Truck-stop plan riles residents

Murray Simpson

The residents of the sleepy bywater of Chinderah have woken to find a full-blown 24-hour highway truck stop about to be plonked in their midst - and they're hopping mad.

Outspoken caravan park resident Lynda Mack has accused the Tweed Shire Council of deliberately suppressing information about the true nature of an industrial development in Ozone Street.

application (DA) has been lodged with the council to create a public road and acoustic fencing to service a four-lot industrial subdivision in Ozone Street.

But she says the council threw a smokescreen over what was really in the wind for at least one of the industrial lots – a 24-hour BP highway service centre for north-bound traffic to mirror one already built on the southbound side at Kingscliff.

The cat was let out of the bag last week when the Roads and Traffic Authority confirmed in a letter to the council general manager Mike Rayner that a highway service centre had been spoken of for some time. planned for the site for at least six years.

Strategic site since 2005

RTA regional manager David Bell said the locality had been identified as a strategic site for a highway service centre in a study completed in 2005.

'The Far North Coast Regional Strategy considers it a suitable location and consistent with the RTA's function of promoting road safety through fatigue management,' said Mr Bell.

The RTA was responding to a request to attend a workshop at the council last week to discuss the subdivision.

The RTA declined to send a representative to the workshop which turned out to be a rowdy affair attended by a number of Chinderah residents and chaired by mayor Kevin Skinner.

Ms Mack, the president of the Tweed Heritage Caravan Park Residents Association, said she ran into an information brick wall while investigating an earlier DA for Ozone Street.

That DA, filed in 2009 by Planit Consultancy of Kingscliff for developers Wareema Pty Ltd, sought to concrete over an old cane drain/ waterway that ran down the notional 'paper' road known as Ozone Street to give access to the industrial site. The road ran past the caravan park and residents objected to the truck traffic it would generate and pointed out the She says an innocent-looking development cane drain/waterway had become a significant fish habitat.

> A public outcry forced the council to review the DA and an amended DA was lodged in May last year proposing a new access road running past the neighbouring Royal Pacific Caravan Park.

> Ms Mack, a retired mortgage broker, said she went to the council offices to inspect the earlier DA.

> 'To my surprise I noticed the correspondence attached to the DA referred to a highway service centre planned for Lot 1 of the subdivision.

> 'The council officer confirmed it had been

'I asked for photocopies of the correspondence, among other material.

'We waited hours for it to come back - but when we got home we found that correspondence had not been photocopied.

'I rang the council the next day and they agreed to let me look at the DA paperwork again.

'But this time the correspondence relating to the service centre had gone and was replaced with clean white photocopied paper - not the yellowing paper there was before.

'This time the council denied the earlier correspondence existed.

The Tweed Heritage residents have been joined by Royal Pacific park residents and adjoining neighbours who are horrified to discover their quiet streets are to play host to all-night highway truck traffic.

Coal gas titles cover half the shire

Murray Simpson

Nearly half the Tweed Shire is earmarked for coal seam gas exploration with enthusiastic support appearing to be provided by the NSW Department of Primary Industries (DPI).

An exploration title has already been granted to PNG Gas covering the western corner of the shire and spilling over into Kyogle and Lismore shires.

An application was also made six months ago by Macquarie Energy for a petroleum prospecting licence, which is a desktop study only.

But NSW DPI directed them to withdraw the application and progress directly to applying for a exploration licence.

Greens councillor Katie Milne said she had informal talks with Macquarie Energy and a company representative expressed surprise at the department's attitude in wanting Macquarie to go straight into on-the-ground test drilling.

Cr Milne said the Macquarie representative was under the impression the department was keen for the company to show commitment to exploration.

Macquarie Energy declined to comment further yesterday. The company, a subsidiary of the Macquarie Bank conglom-

Fears grow over coal seam drilling

The NSW state elections next month will be the target of a growing chorus of community concern about coal seam gas exploration.

A broad spectrum of opposition from farmers to environmentalists has banded together under the banner of the Lock the Gate Alliance (http://lockthegate.org.au).

The Alliance will use the election to voice alarm at the threat posed by coal seam gas exploration to the environment and the slap-dash application by government regulations.

High on the agenda is the use of hydraulic fracturing, known as fracking, during the exploration process in which highly toxic and carcinogenic subtances such as Benzene, Toluene, Ethylbenzene and erate, has two title applications, dubbed PELA 133 and 134.

Between them, the PNG and Macquarie licences cover all the region west of Mt Warning and include the Mebbin, Wollumbin and Limpinwood national parks.

Cr Milne said Macquarie had identified two significant seams in the region - the Ipswich seam that runs near Nimbin and Kyogle and the region round Kingaroy in south Queensland became the focus of national attention when traces of benzene and toluene were found in nearby groundwater forcing the suspension of activities at the Cougar Energy pilot coal gasification plant.

Xylene – the BTEX chemicals - are used. Last year the rich farming

Disciplinary action was taken against one government employee for failing to notify the public.

In the Tweed Valley, it is understood no explicit permission has been granted to current exploration title holder PNG Gas, or to title applicant Macquarie Energy, to use fracking, but that situation could change. In northern NSW two companies are actively drilling – Arrow Energy and Red Sky Energy.

Arrow, wholly owned by Shell and PetroChina, holds petroleum exploration licence (PEL) 445, which runs in a horseshoe shape from west of Casino and north of Lismore down to Evans Head.

Red Sky Energy is a small Perth-based public company active in NSW, Queensland and the Northern Territory. It conducted an exploration program at South Grafton and Bungawalbyn Creek in 1998, 2001 and 2004. It currently holds exploration permits for several PELs between Casino and Grafton through a 'tie-in' with Clarence Moreton Resources.

Neither has specific approval to use fracking.

Nymboida seam which is still being charted.

