

Bangalow loses a much loved identity

Lesley Patterson

Bangalow identity Kaye Hall was one of life's fighters, but one battle she couldn't win was her three year struggle with lung cancer. Last Friday night Kaye died at 57 years of age after spending her last days in Byron Bay Hospital.

'Kaye died without any fear of death,' said her sister Helen Bebbington, 'she knew her time was up. She didn't want to leave her kids but she was so accepting of her illness.'

'Up until Friday she was still in good spirits and laughing. She was someone who loved life but she didn't want to leave it,' Helen told The Echo. 'She had a lot of heartache in her life, with [husband] Terry dying, but she told me she had pretty much done everything she wanted to.'

Kaye will be most widely remembered as a tireless worker for the Bangalow community and a writer for the Bangalow Heartbeat and The Byron Shire Echo.

Earlier this year she was named the Ballina Electorate's Woman of the Year for her volunteer work for the Bangalow Chamber of Commerce, the Christmas Eve Carnival, the Lions Club and Billycart Derby.

'She was a great organiser for fundraising events for a whole range of good purposes,' said Ballina MP Don Page, who nominated Kaye as Woman of the Year. Mr Page accompanied Kaye to Government House to meet the Premier for the awards ceremony, and despite her illness she was still fighting for her local community.

'She told the Premier we wanted out train back,' said Mr Page. 'She was a very special person.'

Her role as mother to her three children, Amy, Ben and Tom was also an important part of her life, as were her relationships with her brothers and sisters. Tragedy struck Kaye's life early when her husband Terry died suddenly on New Years Day 1996, after just 12 years of marriage.

The eldest of five children, Kaye moved to Bangalow when she she was a young girl. The bright lights of Sydney drew her away for a while, but after the excitement of overseas travel and a good job paled she returned to settle down in her home town and raise a family.

Increasing awareness of cancer and its treatment was a priority for Kaye during the past few years. Bangalow's inaugural Relay for Life raised around $65,000 for the Cancer Council and Kaye's involvement ensured the event was 'electric', according to Carolyn Forbes from the Cancer Council. Michael Malloy from the Bangalow Chamber of Commerce described it as 'one of the most successful community events ever held in Bangalow'.

Kaye's children and family will undoubtedly miss her, and the passing of Kaye Hall will also leave a big hole in the Bangalow community. A funeral for family and friends will be held Tuesday this week at 2.30pm at Bangalow Catholic Church.

A way to go in journey of healing

Alex McAuley

The Byron Community and Cultural Centre came alive last Friday with an enthusiastic group of people who gathered to celebrate reconciliation with a Journey of Healing Day hosted by Sisters for Reconciliation and the Arakwal Corporation.

A packed program of traditional Arakwal dance, ceremony, art and craft intermingled with guest speakers and performance from local school children created a vibrant atmosphere in which to reflect on the progress that is being made in our journey of reconciliation. With indigenous and non indigenous Australians represented equally, the possibilities of real progress towards reconciliation were almost tangible.

The theme for this year's Reconciliation Week was 'Take The Next Step', and

this was reiterated in a talk by Professor Judy Atkinson of Gnibi College at Southern Cross University. Following a delightful performance from Kindergarten and Year 1 children from St Finbarrs Catholic School - which included audience participation in a 'knee trembling' number that brought the house down - and just as everyone was beginning to feel warm and fuzzy about how well we are doing in our journey of healing, Prof Atkinson gave us a somewhat brutal reminder that there is still a long way to go. 'I do not hold any of you responsible for the past,' she said, 'but we are all responsible for the future.'

She went on to describe the behaviour of geese in their migratory habits and how humans, who think we are so clever, could learn a great deal from these creatures.

'Geese fly in formation as they realise that while they can achieve a great deal alone or in pairs, when they work in a collective they generate 70% more power,' said Prof Atkinson.

'When the lead goose grows tired, it drops back and allows another to take a turn at the front creating interdependency and shared leadership. If a goose falls to the ground because it is sick or injured, two other geese will follow it and stay with it until it is well enough to fly again or dies.'

Mullum Creek quarry DA resurfaces

The Mullumbimby Creek Progress Association has expressed its concerns about the resubmission to Byron Shire Council of the Development Application (DA) for the Left Bank Road Quarry near the corner with Frasers Road. The association invites all residents who will be affected by the quarry or have concerns to a public meeting at Shearwater School at 7pm on Wednesday June 7 to be informed by Council, the applicants and some updated residents.

'This DA has been lodged in its entirety exactly the same as the original,' said association president Brendan Healey. 'This massive proposed development means to increase production from a mean annual rate of 3,500 m<sup>3</sup> prior to 1995 to an escalation of extraction activities to 25,000 per annum, increasing by 2.5 each year, to an eventual output of 40,000 m<sup>3</sup> per year.'

'This translates to 5,000 heavy truck movements per year in the first year of operation.'

'The original quarry submission initiated a great groundswell of community concern and action when it was first forwarded over a decade ago with quarry activities to fill these trucks taking place up to seven days per week, with drilling, blasting, rock crushing and screening and the constant loading of trucks. We have been assured that the original 317 submissions will be considered with the submission but are aware of the changing population and new environmental laws that now exist.

