food and beverage producers and to promote the huge variety of quality produce available right at our doorstep.

A seven course 100km degustation and matching wine dinner is the next event, to be held Friday November 26.

A full description of the menu and the local suppliers can be found at www.currumbinrsl.com.au or call 5534 7999.

Solar Rebates Still Available!

SOLAR ELECTRICITY is still a sound financial investment as well as an investment in the future of our planet thanks to a number of fantastic incentives.

The solar electricity rebate or "Solar Credits Scheme" is open to everyone including businesses. It represents thousands of dollars towards the initial cost of your system which SolarSwitch offers as a generous point of sale discount.

On top of this up front rebate you will be paid for all the electricity you feed into the grid. Some energy retailers are offering up to 28c/kWh. This means you will be paid around $630 per year if you install a 1.5kW system, which will pay for itself in as little as 6 years then offer you a tax free income.

Having installed over 4000 systems SolarSwitch has the knowledge, expertise and dedicated staff to carry out your installation in a timely and professional manner.

"We pride ourselves on installing quality equipment sourced from reputable manufacturers that will be around to honour your 25 year manufacturer's warranty... this is a lifetime investment after all," said Adam Tesoriero, Director of SolarSwitch.

Each installation is managed and carried out by SolarSwitch's licensed, insured and Clean Energy Council accredited electricians.

SPLENDOUR in the Grass have received a highly coveted "Commended Award" for their 2010 event from the prestigious international Greener Festival Awards.

Ben Challis, Co-founder of A Greener Festival said "We applaud Splendour's efforts to reduce their greenhouse gas emissions, reduce waste and engage with music fans in changing to a more sustainable lifestyle."

Environmental Manager for Splendour, Environmental Scientist Mat Morris, was delighted the festival had been recognised at the international level.

"We have been working really hard to further reduce the festival's environmental footprint and have introduced a range of new policies including our "green procurement", "environmental charities" and "turn off and save" policies".

If you support our proposal go to our website and write a submission at www.northbyronparklands.com.

ECOTEAM provides environmental services to homeowners, developers, architects and surveyors, helping them meet the high level of studies and reporting required by councils when people apply to subdivide, build and develop land. Here is a typical Ecoteam customer: Mr and Mrs Green are building their house on a rural block. Council has advised they need to have an on-site sewage management system, a statement of environmental effects, a contaminated land assessment, a bushfire report, and a koala habitat assessment.

The Greens choose The Ecoteam because they can produce all the reports within the required timeframe, and by using one team they save money. The Ecoteam also offered valuable advice about site constraints optimising the final design, again saving money by streamlining the planning process. The Ecoteam also built the Greens' on-site sewage management system and provided the Greens with a comprehensive Operation and Maintenance Manual and DVD, and were always available for over-the-phone advice.

The Greens were ecstatic.

Television Guide

1. Kseniya Rappoport plays Irena, the mysterious Russian woman who insinuates her way into an Italian family in the psychological thriller The Unknown Woman (SBS1, Friday, 11.10pm).

2. Little girl, have I got a brown paper parcel for you. The Chronicles Of Narnia (Prime, Saturday, 6.30pm) is not a patch on the books but provides CGI-enhanced entertainment nonetheless.

3. For a taste of real reality TV, watch Sold: fighting the new global slave trade on Compass (ABC1, Sunday, 10.05pm). Much of the world is still run like a medieval fiefdom, and children suffer for it.

WITH LILITH

With Venus, Jupiter and Neptune in gear again and Mercury joining Mars in the sign of mobile mouths, expect an increase in energy, opportunities and the length of phone conversations this week...

ARIES: If this week brings a powerful urge for independence, therapist Bob Mandel's take on liberation's worth considering: True freedom is self knowledge. The more aware you become of your unconscious, the more power you have to choose freely, break old habits and change.

TAURUS: The Tauran drive to accumulate, consolidate and stand your ground is strong right now, but your charm mistress Venus in Libra says seduction achieves sweeter results than insistence. So make adaptation your word for the week, and give relationships the quality attention they're seeking as well...

GEMINI: You've had some deep and meaningful insights lately about others, yourself, and the way the world works, now what are you going to do about it? Perhaps begin by helping others solve workplace problems - lifting someone's spirits will attract the same kind of good medicine back.