Cr Milne says it's important to note that under the Petroleum Act, national parks are excluded from exploration so are excluded from exploration title.

Macquarie's latest application, lodged just before Christin three to six months. Cr Milne said the assessment Creek.

would be done by the environmental arm of the DPI, rather than NSW Department for the Environment, Climate Change and Water.

She said Macquarie's initial drilling would be one to 12 holes 4.5 inches in diameter and up to 1,000 metres deep.

There are unconfirmed remas, is expected to be assessed ports that test drilling has begun on a farm near Tyalgum

Council snubs Cabarita park meeting

Luis Feliu

Tweed Shire Council has weight'. come under fire for ignoring residents' concerns after senior council staff failed to show up to controversial Cabarita beachfront caravan-park proposal late last year, but Mrs Lynch despite being invited to attend.

The Cabarita Residents Association says council is failing to adequately consult with residents, but council says it didn't want a bar of any 'protest' meeting, an accusation strenuously denied by association president group and have done nothing Cath Lynch.

The meeting last week drew a packed house of around 400 people to the Cabarita Sports Club and according to Mrs 'community engagement' strat-Lynch was organised as a community information session and meetings on major issues bebilled as such on printed flyers cause they were 'not the most distributed throughout the village before the meeting.

The NSW Land and Property Development Authority (LPMA) and the Tweed Coast Holiday Parks Reserve Trust van park on Crown land east of the Coast Road south of Norries Headland for up to 230 sites as well as a housing subdivision across the road.

Mrs Lynch said the holiday park on an 8.3 hectare site had come as a shock and disappointment as locals had been fighting the development since 1998 and council was fully aware of that opposition. The residential Sandalwood Estate project, for 37 homes and 'additional townhouses' on two sites covering around five hectares, is to be managed by the LPMA and is adjacent to an existing residential estate at the entrance to Sandalwood Avenue.

Meanwhile the trust and Mr Harding said. LPMA issued a press release in response to the meeting, with the trust's executive manager Richard Adams saying that some of the information given to the public was wrong.

He also said the proposed park was not opposite the mation forum where all sides declined and are also openly school but 130 metres to the south 'and further separated by the main road and generous buffer areas'.

> 'The idea that parents need to be concerned for their children's welfare should the development go ahead is absurd, he said.

The onsite shop also would be a small kiosk to provide basic needs for park residents and would not 'lock up' an economic benefit within the park.

'Quality homes'

LPMA Crown lands division general manager Graham Harding said the 'inference that the proposed Sandalwood housing estate would attract low income earners is completely incorrect' as it would 'provide quality homes and townhouses'.

'It proposes a medium density estate with a restriction of three storeys that fits in with the council's planning for the area,'

The public exhibition period for the plans close on Febuary 28. Copies of the plans are on display at Tweed Council civic centres at Tweed Heads and Murwillumbah and libraries at Mr Adams said council was Tweed Heads, Kingscliff and Murwillumbah.

Dear Mr Product Tester,

I love reading about all your adventures, you seem like a bloke who knows his stuff. Can you help me? Valentines Day is coming up I want to do something special for my special girl. Got any ideas?

Yours, Derek

Dear Derek.

You're right on the money with this one mate. If you do Valentines Day the rest of the year will be a breeze. How about a romantic picnic at Natural Bridge? First of all you need to buy a cute picnic basket (maybe a wicker one, old fashioned like, real romantic!) Show her you're a Sensitive New Age Guy. You can buy one at Outdoorism.

Then take it to one of the local delis (that's what I always do) - there's a few good ones around town - and get them to pack a really excellent picnic, you know, all the good cheeses and pate etc, oh and a bottle of wine (NOT BEER!). DON'T, I say DON'T, get snags and a bread roll, big mistake. Girls like all that fancy stuff. I guarantee you do this well and your life will be sweet. If things go as well as they should you'll still be there when night falls and you'll be able to take a nice romantic stroll to see the glow worms wink! Wink! This always works for me!

Good luck mate!

Your mate Tony

Bad law blamed for bad development

development has drawn the wrath of the Greens Party who say it would never have seen the light of day had it not been for the controversial 'developer friendly' part 3A of the NSW Planning Act.

Under part 3A the minister can approve any development anywhere in the state regardless of the local planning laws or its local impact, said Greens MP David Shoebridge during a visit to the Tweed last week.

Mr Shoebridge met concerned locals on the site of the 70-lot development at the mouth of the estuary with Tweed Greens candidate Andrea Vickers on Friday.

'The Tweed Shire Council is strongly opposed to this development on the estuarine flood plain and for good reason,' said Mr Shoebridge.

'It blocks natural water flows, threatens neighbouring properties with inundation and threatens local mangroves and salt bush.

'This is another example of the damaging effects of part 3A on local communities across NSW.

'The law, and the minister, must both go?

'Fracking is an extremely serious threat to our food security and water security. There's a real going controversy including | risk that fracking in Australia could contaminate not just local aquifers, but the Great Artesian Basin,' Ms Vickers said.

'Whether or not the toxic chemicals which have been forced into aquifers in the US are used here, rupturing the rock can cause contamination by methane and carcinogenic compounds found in coal seams. Are we really prepared to take this risk?'

Ms Vickers says the Greens are keeping their eye on applications for exploratory drilling licences in the Tweed area (see stories page 2) and calling for a moratorium on exploration until such a time as fracking can be proved to be safe. 'There's just too much at stake not to take a precautionary approach on this one,' she said.

Now replacement councillor quits Aboriginal advisory group

Luis Feliu and Ken Sapwell

Tweed Shire Council's Aboriginal Advisory Committee (AAC) remains mired in controversy more than six months after Greens councillor Katie Milne was axed as a delegate.

In a new twist to the curious saga, Cr Milne's replacement on the AAC, Joan van Lieshout (pictured, right), has now quit in protest over the way Cr Milne was removed.