'The progress association has for over the decade lobbied and had extensive road works and safety modifications developed on Left Bank Road for the valley's residents, workers and students. The impact of this heavy gravel truck traffic on safety, on noise and dust on our recently resurfaced narrow roads would be catastrophic.'

'We have spent a great deal of time and energy focussing on the water qualities of our creek. We see the impacts on water quality in this submitted DA to be totally under-assessed with no plan for maintaining sediment entrapments...

'The threats to endangered wildlife and plants were also greatly understated in this DA's statement of environmental effects. Many of the locals have seen koalas move from their property's trees into the quarry lands. The existence of tree species used by koalas on this site was denied, as was numerous other threatened plant and wildlife species...

'Of course the major concern of the progress association is the impact on the local people. At the time of the original submission our local land study reported nearly 480 properties within the valley.'

'There are now three more large rural residential subdivisions that have happened within the valley and the tethered expansion of Chincogan Estate with a potential with another 240 residential blocks all being serviced by Left Bank Road.'

Journey of healing

The geese at the back of the formation honk to the geese in front to encourage the forward movement.

'People should be careful how they honk at those who are leading them where they want to go; honking should never be used negatively.'

So how do we 'Take The Next Step'? According to Prof Atkinson, there are four key issues that need to be addressed: community education, providing safe communities in which indigenous people can live, law reform and research in order to understand the impacts of transgenerational trauma.

But the thrust of her message was simple and was summed up in one clear statement: 'What we are working towards is to create a world that is safe for all children. That's it; end of story.'

Writersfest director to move on

Michael McDonald

Jill Eddington, popular director of the Northern Rivers Writers' Centre and the Byron Bay Writers Festival, has resigned after seven years at the helm. She will oversee the coming festival in August and stay on until the end of the year.

Ms Eddington said she was leaving 'with a mix of sadness and excitement. It is always difficult to leave something you have loved so much but I have decided the time has come to move on to other things and new challenges.'

'The past seven years have been a wonderful experience and it has been such a joy to see the Centre and the Festival grow and develop over this period. Working with Chris Hanley and the committee has been a great pleasure, their support and vision is astonishing and what they have done as a group to bring this organisation to be one of the most vital arts organisations in Australia is extraordinary. I have appreciated their support, guidance and enthusiasm throughout.

'When you work in a position like this it is difficult to imagine what might come next professionally and so I have decided I will step aside towards the end of the year and then give myself some time to decide what I might like to do in the future. I am looking forward to considering new and exciting challenges that might arise.

'Importantly I believe by making the announcement at this stage, it will allow the committee the opportunity to make plans and particularly to advertise the position at the appropriate time. I am certain when it is advertised the position will attract some of the best applicants in Australia, and it will be exciting to see where the new director will take the Festival and the Writers' Centre in the future.

'I still have lots of work to do in this period. Most of all I look forward to directing a fabulous tenth Byron Bay Writers Festival and enjoying every last moment of this job.'

Writers festival committee chairperson Chris Hanley was full of praise for Ms Eddington. 'We're sad she's going but excited for her as well. I could wax lyrical for hours on end about Jill. She is a pleasure to work with.'

'She's passionate and talented, energetic, inspirational and a wonderful professional. Jill has done a lot for the arts industry and a lot of people have been mentored by her.'

'She's always positive and it has been a joy for the committee to work with her. The Shire has benefited too as she has been a spokesperson for Council on cultural matters.'

'Seven years is a long gig in the arts world, and I wish her well in the future. No doubt we'll work together in other areas.'

National day of action to protect whales

The first national day of action for the protection of whales and dolphins is planned for Wednesday June 7 with an all day whale embassy and afternoon of free interactive activities on Main Beach at Byron Bay, followed by a film and music fundraiser at the Byron Surf Club.

Byron Bay joins Bateman's Bay, Port Stephens and Sydney to celebrate and welcome the return of the whales from the Antarctic waters starting at 3pm with an afternoon of family activities, art, music and ceremony. Several whale conservation groups including Sea Shepherd, Byron Whale Action Group, Surfers for Cetaceans and Whales Alive will take part in the day's activities which will include kids' games, sand art and speakers on whale and dolphin conservation intermingled with musicians offering up songs of strength.

Dean Jefferys from the Byron Whale Action Group explained 'Japan is busily buying votes for the upcoming International Whaling commission and if it gets its way would like to resume full scale commercial whaling.'

'Japan has expanded its so-called scientific whaling program in the Southern Ocean Whale Sanctuary and it plans to kill more than 935 whales in the name of science. It will also introduce the hunting of humpback whales, one of the main species that support a whale watching industry worth almost $300 million a year in Australia,' he said.

A Whale Embassy Tipi will be sharing information on Main Beach, and participants will be given the opportunity to tell a story or make a whale lantern.

At 5pm a twilight ceremony and vigil of 863 lanterns and candles will light up our solidarity for the 863 whales hunted last summer by the Japanese whaling fleet under the poor guise of 'research'.