CANCER: The antithesis of the bumper sticker potted philosophy Magic Happens is the one proclaiming Maggots Happen. Ever the way of life on our planet, where happiness requires a focus on miracles rather than wrigglers - something this week's optimistic influences and positive aspects certainly assist.

LEO: You're over downsizing and energetically engaging your natural talent for thinking big as this week presses Leo's dominant alpha boss button, producing an extravaganza of vehement views and passionate opinions - though if others have to hear yours, it's only fair they're allowed to air theirs.

VIRGO: Things you suspected are starting to fall into place. Major changes are afoot, which have to unfold in their own organic time, requiring patience on your part - but your planet boss Mercury highlights the funny side of this week to give you a hand.

LIBRA: If you're not taken with certain information, remember this week's opinions are driven more by emotion than fact, meaning you only have to wait for them to change - and end of week Venus moving direct to bring practical benefits, tangible advantages and unexpected payoffs.

SCORPIO: This week's about leadership, self promotion and delegating so you can attend to priorities. Resist micromanaging and try to see both sides of problem situations - the line between allies and adversaries is fine right now, and you don't want to become your own enemy SAGITTARIUS: Assertive Mars has a flammable effect on the Sagittarian temperament so you may need short breaks this week to clear your thinking or integrate new information. Expect fresh, revitalising changes on career and/or domestic fronts, along with healing insights concerning your past family or cultural heritage.

CAPRICORN: Life this week might seem like an Attack Of The Giant Busybodies, and you'll need to meet existential irritations and disappointments with Capricorn calm. And also remind yourself that merely maintaining an optimistic outlook in these uncertain times is an act of heroism.

AQUARIUS: Stimulating ideas and adventurous plans get added cosmic grunt from late week Neptune and Chiron direct in Aquarius kicking in the astral octane to make them work. Update business tactics for more efficiency and effectiveness by thinking strategically, fixing what's fixable, recycling what isn't.

PISCES: Jupiter and Neptune direct in Pisces dissolve recent cloudy thinking, dealing you a lucky hand of favours and helpful allies. Your success stars are as solid as anything can be right now, so keep this good fortune buoyant by maintaining an attitude of gratitude.

Last week's solution

CHESS by Ian Rogers

Play at Seagulls Club, Thurs 6-10pm

Grandmasters often impress the general public with their ability to play a series of games simultaneously. A normal simultaneous exhibition might have 20 or 30 amateurs taking on the GM but much higher numbers have been attempted.

In February 2009 I witnessed Bulgarian Kiril Georgiev play 360 opponents simultaneously in Sofia, an achievement which took 14 hours. Perhaps 100 of the opponents were very weak but the achievement was nonetheless awesome.

Then, in August 2009, Iranian GM Morteza Mahjoob played an almost unbelievable 500 opponents in 18 hours. Like Georgiev, Mahjoob trained for months on the physical demands of the challenge – comparable to walking a marathon – but the strength of his opponents was hard to determine.

Last month Alik Gershon broke Mahjoob's record by playing 523 opponents simultaneously. Of his opponents 300 were school children, and this week a Tel Aviv newspaper exposed the fact that many of the school children were beginners, some having learned to play chess only the day before Gershon's record-breaking effort.

Gershon, like all GMs who attempt massive simultaneous exhibitions, knows the truth; unless plenty of opponents are wiped out quickly these exhibitions would last for 24 hours or more and the amateur players would simply abandon their boards and go home.

Things were different in June 1975 when Australia's top player, IM Robert Jamieson, set the Australian record of 145, a record which still stands. Virtually all Jamieson's opponents were tournament players and they included future titleholders Johansen, West, Hjorth and Rogers. The exhibition took around 15 hours.

I tip my hat to Gershon, Mahjoob and Georgiev but if quality is worth half as much as quantity, Jamieson should also be recognised as a true chess iron man.