In doing so she provided an explanation to AAC members which sheds a more illuminating light than the official version given for Cr Milne's removal.

'Made to cry'

Cr van Lieshout told them she supported a push to dump Cr Milne after another AAC delegate, Dot Holdom, told her that she had to go because she was upsetting members over development issues so much that some of them were made to cry.

'I decided I needed to put the record straight – partly because members couldn't understand why the council voted to remove her and partlv because some thought I was behind her removal,' Cr van Lieshout said.

Her surprise resignation cleared the way for a contest for the vacant spot between Cr Milne and Mayor Kevin Skinner at the last council meeting, which Cr Skinner won in a 4-3 vote with the support of Crs Holdom, Polglase and Phil Youngblutt.

Mystery move

Cr Milne's sacking has been shrouded in mystery ever since it was initiated in a mayoral minute by then mayor Warren Polglase last May.

Cr Polglase suggested a shake-up was necessary because the AAC was dysfunctional, but refused to give reasons to explain how Cr Milne's sacking could get it back on track.

The move surprised many AAC members who believed they enjoyed a good working relationship with Cr Milne who was appointed a delegate when the new council was elected.

They also took exception to on the AAC's request, stating the wording of the mayoral in a brief report to council that minute, forcing Cr Polglase at 'it would be inappropriate to a subsequent council meeting take any action outside of the to retract and apologise for planning process." reasons he initially gave for the surprise shake-up.

The AAC has moved on. Why does Cr van Lieshout continue to have a groundhog day? It was not me that refused to read the Aboriginal statement - and that is what started all of this I believe,' she said, referring to Cr van Lieshout's rejection at a meeting in her previous role as mayor to read out the Aboriginal welcome statement.

'I am left very concerned as to why Cr van Lieshout is fixated with dragging in the AAC community members... I don't want to get into a public slanging match here, I don't want to feed another person's personal belief as to how they view the world.

Tonight's meeting (Thursday, February 10) follows a series of incidents in the small village following a party at Tyalgum Hall on January 15, which attracted up to 100 youths.

One of the meeting's organisers, Bruce Bartrim, said things had apparently turned rowdy during the night, with school buildings graffitied and a public telephone vandalised.

Tyalgum residents are taking a local gallery and garage in Coolman Street, which had two of its windows smashed.

When a group of young Casuarina residents came up with the idea of a carwash to help raise funds for Queensland flood victims, they never imagined their efforts would result in a tally of more than $20,000.

After spending the day helping clear debris with floodaffected residents in Brisbane last month, Tarnva Sim said her sons Josh, 14, and Zac, 12, were inspired to do more. Ms Sim said her sons had initially been reluctant to vol- volved and phone book pubthey would be paid for their

The boys teamed up with four other friends to organise the carwash, with local businesses also lending their support. They were joined by 30 kids on the day, aged between seven and 14, who helped wash 79 cars.

Author opens up about love and dying

Kate McIntosh

After being diagnosed with cancer five years ago Judith Lindsay was forced to confront the inevitability of her own mortality.

Searching for an outlet, she began channelling her emotions in writing throughout her treatment and recovery.

What began as a journal evolved into Judith's first novel, Love in Dying.

Inspired by her own personal journey towards healing, the book examines the concepts of love, life and death through the eyes of central character Sarah who is dying of cancer.

'It's a fairly ordinary book, but it asks some pretty profound questions,' the Murwillumbah resident says.

Judith concedes that its themes are confronting ones.

'Most of us don't really want to look Judith Lindsay pictured by Jeff Dawson very deeply at the prospect of dying,' she said.

'It's not so much being frightened of death, but of wasting time.'

She says it often takes a life-threatening Rather than grabbing them as lessons, tell you how-to,' she said.

often we go through life as a victim of circumstance?

In what is another central theme in her book, Judith says that embracing all of life's experiences - good and bad - can make for a more fulfilling life.

A vegetarian for the past 40 years, Judith is a strong advocate for alternative therapies and was involved in support groups for cancer sufferers long before her own diagnosis.

When faced with her own cancer battle, she also took a holistic approach, encompassing healing techniques for the mind, body and spirit.

Originally from London, Judith left to backpack around Europe and Asia, eventually settling in Australia.

Since then she has turned her hand to retail, audiology, alternative healing, and goat farming. Now in her 70s, Judith remains a regular visitor to India.

She describes writing the book as a cathartic experience and hopes it will help others gain new insight into their own lives.

A full-time on-site caretaker and a security firm have been appointed to keep an eye over the derelict Terranora hilltop clubhouse and deter vandals.

The move followed a recent warning by council that it would demolish the building if found to be structurally unsound and follows a string of complaints by surrounding residents of vandalism.

Ignoring the community

The non-appearance by senior council officers at the recent public meeting to discuss controversial proposals for a caravan park and residential subdivision south of Norries Headland is disturbing. Local officials ignoring the community strikes at the core of democratic process and good governance and appears to be a new and worrying trend of council shirking its responsibilities.

General manager Mike Rayner excused the no-show by quoting a new council policy for community engagement which apparently does not recommend attending public meetings on major issues because they were 'not the most effective way to inform and involve the community'. Have we missed something here? Surely the most effective way to communicate with the public is to engage them directly at such meetings. It's called trying to 'see eye to eye' and it can work miracles in conflict resolution.

Officers should front up to these meetings to hear first hand what locals say about developments affecting their lives and amenity. We suggest council scrap this new plan which has obviously failed at the first hurdle.

On every council issue, officers should be able to explain their actions to ratepayers and residents rather than use the council's weekly newsletter as a means to get their message out. They have to be there to answer questions as best they can, to assuage fears the public may have over some issue or development. It's called transparency and the more officers retreat from their community the more distrust is sown.