At 6pm 'The Flight of the Humpback and the Sea Shepherd' will kick off at the Byron Bay Surf Club at a cost of $10 per person, $8 concession and free for children.

Featuring Julian Lennon

and Greenpeace's world-wide whale campaign film clip and the award winning documentary The Gathering as well as music from Bunna Lawrie, this will be a visual and musical feast.

Volunteers for whale lantern making at the embassy on June 7 are welcome; for more information, call Wren on 6685 8417.

Matt Hartley from Sea Shepherd has put out a call for volunteers to make the protest a colourful one, saying, 'We need actors, dancers, and anybody loud or theatrical. We need noise-makers, model makers, scene stealers. We need you to be on TV. Phone 6685 8836 before 11am, or after 6pm, and say "whale time".'

Council inspection

Council plans to inspect Byron Bay's Arts and Industry Estate's dwellings in the coming weeks to assess fire safety.

Ray Darney of Byron Council told The Echo, "The NSW fire brigade received complaints about fire safety issues and we will be inspecting premises in conjunction with them."

"Fire safety is our number one compliance issue and is our highest priority," Darney said.

Those who are found to have inadequate fire exits will be served with fire upgrade notices, he went on to say.

Peter Garrett to open FEHVA

FEHVA program director Dee Tipping has announced that the inaugural FEHVA 2006 opening address will be delivered by Peter Garrett AM MP, Member for Kingsford Smith, Shadow Parliamentary Secretary for Reconciliation and the Arts. Mr Garrett will deliver the inaugural FEHVA arts address as part of the evening program on Friday June 23.

Ms Tipping said, "Several sessions in this year's FEHVA program will address the powerful role of visual arts to create change within our society."

"Two sessions in particular will be pertinent to Peter's current role in politics: "Art and Reconciliation" where Jude Mc Bean, director of the Grafton Regional Gallery, will speak to indigenous artists Frances Belle Parker and Karla Dickens, then the Great Debate where a lineup of leading Australian artists will energetically address two sides of the theme "Can

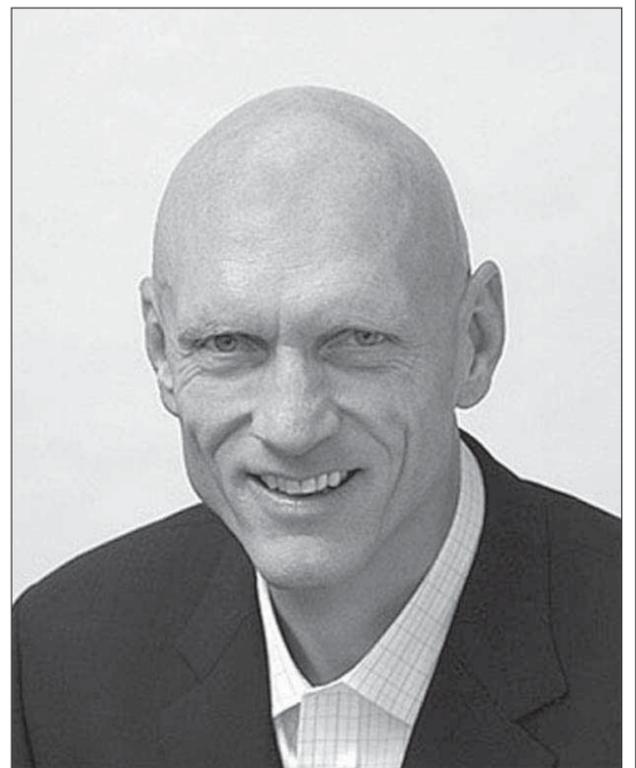

Art Drive Political Change?"

"Peter's attendance at FEHVA this year acknowledges his comments on how vitally important Australia's artists are in producing narratives of imagination which feed and inspire us."

"Before his address to officially open FEHVA, guests will have the opportunity to meet some of the SmART emerging artists and their work at Olivo in Jonson Street before joining the FEHVA artists and their work in the Gallery at the Byron Community and Cultural Centre."

After the address from 8pm onwards guests will be treated to performances around the Steinway in the Community Centre's theatre by the Buttery Choir and special guests including Grace Knight performing FEHVA, Jim Moginie and Rob Hirst.

Tickets are $55/$50 for the evening event of Friday June 23 will be available at the Byron Bay Community Centre, and include a complimentary glass of champagne and finger food. Download a booking form at www.fehva.com or phone 6687 1623. Proceeds from the evening will go towards alcohol and drug rehabilitation community The Buttery's new building project.

Forum calls for rail to be transport of future

At Byron Shire Council's Transport Solutions Forum held on Friday May 19, delegates voted unanimously on the following resolutions and requested they be conveyed urgently to all levels of government, including local councils, the Federal government and the Queensland and NSW State governments:

- The introduction of a regular commuter rail service on the Casino to Murwillumbah line;
- Long term transport infrastructure planning; and
- Serious consideration of an inland transport corridor from Grafton to Brisbane via Casino, Beaudesert and the Mount Lindsay Highway.