Steely Singers

With their highly anticipated debut album Tangalooma just bursting to be played live on stage, The John Steel Singers kick off their biggest national tour yet with a very special heading slot at the Triple J Oz Music Month event on November 17 at the Hi Fi in their hometown of Brisbane. It signals the start of a massive national tour taking in capital and regional cities across Australia to celebrate the launch of their debut. The John Steel Singers have been gracing the stages of major festivals this year including Sunset Sounds, Go Between Bridge Concert, Valley Fiesta and Splendour In The Grass. Now it's time for the band to take their brass-pop to the rest of the nation. Coolangatta Hotel Thursday.

BoP Grad Show

To celebrate the end of three years of study, Griffith University's Queensland Conservatorium Bachelor of Popular Music graduating students will be performing at the Basement to showcase their original work. The students are emerging artists within the local, national, and international music industry arena.

The Queensland Conservatorium at Griffith University is one of Australia's leading music schools, with industry connections around the globe and a reputation for producing music professionals of the highest calibre. Their ambition is to lay pathways to success for all students in a wide range of careers in the popular music industry. The Bachelor of Popular Music program is unique to the Conservatorium, built on the musical innovation and creativity necessary to succeed in a competitive industry. Popular Music graduates have achieved success both nationally and globally including recording deals with impressive companies from the likes of Sony Japan, Switzerland, the UK and the USA. From taking out Golden Guitar awards and USA Music Industry awards, to working with ARIA winning artists, Popular Music graduates are marking their mark on the world through their music. Gold Coast Art Centre, The Basement Unplugged, Thursday.

The Go Set

On the eve of releasing their fifth album, a live venture titled Another Round in Melbourne Town, The Go Set are fast becoming an institution. Fiercely independent, and with a dynamic and chaotic live show like no other, the band is fast amassing a legion of loyal fans. Likened to everything from The Pogues to The Clash and early Midnight Oil, The Go Set combine the traditional sounds of bagpipes and accordion, with punk rock guitars, and a penchant for political lyrics. The Go Set have achieved enormous success in Europe in recent years, and just returned from a tour which saw sell out shows in Germany, France, and the UK. November will see the band on the road around Australia on a national tour. This is one live show not to be missed. Coolangatta Hotel Friday.

Holly Throsby

Two years have passed since the intimate, striking joys of Holly Throsby's A Loud Call. In that time, she has toured extensively across the globe, releasing the record through Europe, Japan and the UK. This year, Holly returned to work with long-time friend and producer Tony Dupé, in a 19th century Methodist church in Wildes Meadow, New South Wales. They recorded two albums back to back: a technicolour, sound-effect laden children's record due for release this October, and a brand new collection of songs which make up Holly's fourth album, Team.

The first single, Here Is My Co-Pilot, sees Throsby blossom with bright overlapping vocals, thumping box drums, and handmade pop arrangements. Mixed by Burke Reid (The Drones, Jack Ladder, The Mess Hall) at Sydney's BJB studios, it is a warm and emboldened departure. To celebrate this new chapter, Holly and her band, The Hello Tigers, will hit the road for the first time since 2008 with an East Coast Australian tour. Currumbin Sound Lounge, Friday.

The Dice Are Loaded

Loaded Dice are international, having worked overseas for the Shangri-la and Hilton Hotels in China and Japan. They have also worked at casinos across the country from Melbourne's Crown Casino to Conrad Jupiter's Casino, The Treasury, Brisbane, Townsville Casino, The Country Club Resort Casino and Wrestpoint Casino, Tasmania. They have headlined for some of Queensland's top corporate events including Indy 500, Australian Designer and Fashion Awards, A La Carte in the Park, The River Festival and have provided music and entertainment at events for President Bill Clinton, the Premier of China, Prime Minister of Australia and The All Blacks NZ national rugby team. Don't miss the opportunity to be entertained by one of Australia's best. Loaded Dice are a first class band. They look fantastic, they sound fantastic, see them at the Currumbin RSL Friday.

Emerging talents share stage with veteran

The first event at this year's Ukitopia festival on this Friday night will be a magical one with an amazing emerging talent joining three of the region's most celebrated singer/songwriters in Uki's Holy Trinity Church. Talented 13-year-old Kalyani will perform as a solo support to Uki's veteran singer/songwriters Loren,

HOLLY THROSBY AND HER BAND, THE HELLO TIGERS, WILL HIT THE CURRUMBIN SOUND LOUNGE FRIDAY.