This new move to bar officers from such meetings appears to be aimed squarely at sparing them from the slightest criticism. Is there a fear they may be set upon or shouted down? In the history of council consulting the community via meetings, as far as we're aware there have not been any ugly incidents, so what are they running from? It seems like they're ducking for cover, a gutless way of dealing with the public.

Six months ago, council proposed a new randomly chosen online panel of 800 Tweed residents and ratepayers which they dubbed a 'citizens' panel' to engage the community in its decisions. Of course this idea was roundly ridiculed and laughed off as just another way of avoiding proper consultation with locals.

The then mayor extolled the strategy as making the most of 'online engagement' but added that 'face-to-face' consultation would also be part of it. Well, looks like there's no such face-to-face consultation any more, and this strategy appears to be an abject failure.

A reader involved in a council/community advisory group recently tried to make an appointment with officers to talk over an issue but was refused. Distancing themselves from the community is certainly no way to run local government.

The pundits have spent much of the climatically disrupted holiday period brooding about what has become encapsulated as The Gillard Problem, and now they are preparing to deliver the verdicts.

This column is being written before the ABC's Four Corners delivers its salvo, but there have been enough sighting shots to give a pretty fair idea of the general nature of the pursuit.

Tony Abbott rather set the tone in his description of Julia Gillard's delivery as 'wooden'; this summed up a general feeling that she was hopelessly upstaged by the Queensland preshow when nature went mad in the special effects department.

David Williamson elaborated: Gillard simply did not have the dramatic skills needed to play the part of prime ria or precedents by which one minister. By this he appeared to mean that she was unable to convincingly fake sincerity, which the playwright implied was the be-all and end-all of statesmanship.

Even with the departure of Lindsay Tanner and John Faulkner, the front bench remains strong certainly a lot stronger than its opposition counterparts.

> But in the absence of genuine leadership it appears to be dithering. With the exception of the indefatigable Treasurer, Wayne Swan, ministers have barely been visible during the break. And once this sort of malaise sets in, it tends to be self perpetuating, particularly in the media; everything that happens is seen as an attempt at salvage, as an act of desperation or the cynical application of spin.

The situation is not yet irrevocable, but it is becoming very dire. The verdict on Gillard may well be premature; six months is not much time for her to establish herself, all grand plan, the ability to especially considering the undeal with the complex, long expected events which have disrupted her anticipated rest and recuperation during the holiday period. Cyclone Yasi Cassowary Appea

Right now, we need your help to save the Cassowaries of Mission Beach in Far North Queensland. Their rainforest home has been devastated by Cyclone Yasi and they face starvation unless we act now. Rainforest Rescue is helping to provide food for the Cassowaries and is restoring their rainforest habitat.

Cyclone Yasi has stripped the rainforest trees bare. Once the Cassowaries have eaten the fallen rainforest fruit, they will be forced to leave the forest in search of food. This could be disastrous for the already dwindling population.

In the aftermath of Cyclone Larry in 2006, a large number of Cassowaries were hit by vehicles or attacked by dogs once they left the forest. One-third of the Cassowary population died of starvation.

Please help to save this magnificent species. They are already threatened with extinction and it is estimated that only 1,000 remain in the wild.

Please donate now and help fund the food for these iconic rainforest birds. The food will be placed at remote feeding stations to ensure that the Cassowaries do not wander into town and get hit by cars.

We are also planting trees to provide essential Cassowary habitat and purchasing rainforest properties to ensure Cassowary habitat is protected.

Help feed the Cassowaries of Mission Beach in the aftermath of Cyclone Yasi. $25 will provide Cassowary food for one day and ensure the survival of this endangered species.

How lucky were we in the Tweed area to miss out on the record flooding. We shouldn't get complacent and, taking a line from the Toowoomba debacle, perhaps we should have another look at overdevelopment like that planned for Bilambil Heights that is called 'The Rise'.

To see huge torrents of water rushing downhill, washing away cars and people was frightening to say the least and who's to say it couldn't happen up there with all that tar and cement and similar conditions? We should also identify low-lying areas around Tweed Heads itself and have heaps of sandbags stored in readiness just in case. Our roads are a disgrace now so why not build roads that can take heavy rain conditions without damage; after all if you are going to jack up our rates by 30 per cent safe roads should be paramount.

Censoring art

It would seem that art censorship is alive and well in the Tweed Shire Council. My painting 'Mother and Babies' (an image of a mother koala looking lovingly at her young) was offered freely on loan to the council to add some creative life to the council chambers. I have subsequently heard, through a third party, that the council has rejected my offer. The council did not even have the courtesy to contact me directly so that I can pick up my painting. This is disgraceful and disrespectful behaviour where the council is concerned.

Apparently, again through a third source, the reason given for not receiving my painting is that the council is afraid it will set a precedent for other artists to hang their work in the chamber. This seems to be a poor excuse as the chamber already displays a tired-looking portrait of Her Maj and one piece of artwork, an amateurish interpretation of a bulldog, which does nothing to enhance the ambience of the chamber. At some point in the dim distant past, the canine creation managed to find itself on the wall, where it has remained. I would have thought, if the council's excuse could it be that a certain ex-ex mayor is biased against the artist involved?

JUDITH LINDSAY

Judith Lindsay, author of Love in Dying, is grateful for the life she has enjoyed. No-one travels through life without experiencing challenges and she believes all challenges give us a chance to build character.

Several years ago, Judith was diagnosed with cancer. Because of her personal belief in natural medicine, she combined both allopathic and natural therapies in her recovery.

As a distraction from her own cancer experience, and to allow herself to become a witness to her process rather than a participant, and eventually for her own cathartic benefit, she felt the need to put forward the theory in an easy-to-relateto novel form; choosing to die can also be a success story. Perceiving oneself as ordinary is not an obstacle when aspiring to reach the extraordinary goal; thus the book Love in Dying.