Speakers supporting an inland transport corridor informed delegates of the Queensland government's transport strategy that includes a 2,500ha freight rail hub and road freight interchange at Beaudesert which will be virtually an inland port, connecting by rail to shipping at Port Brisbane. Double stack container trains are planned to take the bulk of heavy transport from the highways.

There was unanimous support for an inland transport corridor from the new bridge at Grafton straight to Brisbane via Beaudesert. It was claimed that this would reduce the distance to 222 kilometres and take 1¼ hours off the travel time. This Summerland Way/Mt Lindsay route via Christmas Creek would include a 1km tunnel at the state border. It would bypass the Pacific Highway as the interstate road freight corridor.

Proposals for a daily commuter rail service from Casino to Murwillumbah backed the viability of 5 to 8 return services each day and called for extension of the line to meet the proposed Queensland Rail link from Robina to Coolangatta airport.

The Forum recognised peak oil 'as being an undeniable reality underlying all transport planning assumptions' and called for recognition that rail should be the major transport mode for the future.

The forum also requested that Federal Government Auslink funding be made available to the Northern Rivers councils to complete their proposed Regional Transport Strategy with full community engagement.

The Forum delegates met outside the A&I Hall at Bangalow at a point exactly half way along the 152km rail line from Casino to Murwillumbah stations to commemorate the second anniversary of the closure of the rail service. Delegates resolved to come back next year to report to the community what progress if any had been made on their resolutions.

Chinny boosts youth hopes with $500

Youth group secretary Rangimarie Ferguson draws the soon-to-be-filled-out for $500 cheque for $500, representing the money raised from the Chincogan Hotel's Friday raffles. The Chinny's manager Russell Apanui was on hand with his pen. Photo Jeff 'Cheque Me Out' Dawson

Over the last ten years a group of concerned residents have been campaigning to have a permanent youth and recreational facility built in Mullumbimby.

Plans are currently lodged with Council for a site next to the skate ramp east of the high school, which include a dance studio, indoor basketball courts, canteen facilities, and space for a permanent youth officer.

Mullum Chamber of Commerce and Becton have already shown their support with donations, and on Friday Russell and Heidi from the Chinny Hotel gave the project a boost when they donated $500.00 as part of their Mullum Matters initiative.

Secretary of the Youth and recreational facility Rangimarie Ferguson accepted the funds, saying 'Mullum youth are long overdue for a place to be where they will not be exposed to risk. The future opportunities of our youth are in our hands, and we invite any community members interested in the issue to come on board.'

The group meets fortnightly, for details president Ra can be contacted on 6684 3597.

Russell from the Chinny also encourages any community group based in Mullumbimby to apply for a $500 donation as part of the Mullum Matters program, whose next beneficiary will be the Mullum netball club.

Mornington Island Dancers visit

The Mornington Island Dancers will be in Byron Bay in a few weeks to film promotional material for their forthcoming tour of North America plus giving a performance at the Byron Community and Cultural Centre.

Mornington Island is a remote Aboriginal settlement in far North West Queensland in the Gulf of Carpentaria. They are known as the Lardil people.

The Mornington Island Dancers have a long history of performing nationally and internationally.

The first performance by the dancers was for the opening of the Sydney Opera House in October 1973.

Since then, the Mornington Island Dancers have presented over 3000 performances across Australia and the world.

In the performance at Byron Bay the songs and dances come from the Lardil dreamtime. Their culture is intricately related to the spirit of the land, plants, animals and the unseen world.

The Mornington Island Dancers perform at the Byron Community and Cultural Centre, 7.30 pm on Saturday June 17. For bookings phone 6685 5659.

Local launch of Plant A Tree Project

Mullumbimby philanthropist and Rainforest Rescue patron George Lewin last Thursday dug in the first of many rainforest trees to be planted as part of a RR project at the Crystal Castle. Among the many guests on hand to wish the effort well were Castle manager Naren King, TP Health CEO and longtime RR supporter Christopher Dean and the executive officer of RR, Kelvin Davies.

Rainforests contain more species of plants and animals than any other ecosystem in Australia. Sadly 75% of our rainforests have been cleared for agriculture and development. Planting rainforest trees will help to restore these rainforests and protect the many threatened species of plants and animals that live there.

Rainforest Rescue is a not for profit organisation committed to saving our rainforests for current and future generations.

For more information on Plant A Tree visit www.rainforestrescue.org.au/plantatree.html.

Further update on planned Tibetan school

The story run in last week's Echo about Dorshul Gyatso and his plans for a school in Tibet had a couple of mistakes: the application has not yet been made to the Chinese government, and the Tibetan government will not be helping with finance.

Dorshul would like to point out that the school will not be a centre for political activity; its entire focus will be on Tibetan culture and religion while respecting the laws of the Chinese government.

Dorshul is also offering talks on the current issues of Tibetan society, environment and democracy and Tibetan history and culture. These will be held on the first and fifteenth of every month starting in June at Heart-space, above Santos, in Mullumbimby. He is also planning traditional Tibetan cooking demonstrations and is interested in hearing from anyone who would like to take part.