Murray Kyle and Bill Jacobi at Songwriters on the Songline #4 from 7pm on Friday 19. Tickets available only at the door for $20, or $15 for Ukitopia Arts Collective members.

Born locally and raised internationally, Kalyani is a third-generation songwriter and, despite her young age, she has been writing songs and poetry since early childhood. Her voice is mesmerising and melodic, and her inspirational lyrics tell stories, transporting the listener on a journey around the world and back.

During her solo support at the church, Kalyani will be performing from her diverse folio of songs and accompanying herself on keyboard. Her performance will lay the atmosphere for a one-off performance by Loren, Murray Kyle and Bill Jacobi. This unique collaboration will produce a musical chemistry full of rhythmic interplay, rich harmonies and powerful songwriting. Ukitopia will also mark the first time Uki local musician Loren will perform on his home turf with his new band Wirebird, who will take to the stage on Saturday night. This latest project is an evolutionary step for Loren, with a band of talented musicians to take the emotive and lyrically driven music to a new level of heart soul groove and energy. On Saturday afternoon at 4pm, Kalyani will also have a second Ukitopia performance in a collaboration with her musical uncles forming the band Uncle Crazy. Sri D, the senior band member and cruisy, funky bass player, anchors the sound with wisdom and maturity.

Narayana mixes in a fresh and spacey sound sculpted from years of intense guitar study and persistence. Ayu Das weaves in a contemporary spin borrowing from breakbeats, drum and bass and dubstep, fused together with his inherent Brijbasi rhythms. This Friday and Saturday at the Ukitopia Festival.

Tangerine Jam

Tangerine Jam comprises Jesse and Samantha Laag. Born in the Philippines, Jesse has been a professional guitarist for nearly 25 years. Extensively touring Asia and the Middle East, his band held residencies at many international five star resorts. Sam is Australian and has been singing since she was conceived! Recording a compilation CD of original music and many radio/TV jingles has only further cemented her reputation for quality and versatility. A vocal ability spanning Jazz to R&B and all styles in-between ensure all age groups are kept happy. This duo is guaranteed to entertain. Currumbin RSL Saturday.

James Wengrow Quartet

Come and watch young guitar virtuoso James Wengrow alongside Queensland Conservatorium colleagues Rayle Bligh (bass) and Chris Vale (drums) as they demonstrate why they are some of the most exciting musicians emerging in Queensland contemporary jazz scene. Since being featured as one of the original Jazz in the Basement's Young Apprentice in 2005, James has toured nationally with acts such as The M B Project, The Mute Canary Project, The West End Composers Collective, Macklin / Newcomb, The Con Artists and his popular duo with Joseph O'Connor on piano. THE JOHN STEEL SINGERS AT COOLANGATTA HOTEL THURSDAY the wonderful Laura, fresh from a sell-out performance of the Sunshine Coast Jazz Club where her remarkable voice had the audience spellbound. This is a very special show of popular standards at the Live and Intimate Series in The Basement, The Arts Centre, Gold Coast.

John Williamson

In 2010, John Williamson celebrates forty years in the recording industry. During his career he has received twenty-four Golden Guitars, three ARIA awards, released thirty-nine albums, ten videos, seven DVDs and three impressive books of stories and lyrics. John is frequently referred to as an Australian icon and has become synonymous with his iconic song True Blue. Twin Towns, Saturday 8pm.

Lizard Kings

Gold Coast hard rockers, The Lizard Kings, are back after a 20 year absence from Gold Coast stages and venues. Formed from the ashes of the Furious Earthworms and the Television Addicts, the band took on a heavier sound inspired by the likes of Radio Birdman, The Stooges, MC5, The Celibate Rifles, and metal bands such as Judas Priest and Iron Maiden.

The band has several originals, a few protest songs, built around the themes of the destruction of the local environment, unfair laws, and surfing. As always there will be dual searing lead breaks from their twin turbo guitarists JT and Stavross, with the latest addition, Fangmore stepping in for some guest lead guitar spots. Deano (drums) and Bunyip (bass) provide the rhythm section, solid fast and hard, Deano often looking like animal from the Muppets. Local radio surf reporter, Tappa, is the vocalist, never short of a word or joke from the stage, singing with the passion and fire of the person who wrote and believes in the songs. Lizard Kings hit the stage at the Shark Bar the Miami Tavern, on Saturday. The doors open at 8pm.