WOW'S BACK AT MURWILLUMBAH TAFE

WOW (Work Opportunities for Women) is back at Murwillumbah TAFE after a ten-year absence. WOW is for women wanting to return to study and supports students to develop core employability and vocational skills.

Marilyn Lowe, Head Teacher said; 'WOW will offer women an opportunity to explore work and/or further study pathways. It is a Certificate 1 course and students learn in a friendly and supportive environment.'

Yvonne Rose of Pottsville completed a WOW course in 1998 and it changed her life. After leaving the workforce to raise a family Yvonne really wanted a career change but wasn't sure of what she wanted to do and how to attain the relevant skills.

'WOW gave me an opportunity to take six months out to think about what I really wanted to do. The WOW course used personality profiling techniques that identified my employment strengths and with help from the TAFE staff I was able to match my skills to a career path,' said Yvonne.

On completion of her WOW course Yvonne undertook further studies in Library and Information Technology and gained employment as library Technician at Tweed libraries. Yvonne now works as a librarian at Murwillumbah and Kingscliff TAFE.

WOW starts soon. For more information contact Marilyn Lowe on 02 6672 0810 or Murwillumbah Campus 6672 0800.

Crystal Creek Public School

Principal Brad Davis Brad Davis has been Principal of Crystal Creek Primary for over two years. He began his teaching career teaching in Western NSW but has spent the last fifteen years raising his family and teaching in the Murwillumbah area.

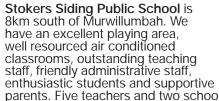

Crystal Creek Primary prides itself on maintaining meaningful relationships with students, parents and staff. Students learn better when they are happy and feel safe. This is achieved through providing a positive learning environment based on mutual respect, kindness and fun.

Along with the extensive Literacy and Numeracy programs Crystal Creek Primary has a strong emphasis on technology, environmental and health and fitness projects. Students are being prepared for success, health and happiness into adulthood. Living a healthy and active lifestyle and caring for our environment are infused into the culture of the school. A focus on technology gives students the confidence and skills needed to become lifelong learners.

Cuba Gooding Jr reporting on the never-ending and 8.30 Movie: The Longest Yard much more intense cyclones on (M 2005) US comedy. Stars planet Jupiter. Adam Sandler . Armchairdissent 10.50 Movie: The Condemned (AV

Welcome to the new year of the Golden Rabbit, traditionally a congenial, restorative twelve months on the tail of the fiery Tiger. This one's predicted as a calm respite before the dramatic roar of 2012's Dragon year ...

ARIES: Rabbit hates arguments and avoids competitive situations, being a defensive player who always maintains more than one escape route. So don't dismiss this year's people as pushovers, and forget that confrontational Aries approach: this year favours persuasive communication and diplomatic negotiation. Honey instead of chili.

TAURUS: Your boss planet Venus is favoured in a Rabbit year, said to be excellent for arts grants. Also for improving domestic aesthetics, because self-indulgent Bunny likes to spend on home comforts. But for personal growth this year needs the balance of active compassion towards those less fortunate.

GEMINI: In the year of the bucktoothed hustler people tend to avoid dealing with difficult issues and prefer quantity to quality, hopping round lots of people without letting anyone too close. Sound like someone you know? Whatever, this year adores and rewards your organisation, communication and management skills.

CANCER: Introspective, security conscious Rabbit places this year's focus on friends, family and home entertaining, nurturing, nesting, cuddling and snuggling – could it get any more Cancerian? A sharp bargainer with a keen eye for a canny deal, the Rabbit's astute and prudent in money matters too.

LEO: Also known as the Cat, convivial Bunny loves the material world's toys, joys and goodies - its year's traditionally one of taking it easy and shelving unpleasant realities. But all play and no work makes a lazy Leo, and others do look to you for leadership, Majesty...

VIRGO: The long eared carrot cruncher's year is considered a leisurely, restorative year for self stressing Virgos. Your natural talents of style, refinement, diplomacy and discretion will be valued, but take a note to self: If others aren't interested in addressing their problems, why should you?

LIBRA: Rabbit avoids unpleasantness by withdrawing, and postpones disagreeable tasks as long as possible sound familiar? Beauty loving, fashionable Bunnies love fluffing up, and this year prizes elegance, glamour and style, so if you need to look gorgeous on a budget who can do that better than you?

SCORPIO: Determined, sophisticated, inscrutable, ruthlessly charming, confident of its own abilities to get what it wants: Rabbit shares many Scorpionic qualities. Its year is about looking after your own and loved ones' interests. so what magic rabbit will you produce out of this year's existential hat?

SAGITTARIUS: Free ranging Rabbit's quick-witted, articulate and resilient so even if this year sets a trap, you'll talk your way out of getting stewed with prunes. Overall it's a year for doing what makes your heart happy, and these small furry fornicators are notorious for..

CAPRICORN: The Metal element gives ol' Floppy Ears an extra edge, and this year benefits from cautious controlled, conservative handling of finances with success more likely if others are rigorously assessed, fine print thoroughly scrutinised and life's glitches and bitches approached in an organised, orderly way.

AQUARIUS: Clever Rabbit can talk itself into or out of most situations, intuitively avoiding harm to itself, something I know you'll relate to. This year sees you popular as always, with a core group of mily and friends to help you back to balance if you tilt off-centre.

PISCES: Beneath its endearing, cuddly exterior, wilv Rabbit's a resourceful survivor. Like you, the cunning cottontail's adept at getting its own way by negotiating and if necessary manipulating. Clever at bending the rules, this imaginative Rabbit year helps you find creative ways around red tape and regulations.