His talks are free of charge but please contact him if you wish to attend by email at samb@thelocalshop.org.

New house to benefit kids with cancer

The first sod has been turned for the construction of a new house to provide financial support for children living with cancer in northern NSW. A group of local businessmen has banded together to support Camp Quality in the first step of a major fundraising project for this vital community charity.

Funds will be raised through donations of 'goods in kind' when tradespeople donate a day of their skilled labour, trade suppliers contributions of goods or building materials, and cash contributions to 'donate a brick' towards the construction of the building.

Builders will spend the next six months erecting a modern four bedroom home in the Lakes Estate, Coffs Harbour, which will be auctioned early in December. The total profit from the project will bring educational and recreational services to children in northern NSW living with cancer and their families.

Camp Quality is no longer just a camp for kids living with cancer; it provides a wide variety of services directed towards the needs of the families as a whole.

Throughout the years of treatment, education and achieving meaningful employment, Camp Quality is committed to the long term welfare of cancer children. The organisation also provides a wide variety of services including travel to obtain medical services, accommodation, liaison with city based hospitals, networking with support services or relief of stress and financial pressure.

Over the past 21 years the number of children surviving cancer to become adults has risen from 50 to 75 per cent.

'This is a wonderful survival statistic, which presents us with new and exciting challenges, said Camp Quality northern NSW area manager Tom Strickland. 'Increased funding is required to enable us to respond to this ongoing challenge for 150 children in northern NSW who currently live with cancer.'

Although the house will be constructed in Coffs Harbour, the appeal will benefit children throughout northern NSW. You can lend a hand by making a donation at your nearest branch of the ANZ Bank, local community credit union BCU or Australia Post.

Peta's exhibitionist geishas head south

Twenty five Geishas are heading from Ocean Shores to hang around the Cross for a couple of weeks.

To be more specific the painted ladies will in fact form a solo exhibition by local artist Peta Laurisen at Woolloomooloo's Soho Gallery in Sydney.

Opening on June 7 the show will hang until the end of the month. The Geishas continue the sensual direction Peta's art has taken over the last few years. These paintings explore themes from the soft ethereal 'Cherry Blossom' through the erotic, Yakuza inhabited, WaterWorld to a bright, brash, contemporary take on the ancient art.

Monk wins dreamy pass

Winner of a double pass to the upcoming Dreaming Festival, Steve Monks, with Priya Woolston from Thursday Plantation Sculpture Garden which donated the pass.

The Dreaming Festival, the all-Indigenous international arts festival under the artistic direction of the widely-respected Rhoda Roberts, will run at the Woodford Folk Festival site, Queensland, from June 9-12.

This year for the first time a sculpture has been selected to represent the Ballina Thursday Plantation East Coast Sculpture Show at the festival.

'Waima Waimangu' by Maori artist Robyn Nathan will be installed at Woodford to add to the vibrant spiritual life of the event. It is a carved totemic work that uses the whale as a symbol of part of the Maori Creation story.

Tickets for The Dreaming are now available at www.thedreamingfestival.com.

Free course on community services

Adult Community Education (ACE) is offering its Certificate III in Community Services Work for the second time after its enormous success last year. Course coordinator Cheryl Williams, pictured, explained that the subjects covered give participants an overview of what work is available in the field of community services and how to get the basic skills necessary to gain employment.

'It is ideal for people who are looking for a change of career and need a greater understanding of community services work,' said Cheryl.

'As well as plenty of hands on experience, there will be a range of speakers who are experts on mental health and aged care etc, giving participants and idea of their suitability to the work.'

Cheryl is delighted to have secured highly experienced tutors, including Deborah Felton who has a background in nursing, community health, law and teaching, with more than 13 years experience working in drug and alcohol. This will be the second year that Deborah has been involved with this course, and one of her students from last year, Finy Stroet, recalls her lessons with Deborah with enthusiasm.

'Cheryl Williams found us a fantastic teacher in Deborah Felton,' said Finy. 'We discussed, debated, role played on diverse topics like communication, community building, drug and alcohol abuse, abuse in its different forms and more. Our teacher knew her material well and she put in a lot of effort to make the lessons as interesting and fun as possible.'

Originally, Finy had been looking for work in childcare and enrolled in this course thinking it was a childcare course. When she realised it wasn't, she was so taken by the teacher and students that she decided to complete it anyway. Now she thinks it was the best thing she could have done.

'The teacher was so positive about my prospects that I applied for a job with Homecare,' said Finy. 'I am now working for them full time and it feels like I've come home. I love the work; there is so much variety and just being able to do the day to day jobs for people who are too sick to do them for themselves makes me grateful for my own health. It's very rewarding.'

Anyone interested in participating in this course should contact ACE on 6684 3374 or visit www.acemul-lum.com.

Local artist warns of the hazards of chemicals

Billy Dalton's paintings are vibrant and literally jump out from the canvas, swirls of colour collide with dark edgy outlines. Thick clear resin juts out from the canvas, and his work is reminiscent of Aboriginal artforms.

Yet the materials he uses are all non-toxic. 'I can't work with chemicals,' he told The Echo. 'I've worked with surfboards and soft furnishings all my life and now have chemical sensitivity.'