Just The Ticket

Just The Ticket are professional musicians, drawing on a wealth of experience, originally in the UK, with bands playing the Mecca circuit; summer seasons; international cruise liners; stage and television. Individually supporting such artists as Human Nature, Rod Stewart, Lee Kernaghan, The Shadows, Robert Palmer, The Searchers, The Village People and many more. Curumbin RSL Sunday.

Vaiyasaki Dasa

Born in London, Vaiyasaki grew up in Canada, before returning to London where he first encountered kirtan nearly 40 years ago. Travelling the world leading kirtan for the past 35 years, and having released 12 albums, Vaiyasaki is a critically acclaimed kirtan singer who is equally at home performing kirtan in a temple in India, on a stage in Europe, or sitting on the floor of a yoga studio. His kirtans are always charged with energy, and he shares tales from his 35 years of travelling around the world performing kirtan during the evening.

Hare Krishna Farm, Eungella, Sunday, 3pm Kirtan and dinner with Vaiyasaki Dasa.

Harry Angus and the Musician's Stone

HARRY JAMES ANGUS has just returned from a three month tour of Europe and the UK with his band The Cat Empire. You'd think that one band would be enough, but when it comes to making the commitment, Mr Angus is polygamous, sometimes appearing with Jackson Jackson and sometimes, like at this year's Mullum Music Festival, doin' it solo!

Seven caught up with Harry about what drives him.

You have a unique voice, were you ever discouraged from singing? Is your voice your own personal trumpet...

My voice has changed a lot over the years. It's like your hair, you don't realise how long it's got until you see an old photograph of yourself. I haven't noticed it happening, but when I listen to old Cat Empire recordings they seem miles away from where I am now as a vocalist. I don't think my voice is my own personal trumpet though, I have a trumpet for that.

How has the Cat Empire changed the way you approach making music?

The Cat Empire is a fantastic band to be a part of, particularly live. That particular group of musicians have taught me so much about the possibilities of live performance, the energy and the spontaneity.

What is the music that has most influenced you?

Early jazz – Billie Holliday, Louis, Count Basie and Duke Ellington. Lyrically, Talib Kweli and Randy Newman are two (very disparate) influences...

If you were asked to cover three songs, what would they be and why?

Could be anything, depends on the mood on the day. There are a lot of good songs out there. Streets of London is one I've been singing to myself a lot recently...

How do you go about writing your own music? Do you jam....have ideas set, improvise? Is it different courses for different musical line ups eg Cat Empire, Jackson Jackson, solo...

The course of the music depends on who I'm working with... I try not to plan things too much until I'm in the right environment, with the right musicians. Then you just trust your instincts, and make some music happen. Occasionally I won't be able to get to sleep because I've got some idea buzzing around in my head but usually it's a collaborative process. My solo stuff, however, is just me (obviously). It's more about the lyrics, and the mood, and it comes gently in the afternoon.

Could you ever see yourself as a producer?

I've produced a few things here and there, including a record for my wife's band (Tinpan Orange) who are also appearing at the festival. A producer is really just anyone who has a few good ideas to contribute to the recording process. I don't really like the word 'producer' though, it makes me think of a factory churning out dog food (which actually isn't that far from what most producers are doing).

What is the journey of being a musician about for Harry James Angus?

Trusting your instincts, embracing the spontaneous nature of the art form. Keeping your ego in the right place. Trying to find your voice.

What should people be expecting for your show at Mullum Music Festival?

The music I'm playing is very much in the folk idiom, just me and a guitar. No trumpets. The songs are stories, if you sit back and listen, I hope they will take you away to a strange and beautiful place.

Fairweather Island

Be transported as we delve into the life and character of Ian Fairweather. This compelling one-man play explores the events and influences that shaped the life and character of this world renowned artist. Local talent Steven Gration has written, directed and performs this special piece of theatre that dissolves the boundaries between performance and visual art.

Fairweather Island explores Ian Fairweather's life from his birth in Scotland in 1891. The play moves through Fairweather's diverse travels across the world before he settled on Bribie Island, Queensland from 1953 until his death in 1974. Fairweather is reputed to have painted his best works, perhaps even 'masterpieces', during the years he spent living in an earthen floored grass hut on Bribie.