Busting Out

It's the album that lead singer Mason Rack says breaks all the genre rules – a classic mix of heavy rock, blues, jazz and roots complemented by the modern flavours of country punk, jazz, alternative rock and reggae funk. Mason Rack Band is back – with a new look and the fresh and raucous studio album Limits of Grip. Mason Rack Band pours out alt-rock tunes influenced by blues, southern stomp, swamp, rock and roots. Their music is a collection of rock and blues with flashes of Tom Waits and Jimi Hendrix, and roots extending to Ben Harper. Throw in a slide guitar, a rocking bluesy bass, massive drum percussion and the result is a spectacular kaleidoscope of musical genres. Originating from the Gold Coast, the Mason Rack Band is renowned for its amazing stage performances that have had punters kicking up their heels for years – mixed with an interactive percussion set that involves all three band members and the crowd. Mason Rack is a natural entertainer, blessed with a tapestry of slide guitar, wild 'broken glass' vocals and story-fuelled blues rock. Mason has played alongside artists like Xavier Rudd, Ben Harper, Jack Johnson, Buddy Guy, Keith Urban, John Foggarty, Tony Joe White, Jimmy Barnes, Phil Emmanuel and Tex Perkins amongst others. The Limits of Grip album launch is at the Coolangatta Hotel on Friday.

Hi energy on the Beam

The Beam has found a recipe that will create an exciting and fun-filled atmosphere. By mixing Top 40 hits with modern pop/ rock and classic tunes they are sure to suit every occasion and make The Beam a duo to remember. Consisting of two well-seasoned musicians, Jess and Chris, The Beam is an extremely energetic and hard- working duo and have performed at venues individually and together throughout Brisbane, Ipswich, Gold Coast, Sunshine Coast, and rural Queensland. They have guaranteed to create a cool atmosphere with melodic guitars and vocals and get the party started with rockin' tunes. Sunday at Currumbin RSL.

Just down the Laneway

Paul Hannan and Louise O'Reilly met and bonded over an eclectic crossing of folk and Six). Imagine Lindsey Buckingham and Gillian Welch meeting in a down-town pool hall, setting off on a road trip and stopping only for tea, oranges, creek swims and tequila; this journey of two guitars and voices heading out country has an immediate familiarity that jumps out at you on first listen, before the incredible depth of songwriting sinks in.

Most keen to share their sound with listeners in the flesh, Laneway have performed live across the east coast. They are no stranger to festivals. Winners of the Whittlesea Country Music Festival's Best Duo Talent, headliners of the Brunswick 11 Spanish Angels City Country Music Festival and a part of music programs at Peats Ridge and Tablelands Folk Festival, Laneway are establishing a diverse and growing fan base. They play the Sheoak Shack on Saturday.

It's Red enough

Having worked alongside some of Australia's premier musical artists, the dynamic duo Red Bantoo are bursting onto the Australian music scene with a star-studded debut. Collaborations over the years with the likes of Regurgitator, Resin Dogs and The Bird have seen Red Bantoo grace stages like the legendary Glastonbury Festival to our very own Big Day Out. Their debut album Yesterday to the Rescue is the latest gem, released through the always reliable Hydrofunk Records. A potent fusion of electronica, jazz and beat-driven, soulful tones, Red Bantoo are taking their captivating live show around the country on a string of album launch dates in the coming months. Producer Si Fixion aka Simon Durrington and keyboard maestro Dan Brown are the eclectic and boundary-pushing duo that is Red Bantoo. Over the years they have been garnering the attention of some Australian industry heavyweights including El Gusto of Hermitude and Dave Atkins of Wolfmother/Resin Dogs fame who have both worked on tracks from the album. In conjunction with such recognised talent, Red Bantoo have also enlisted a string of local artists country traditions in 2007. As Laneway, the pair's enviable and relaxed attention to old and new combines a love of harmony, a touch of psychedelia and a pop sensibility. Formerly an acoustic harmony-based duo, they expanded their sound for the record with the help of some dear and talented friends, Tom Butts (True Live) and Fingers Malone (The Fingers Malone Ensemble, Sex Fox

HIGH RENT LOW LIF

Every couple of weeks I'll get an email or text from a friend looking for single accommodation. I got one from a good friend a few months ago informing me that her landlord had requested she vacate her studio by Christmas. It's not a good time to be without a crash pad – just ask Mary and Joseph.

My friend's landlord was wanting to put the rent up by $100 per week. As a person on a minimum income this would have meant that as a single person she would have been paying $300 per week. Apart from smuggling in backpackers and subletting her linen press as bunk beds it wasn't ever going to be possible for her to maintain that sort of rent.

Finding somewhere affordable to live in this region is like an extreme sport. For every rental advertised there are dozens of people lining up for a shot, armed with references, bank statements and affirmations that they hope give them an edge. It's horrible to see people pitted against each other trying to prove their worth. We live in a tourist destination. Our housing prices are ridiculous, and thus so are our rents.

My partner and I are about to start building in the next six months. As a family with five kids, we're looking at having to build a six-bedroom house. When we were drawing up the plans we thought, well, why not build a granny flat to offset the mortgage. It seemed like a winwin idea. We'd be providing affordable housing for someone in the community with a burning desire to live in the shadow of a large noisy family from toddler to teenagers while at the same time reducing our hefty re-payments. While it's now possible and encouraged to put a granny flat on your property, it turns out that the council contributions are prohibitive. It's somewhere in the vicinity of $30,000 for what's then seen as a 'dual occupancy'.

So what's the point? We'll be financially disadvantaged more if we build a studio. Consequently most of the shire's single people are forking out $200 a week for the privilege of living in an airless garage. It's pretty humiliating being 50 years old and living in a bedsit. Single lodgings, namely one-bedroom studios, are the highest-sought accommodation types. There are people who haven't partnered; there are people between partners; people with partners but who need their own space; people who've separated and have halved their income and have their kids two days a week; there are people who've tired of the endless headache of share housing; and people whose budgets just don't stretch much past $200 per week.