Billy wants to make people aware of the dangers associated with chemicals, especially the ones you can't smell. 'I am paying the price for not protecting myself and wrapping up against them.'

'I use kid's glue mixed with fish scales, and layer the canvas up to 40 times to create the texture.'

Dalton has just wrapped up his latest exhibition – a collection of paintings, painted silk panels, clothing and photography of local surfers – at the studio room in the Byron Bay Community Centre.

As a local for more than 20 years, he is a self taught artist with an extensive background in textile design and painting. He is fascinated by colour, movement and reflective surfaces and his influences include the ocean and marine environment. Specific painters and sculptures that inspired him include the Austrian born Friedensreich Hundertwasser.

For those who didn't get a chance to see his excellent exhibition and would like to see more, he can be contacted on 6680 9078 or by email at byronbilly@yahoo.com.

Fiesta Day raises $1,000 for Amnesty

In an era when immoral war is being waged against civilian populations, in times of increasing infringements on social liberties, when ordinary freedoms are under threat in many countries around the world, it's good to know that there are groups ready to stand up for individuals in need of help & representation. Amnesty International is one of those groups, a champion defender of human rights, always there ready to provide a guiding light at the end of the tunnel.

Last week Latin Lounge organiser John Brock handed over a cheque for just over $1,000 to local Byron Amnesty representatives raised at the recent gala May Day Fiesta at Ewingsdale Hall. 'The evening was a resounding success, with people enjoying a fiesta of song, dance and cabaret while knowing that their money was going to a very worthy cause,' said John. 'We filmed the event, and intend to continue fundraising for Amnesty with a DVD of the night's performances.'

'The carnival atmosphere was highlighted by a sizzling

Samba Floorshow, where five gorgeous showgirls lifted the audience to its feet for an ecstatic group dance-in.'

Mallams Station Street plan goes to Minister

A new supermarket in Mullumbimby could be given the go ahead by NSW Minister for Planning, Frank Sartor. Last August Byron Shire Council rejected an application by the Mallams Group to develop a site in Station Street because of concerns over traffic congestion, increased flooding and fragmentation of the town centre.

The Mallams Group were negotiating to buy the land from State Rail.

Under state planning regulations, an applicant can appeal to the Minister for approval of rezoning of government owned land and this option was canvassed by Mallams during Council's deliberations.

'All we have done is make an application under SEPP8

[the state planning regulation],'

said Chris Mallam on Monday. 'We had nowhere else to go,' he added.

Mr Mallam said he had received no indication from Mr Sartor when a decision is to be made, however The Echo believes the application will be placed on exhibition for community comment before a decision is made.

$2,000 raised

The trivia night held at the Byron Bowling Club on Friday May 12 raised $2,000 for the Thusanang Project's care centres for vulnerable children in Lesotho, Africa.

'A great, fun night' was the verdict at the end of the night which was hosted by local celebrity Mick O'Regan.

The Thusanang Project aims to raise money to build its first pilot care centre in Mt Morosi, a Lesotho village which officially has 700 orphans.

The project has been given land on which to build, meantime some current buildings are being used as a temporary centre.

If you would like further information about the project or would like to help, please call Susan on 6680 1030.

The writers' champion

Writers and readers in this Shire owe a debt of gratitude to Jill Eddington, director of the Northern Writers Centre and the Byron Bay Writers Festival, who is resigning from the job after seven very successful years at the helm.

Ms Eddington, backed by a dedicated committee, staff and enthusiastic volunteers, has brought the festival to the status of one of the preeminent literary events in the nation, also drawing admiration from overseas. The writers centre has become an excellent meeting place for some of Australia's best writers and the neophytes who seek to emulate them; the centre's program of visiting writers' workshops is first class.

As one of the media sponsors, it has been a great pleasure for The Echo to share Ms Eddington's passion for the written word and the remarkable characters who create them. We wish Jill all the best in her new arts pursuits, whatever they may be; fortunately we are not losing her from the Shire.

Affordable housing?

Some Byron Shire Councillors expressed their frustration last week at how long it was taking to get affordable housing projects in place in the Shire. The issues of homelessness and affordable housing tended to get confused during debate; there is some obvious area of overlap.

The frustration was expressed through motions by Crs John Lazarus and Richard Staples which resulted in a working group being set up 'to pursue a report on feasibility of the site at Lot 10 DP 850902 Station Street Mullumbimby [a vacant area between the council administration building and the preschool] for affordable housing and consideration of other suitable sites'. They also resolved that the 'Affordable Housing Committee in conjunction with the Affordable Housing Officer and working group consider Council owned or managed land for affordable residential cabins and camping grounds in the Mullumbimby vicinity'. The third resolution called for 'a report be provided on the potential for using the western end of the Butler Street Reserve, Byron Bay, as a primitive camping ground for temporary use'.

Cr Lazarus noted that Council had been working on affordable housing for five years and yet there are 'no projects on the ground. It is time to grasp this issue.' He also suggested that all the reports produced on the subject would be better off distributed to the homeless to keep them warm.