'It is my hope that Fairweather Island will increase public awareness of the remarkable life and artistic works of Ian Fairweather,' says Stephen Gration.

The Gold Coast City Gallery is proud to display various copies from the Fairweather collection on loan from Win Schubert.

A must-see for art lovers... and lovers of innovative theatrical experiences. Gold Coast Arts Centre Thursday 18 to Saturday 20.

Comedy in the Basement – Greg Sullivan

Greg started performing stand-up in 1994 at the age of eighteen. In 1996 he won the state final of the Triple J Make Me Laugh awards. He received national airplay on Triple J and the Austereo network.

In 1997 Greg began headlining at his home venue, The Sit Down Comedy Club, as well as beginning to expand into the corporate arena and working on a Brisbane breakfast radio show for Triple M. Greg was runner up in Sydney's prestigious Comic of the Year awards in December 1997, which earned him national television coverage on Today Tonight. He headlined at the Comedy Club in Melbourne in 1998 and was invited to perform for a week at the world famous Improv in Los Angeles in 1999.

In 2000, Greg was one of a two-man team to perform in their own show, Extreme Shames, at the Melbourne International Comedy Festival.

Greg continues to work hard for Austereo's Triple M Brisbane breakfast show and is one of the best comedians in the country. He is always in huge demand. See him at the Gold Coast Arts Centre, Friday 19.

Craig Costigan and a nice trevally.

David Solano

My only chance for fishing on the weekend was Sunday morning. Steve Curnow and I headed out to the flats behind Seagulls with some flathead fishing in mind. It was such a beautiful morning, no wind, sunny but no fish.

We tried hard bodied lures around all the oyster racks where I managed to catch a couple of really small (and I mean really small) bream. We guys who chase them call fish this size ‘rats’ as they dart everywhere and are totally unpredictable in their behaviour and it tends to feel like you have hooked something bigger.

It’s funny how fishing goes. With two guys and two yaks you usually fish opposite banks so you’re not fishing over previously fished ground, so it’s always a gamble which side to choose. Well last Sunday Steve zipped me.

I heard a scream and turned around and spotted an enormous splash off to the side of Steve’s yak. Straight away I thought he had hooked a stingray, but he was screaming ‘Dave it’s a giant lizard!’

I paddled over and sure enough it was. Steve had a cracker 58cm flathead and as we were in shallow water with the fish going berserk, it made for some good footage.

I will put some videos of this encounter up on the net for you to look at soon.

■ If you have any fishing news you would like to share with David, phone 0415 747 969.

Pan Pac rowing masters Alison Heagney, coach Rick Kranen, Joanne Meehan and John Ryan with their massive medal haul from the Master Games

The seventh biennial Pan Pacific Masters Games kicked off in style last weekend on the Gold Coast with more than 11,000 people from 26 countries, including 3,500 athletes attending the Opening Ceremony.

Three Murwillumbah rowers were among hundreds of the master athletes competing for gold at the Coomera Lakes rowing complex, near Dreamworld.

The forecast for cold days with heavy rain thankfully gave way to fine but windy days, producing a fantastic result for the small team.

A massive medal haul of 11 Gold, seven Silver and three Bronze was bought home by the local rowers from this very successful games regatta.

Alison Heagney, John Ryan and Joanne Meehan have been training hard twice a week for some months with a cardio program put together by Personal Trainer Rick Kranen.

Rick’s training gave the master rowers the ability to compete in ‘back to back’ races on both days of the two day regatta. Rick was not racing but was called in to give advice and support.

‘Since starting the sport and the cardio program I have increased my fitness, lost 10 kilos and also improved overall strength,’ said Alison Heagney, who won gold in her single, one silver and two bronze in other crew events with Graf-ton rowing club. ‘The stretching sessions have also assisted in controlling debilitating migraines. Now I can compete at regattas and recover between races quickly and finish strongly. I would recommend this kind of training to anyone wanting to make a real change in themselves.’

John Ryan won silver in his single with a total of four gold, three silver and one bronze with Griffith Uni/Surfers Paradise as well as teaming up with Tweed rowing club.