Ironically there are plans afoot to turn the Brunswick Heads squash centre into, well, into another sort of squash centre: numerous one- and two-bedroom units. While I can see the need for affordable housing, shouldn't it also be liveable? Wouldn't it be a bit like a retirement village? If the council dropped its $30,000 contribution and encouraged new home builders and people dwelling on substantial blocks or properties to build attractive, safe, legal dwellings, then a huge part of our community would have their housing problem solved. In the meantime, I have a box in my backyard that I cover with a piece of tarp that's available to rent at a bargain rate of $180 per week. No pets. No drinking. No smoking - you could set fire to the box. And I haven't insured it because it's not really legal. The only catch is I need you to vacate for six weeks every Christmas while I let it as holiday accommodation for $2000/wk to a bunch of dickheads from Sydney. References required.

from the Byron Bay area to effectively create a showcase of local talent including vocalists Sonia Leeson and Shelly Hughes with Stuart Currie on the trombone and James Howard on saxophone. Created in the perfect beachside backdrop, Yesterday to the Rescue is an album made to chill to that still has a beat-driven heaviness. Reminiscent of artists like St Germain and Mo Horizons, the handpicked vintage samples and crafty beats combine vibrant live elements for a modern, innovative and atmospheric sound. The first single from this very suave, down-tempo album is the appropriately titled Breeze. A soundtrack for summer with a distinctly reggae feel, this is no surprise considering the golden beaches of Byron Bay where the song was written. This track is a perfect example of the wealth of talent that appears across the album. Live Red Bantoo brings their years of experience to the table resulting in a dance floor friendly and rich musical experience. The guys take a seasoned mixture of sequenced and live music to create sets that are guaranteed to impress. Yesterday to the Rescue is a highly talented and original debut. With it, Red Bantoo combine world-class talent while distilling the essence of the Byron Bay area to cre-

Songwriters on the Songline

Ukitopia Arts Collective presents Songwriters on the Songline in the atmospheric Uki Holy Trinity Church with Rich Bell at the mixing desk. This is the first event in a season of Songline events in 2011 and they are excited to present the ethereal and glamorous Renee Searles and, direct from Woodford sharing his spiritual music, Andy Copeman.

Renee Searles writes elegant sepia-tinged songs of love, longing and desire, bringing to the stage a touch of glamour and mystique from a bygone era. Ethereal, romantic and bewitching, her music weaves a tapestry of lush melodies, lilting poetry and cheeky old-timey blues. Accompanied by Oles Krolikowski and Marcus Patterson on guitars and her tiny friend the ukulele, Renee leads her audience on a journey into the vulnerable places we all share, breathing life into the lost words of the human heart.

Andy Copeman sings songs from the heart... songs of love, passion, spirit, connection to the Earth and connection to others. After many years in the folk, world and rock scenes trying unsuccessfully to change the world by telling people how bad things are, he is now successfully changing the world by telling people how good things are, and how amazing they can be. He's a multi-instrumentalist, singer, composer, recording engineer and producer, video artist, sound healer, shamanic practitioner and sweatlodge facilitator based in Maleny, where he and his partner Laurel Hefferon run a centre of excellence in love, light, music and healing called Awakening Centre. His music is full of influences from ancient Celts, the Middle East, Eastern and Northern Europe and beyond, with touches of jazz, rock, reggae, electronica, mantra and poetry. The Arts

The Roxy Gallery

Dreaming of Things to Come is an exhibition of works by local Aboriginal artists and brothers, Michael and Joey Davis, at The Roxy Gallery, Kyogle.

Both Michael and Joey create images that reflect their Aboriginal identity and heritage. Growing up in the Stoney Chute Aboriginal community (Cedar Point) they listened to stories, told by their elders, that they now reflect on through painting.

This exhibition also includes works by other Aboriginal artists such as Lewis Walker. All these men have a strong connection to this area and are passionate about keeping their ancestral heritage alive through the works they create.

Dreaming of Things to Come is open until March 5. The Roxy Gallery is happy to provide an exhibition venue for local Aboriginal artists to display their works.

The Roxy Gallery, 143 Summerland Way, Kyogle, phone 6632 3518.

Tweed River Art Gallery

A raft of seven exciting and stimulating exhibitions are on show this month at the Tweed River Art Gallery, Murwillumbah. Not to be missed is Surface Tension: the art of Euan Macleod 1991 - 2009 featuring forty-seven powerful paintings by one of Australia's most acclaimed artists. Gallery visitors are really enjoying viewing A Stitch in Time, 364 delightful collages Heather Matthew has created as a daily journal. On Sunday 20 February 10.30am to 3pm you are invited to join Heather in the Gallery foyer to create a small collage with materials provided, a free event for adults and children. Also on show is a wide range of prints, amazing glass sculptures by David Rousell and portraits from the Collection. Finish your visit with a coffee in the Gallery Café while enjoying the glorious views.

Tweed River Art Gallery, 2 Mistral Rd, Murwillumbah, phone: 6670 2790.

Gold Coast Art Gallery

The intertwining of human and animal form provide the inspiration for the next instalment in the ever-evolving

Kennedy-Altoft. Offspring will be exhibited alongside the 12 Degrees of Latitude exhibition at the Gold Coast Art Gallery in February. To share wall-space with the likes of well-known Australian artists such as Judy Watson, Gordon Bennett, Sidney Nolan and Margaret Olley among many others, Kennedy-Altoft has really come into her own. Offspring marries the well-known Australian native bird, the magpie, with her interpretations of family, juxtapositioning her role as a mother by assuming the identity of the magpie defending her 'nest', and playing out the mother/child relationship in new and exciting ways. The artist subjects childhood, leaving the nest, socialising, domestic life with animals – all come alive creating a mischievous, skilful, crafted portrayal on canvas. This exhibition will be the eighth individual showing for Kennedy-Altoft who already has some very significant achievements under her belt such as residencies in Thailand and 19 Karen and over 40 appearances in group shows across regional Queensland, Brisbane and the Gold Coast. 12 Degrees of Latitude is the first exhibition to curate works specifically from Queensland's regional art galleries and university collections and has been on tour throughout Queensland in 2009 and 2010. The exhibition will be on show at the Gold Coast Art Gallery Bundall Rd, Surfers Paradise from February 12 until April 3.