It is understandable that some Councillors would feel frustrated by the process so far and commendable that they would choose to act positively. However, community members pushing forward the affordable housing issue should not expect any speedy remedies. There is the rezoning of land and the exhibition of development applications to consider; in the case of the Butler Street Reserve, the conflicts of uses with the markets site and the skate park (which has now got the green light); the fact the new affordable housing officer is still to be hired; and, with another Council election just two years out, the possibility the resolutions just won't make it over the line. (Consider that Council staff still have 45 resolutions from the 1999-2004 Council to deal with.)

And yet... the prospect of affordable housing next to the council administration building has great appeal – something funky, colourful, rainbowed and inspiring to remind our bureaucracy and Councillors of part of the region's heritage which high rents have conspired to squeeze out.

Nothing divides like nuclear fission

It's not much more than a week since John Howard lobbed his tactical nuclear device into the middle of the Australian landscape, but already he must be delighted with the devastation he has wrought.

Admittedly, the initial explosion was a bit of a fizzer, but the effect of the fallout continues to spread; it looks as though the political agenda will take place under the shadow of a mushroom cloud for some time to come.

Like all chain reactions, it started with barely a whisper: a faint background musing that perhaps, just perhaps, the nuclear option should not be treated as a dirty word; that in the context of the debate over global warming and alternatives to fossil fuels it was worth at least marginal consideration.

Things rapidly escalated: within a matter of days nuclear power was the debate Australia had to have. All the usual suspects were wheeled out, all the old arguments regurgitated. By the time Howard returned home from what he continued to deny was a farewell junket it was turning into exactly the kind of melee he was hoping for.

To the hardheads it may have been just another distraction: true enough, but it was a big one – a distraction brighter than a thousand suns. In political terms, nothing divides like nuclear fission.

Even the conservatives have their differences, although these tend to be at the margin: questions of cost, of efficiency and of control. To most coalition members the only serious dispute is about federal-state relations. Naturally noone would actually want a reactor in one's own electorate, but there is no in-principle objection to a reactor in someone else's. Unlike really serious issues like gay marriage and stem cell research, there is no moral question involved.

But for Labor there is. For many on the left, nuclear power can only be compared to the fire of hell itself. Even to dabble with the concept is to flirt with the devil. For almost a decade over the 70s and 80s the party tore itself apart, not over building a reactor – that was totally unthinkable – but over the

with the whole nuclear issue removed to the back burner it has been no more than a minor embarrassment. Now that uranium is back in the headlines the policy is simply untenable and Kim Beazley has already announced that he is prepared to change it.

But that is as far as he will go: for Australia, nuclear power remains a no-no. It is too expensive, too dangerous and (a not inconsiderable factor) too unpopular.

Howard leapt on Beazley's rejection from a great moral height: if nuclear power is

As the more sensible Liberals agree it is far too expensive an option for a country like Australia, still bulging with cheap fossil fuels. And of course no one wants a reactor in the electorate, or the one next door, or anywhere upwind; trying to sell the project would be political suicide. The Libs fiddled around with the idea back in the 1960s before dropping it like a piece of hot plutonium.

Howard doesn't want a pro-nuke decision from the debate we have to have; indeed, he doesn't want a decision at all. He just wants to tickle Labor up to critical mass.

So what's the public justification? Another bit of doublethink. This is Howard being really, really interested in global warming – in which he still doesn't believe. Like a decreasing number of flat-earth fundamentalists (most of whom appear regularly in The Australian) our medieval Prime Minister thinks it's all a scare campaign run by sinister left-wing elitists.

But still, it can't do any harm to make a few concerned noises about it, as long as they involve neither money nor action. To actually do something about the problem would involve serious policy changes and cost billions, not to mention needing far more courage than Howard has ever shown.

How much more satisfying to muse about nuclear pie in the sky, and watch the opposition work itself into a lather about something which will never happen. Like Dr Strangelove, our Dear Leader has learnt to stop worrying and love the bomb.

Of course no one wants a reactor in the electorate, or the one next door, or anywhere upwind; trying to sell the project would be political suicide.

by Mungo MacCallum

mining of uranium ore. The irrational compromise that was eventually reached was to allow mining and export from the three mines already operating, but to ban new ones.

For the purposes of an upcoming South Australian election the mine at Roxby Downs was designated existing rather than new, in spite of the fact that it was not yet operating. An attempt was made to placate uneasy consciences by noting that Roxby Downs produced small amounts of copper and gold, totally acceptable minerals. The fact that it is now the largest producer of uranium ore not merely in Australia but in the world was left to the fine print.

The utterly illogical three mines policy has long been the subject of ridicule, but really too dangerous for Australia, then we shouldn't even think of selling our uranium to other countries: this would be most dreadfully unethical. Even for Howard this was humbug on a grand scale: his lifetime stance has been to declare trade issues separate from any standards whatsoever, whether political or ethical.

But, as it was intended to, it provoked cries of anguish from Labor's left, which once again signalled that it is prepared to die in a ditch over the issue. Thus the uranium issue can be kept simmering away until it comes to a huge and messy climax at the party's national conference next year – election year. At least this is Howard's intention.