Joanne Meehan won six gold and three silver, in Doubles, Quads, Fours and Eights rowing with Lower Clarence and Lismore rowing clubs.

All the results are available if you follow the ‘Sports Information’ link on their website: www.mastersgames.com.au.

Buying off the plan preferred choice for many home buyers, survey reveals

A new survey has revealed around one in six Australians searching for property prefer to buy off the plan, significantly reducing the level of stamp duty they have to pay.

The realestate.com.au survey found nearly 15 per cent of Australians who are looking to buy, or who have bought in the past 12 months, prefer to invest in a new house and land package, or a new apartment, making this an attractive option for many property seekers.

Of the 15 per cent just over 10 per cent said they were searching for a new House and Land package and 4.2 per cent indicated they were searching for an apartment, unit or townhouse off the plan.

The findings coincide with the launch of realestate.com.au's 'New Homes' section, which offers property seekers a range of information, featuring new properties for sale in a variety of price points and designs, all in the one place.

Henry Ruiz, general manager Consumer Experience and Product Marketing for realestate.com.au, believes the 'New Homes' section which replaces the 'Build' section makes searching for house and land packages and new apartments a seamless experience.

'We have designed the 'New Homes' section with the consumer in mind, so they can find what they are looking for faster. We have added new search functionality such as the enhanced search feature, allowing property seekers to search by street name or exact address, map view and the compare feature.

'Property seekers can even peruse through the popular gallery view feature which displays magazine style images so they can get a true indication of the kitchen and bathroom – two of the most important rooms in the house,' he said.

How times change. Backburner in the past has outlined several instances where Gold Coast City Council is much more progressive than the Tweed Council in terms of addressing environmental concerns. The latest is the news that Queensland's peak professional planning body has applauded a range of studies being used to help protect four key green corridors linking the Gold Coast's hinterland and coastline. The council's Bio-regional Corridor Studies last week took out a merit award for environmental planning, conservation or rural, at the Planning Institute of Australia (Queensland) Awards for Planning Excellence.

Now we have Tweed Council siding with North Byron Parklands in their controversial push to develop an events site at Yelgun just south of the Tweed border on land near the northern boundary of the Billinudgel Nature Reserve, which is the area's last wildlife corridor connecting to the coast. With the number of music festivals planned for the site, we can only assume this wildlife corridor will be severely affected with tens of thousands of young music fans camping on the nearby festival site. Motorists driving south from the Tweed on the motorway would surely have noticed the fauna overpass as they enter Byron Shire, put there at great expense by the RTA purely for the viability of this wildlife corridor. The festival site is just below this overpass.

Of course our mayor and self-appointed defender of our 'pristine' environment is all gung-ho for the development, saying it would boost the Tweed's economic coffers with plans for festival-goers to be shuttle-bussed all the way up to accommodation outlets on the Tweed Coast and elsewhere in this shire. Most young people like to stay on-site for obvious reasons and we can't see them wanting to stay at upmarket resorts such as Salt or Casuarina. Even the highly-paid performers would fly in for the day to Coolangatta and drive down, or mostly stay on the Gold Coast or Byron Bay, as they have done in the past when the Splendour in the Grass festival was held in the Bay.

In our last issue we ran an item about Tweed Tourism's rebranding and unfortunately perpetuated a mistake carried (and corrected the next day) by the local daily relating to a new name 'Tweed Directions' which was set to be adopted by members on November 25. The proposed name is actually 'Destination Tweed', which of course has nothing to do with any developer slush fund, unlike the other incorrect name. Tweed Tourism chief Phil Villiers was understandably miffed and has kicked Backburner in the bum for relying the time of Tweed Council's sacking linked to that slush fund, as alarm bells would have rung loud and clear, but we're sure many readers aware of our recent political past had a giggle over it. In searching for a new name, the tourism body was limited to names not already taken up as domain names on the worldwide web, and 'Destination Tweed' was one of those.

The waterway known as Byrrill Creek appears to have become an early casualty of the council's controversial decision to dam it. According to the council's annual report released this week 'low-scale' riparian rehabilitation works were continued along the creek during the year as part of the council's natural environment action plan. 'The project is to be terminated,' it states without any explanation.