The Byron Arts Trail further enhances Byron Bay's reputation as an artistic and vibrant community. Come and experience being part of the freedom of creative expression that this Shire is renowned for. So come along to one, of the forthcoming exhibitions and show your support for genuine local creativity.

Collect your Arts Trail guide from participating galleries and the Byron Visitors Centre or call and we can post one out to you. Galleries included in the trail are:

Creative community unites in Byron Bay

The Arts Trail is in its second year and has just released its up-to-date guide to the art galleries, showrooms and studios of the Byron Arts and Industry Park. It is not just a flyer anymore but a booklet, where there is a page of information on each creative outlet.

The Byron Arts Trail was created two years ago to give visitors a glimpse into this unique environment and an opportunity to purchase a oneoff work of art directly from the source. These include glass, paintings, sculpture, fashion design, jewellery and a host of others as well. Located only 3km from the centre of town, the Byron Arts and Industry Park is where all the creativity is happening. The snazzy new-looking brochure has a map at the centre which will guide you to the restaurants,

His Chris is Cooked

Popular local three-piece, the Chris Cook Band, has a distinctive and inimitable style, infectious enthusiasm and an extensive repertoire. Local multi-instrumentalist and songwriter Chris Cook plays fast and furious lead guitar, highly polished bluegrass banjo and energetic country fiddle accompanied by double bass and drums. The Chris Cook Band brings a blend of country rock/ country fusion - popular dance tunes, covers and original songs - an entertaining high-energy performance which is delighting audiences all over the north coast (and beyond). They are proving to be a band which will hold the crowd and crowds are returning to see the band deliver time and time again. The Murwillumbah RSL Club on Friday.

A gremlin found its way into the computer of the Cabarita Beach Bowls Club's record keeper, and last week The Echo was sent an innacurate final update result for the Australia Day event, so to set the record straight ...

The Annual Australia Day Carnival at the Cabarita Beach Bowls Club attracted 32 men's teams and 10 women's teams who vied for total prize money of $2,000. Congratulations on their efforts for the day go to chicks Gwen Coustley and Clare Hill pictured, who were the overall winners from all the teams of this event with a score of 6 + 30; they were of course also the winners of the ladies' section. Second place overall went to blokes Barry Venner and Ian Crabb who scored 6 + 29 and were winners of the men's section. Congratulations also to Robyn Creedon and Valerie Dudley who were placed fourth overall with a score of 6 + 19.

My mate Richard Creighton came down from the Sunshine Coast with his boat on the weekend and we went crazy, heading to just about every bream spot we could think of. We were both using exactly the same gear but for some reason Richard was catching an impressive amount of legal bream while I struggled to get a fish.

It came down to lure choice and my surface lure was an atomic hardz in 'Ghost Gill' colour, while Ric used a Berkley lure that looked like a miniature 'Sammy'. The colour was the key as often our lures would land less than a metre apart; we were using the same retrieval but my lure went untouched while his yellow/red coloured lure got smashed time and time again.

The biggest fish were caught at a spot we call the 'Pink Flamingo' just down from PKG's. You have to check out the lure Dicky used, hanging out from the monster bream's mouth.

Painters cut carbon emissions use new heat-reflective coatings technology this summer to help cut carbon emissions. According to not-for-profit program GreenPainters, this technology should be considered as a way to to significantly increase building energy efficiency, by cutting cooling costs.

'Nano-ceramic paint technology is one of the most significant advances in the coatings industry,' says Daniel Wurm, GreenPainters Manager. 'It means that we can cut cooling always result in higher refleccosts of a building by up to 40 per cent, simply by helping the also offer significant results building reflect solar radiation before it causes heat build-up inside. Backburner

A guided residents tour of the proposed site for a new and controversial caravan park south of Norries Headland at Bogangar/Cabarita was well attended with around 60 people enjoying the natural regeneration that has taken place there over the past years. The Land and Property Management Authority and the Tweed Coast Holiday Parks Reserves Trust insist, through a public-relations company, on telling us that the land is mostly a degraded sand-mining site anyway and the only good use for it is a caravan park. Well, the locals beg to differ; it's a site to behold now, with all the native regrowth they saw there including stag horns, callitris pines and other rare and interesting plants, as well as animals such as the green sea turtle, glossy black cockatoo, swamp wallabies local dunecare group has been refused permission to work in has regenerated, with many older large trees and a canopy forming in places.

...a journey into the Spiritual Science of Rudolf Steiner...

Some of the themes explored in the course are:

The Quest for Meaning. The Elements. The Temperaments. Sacred Geometry. The Origins of the Earth & Humanity. The Evolution of Consciousness. Christology. Mystery Schools & Mystery Centres. The Birth of Modern Consciousness in the Renaissance. The Search for the Holy Grail. Life Phases: an Exploration of Biography.

of adult education based on the work of Rudolf Steiner. Through a deepened understanding of the inner workings of the world and ourselves, inner development and soul transformation are brought about. This in turn leads to an enhanced capacity to transform the outer world.

Juniors/adults/seniors/disabled

The course consists of lectures, discussions and workshops which are expanded through artistic experiences in music, painting, sculpture, story telling, speech, drama, craft and the new art of eurythmy. No previous artistic experience is necessary. The emphasis of the course is away from competition and is focused on individual growth. The course aims to teach through the heart, hand and mind and to bring our efforts to fruition through love of the deed. GRAIL QUEST is also the prerequisite for the Steiner Teacher Training programme.