Nuclear power itself is, of course, not really the issue.

Another landfill

There was certainly no yippy-yi-yooing up and down the valleys and canyons of Teven and Emigrant Creeks by farmers on the Ballina bypass announcement of yet another landfill, this time involving 460,000 cubic metres to be placed across the floodplain between their properties and the sea.

As though enough heartache has not already been inflicted on property owners with the splitting and compulsory acquisition of farmland, reluctantly accepted as the law of the land. To then have floodwaters unnecessarily backed up over crops, plantations, pastures and buildings for the rest of time, after every natural outlet is blocked or stifled just takes the cake, and bears similarities to the Wooyung Creek bund fiasco.

If the more recent landslip and blockage at the Teven Road bridges is any indication of what lies ahead with the planned construction of several more bridges and other works, then God help us all.

Humiliation

I wonder if David Lovejoy or Michael McDonald have ever experienced the humiliation of having a letter consigned to the 'also received' category?

I doubt it – if they had they might by now have concluded that as the letters component of The Echo is a significant part of the publisher-reader relationship, letter writers deserve at least the dignity of a reason for refusal. A system which puts a letter in brackets after each rejected name as a rough indication shouldn't be too hard to work out, for example: (d) defamatory, (b) boring, (r) repetitive, at present there seems to be a general high-handed (w) we don't have to give a reason (or we hadn't actually noticed that we are abusing our power).

In my own case, having put my soul into this Shire over a 23 year period, I would have thought that a phone call mightn't have been too much to ask, particularly as it may be only a single word that offends, and particularly as there are bound to be readers out there wondering if I've gone senile and sunk to writing (b)s and (r)s, which affects my credibility should I at some stage wish to re-enter the political scene.

As it happens I'm pretty sure that my last letter was rejected because it covers a subject which is currently taboo (t). Echo readers in other words are being denied access to views and information at the whim of a Sydney lawyer who understands law but not politics – whoops I'd better not go any further or this letter too will be stamped with a big T!

Perhaps I should do a Mungo and restrict myself to regurgitating the views and subject matter of a score of pundits in the dailies. Would that be safe enough for The Echo?

J Anderson (Fast Buck$)
Coorabell

■ The letter in question was 900 words long and we had no space for it. The subject – the partiality of judges – is not taboo and we had no reason to run it by 'a Sydney lawyer'. Most papers don't give reasons for refusal; most don't even acknowledge letters received. – Ed

Elliot's record

Par for the course that Justine Elliot was in Mullumbimby to 'announce' funding for the Civic Centre – this is basically all she does. Obtaining the funding was, of course, the result of very hard work on the part of Crs Peter Westheimer and Ray Kestle.

We are left to wonder why this event should also be the excuse for a huge 'free kick' for our colourless local member in the form of an 'article' comprised entirely of Dorothy Dixers.

Ms Elliot was elected with Green preferences providing 10% of her vote. She also got a little help from the deceptive Libs for Forests and the jury is still out as to what deals were done over funding their booth staff... Ms Elliot failed to attend the Parliamentary Inquiry to give us her take on the matter.

On the day of her election she quit the 'left' of the ALP (who had supported her campaign) and joined the more career-friendly 'right'. Since then she has toed the party line with absolute integrity and pursued photo opportunities with relentless zeal. There have been no pronouncements question-

Little sympathy for the Tweed

■ It is interesting that the Tweed Shire Council claims that Byron Shire is diverting water from the Yelgun Creek into the Tweed Shire when the topographic map for Pottsville (9641-3s) clearly shows that all the Tweed Shire canefields are north of the Billinudgel Creek.

Billinudgel Creek's natural course travels from just south of Jones Road, east through the Billinudgel Nature Reserve almost to the Old Coast Road, then north through the Wooyung caravan park to join Crabbes Creek and Burringbar Creek as Mooball Creek.

Yelgun Creek starts south of Billinudgel Creek, then south-east through the Billinudgel Creek and through Ocean Shores canals.

It would appear that rumours that years ago the Tweed Shire forced cane farmers to divert their canals away from Mooball Creek may be accurate going by the chemical slime that appears on the northern lake in Yelgun Creek on still mornings. To see the waterbirds struggling through the slime is distressing.

It should also be noted that the lake north of the bund now appears to have a different ecosystem to the rest of the canal system as there are no mangroves etc, and opening the bund would be most likely to change this unique area.

Bill Sweeney
North Ocean Shores

■ Oh me, oh my, poor cane farmers in the Wooyung, it's cost them a million dollars so far because of the so-called bund. Well, get over it. In the June 05 floods, the northern end of the shire was classified a natural disaster, which cost many millions and lots of heartache.

I will fight to not let the end of Capricornia Canal become 'the drain end' for the southern end of the Tweed Shire.

There are approximately a third of the cane growers there now, and large tracts of this area are up for sale, and a hell of a lot of earth movements happening. If they want the water to empty faster up their end, then open up the easements that run into the Wooyung Creek and relayer your canefields to run back that way.

Since the bund has been in for over ten years, it is now incorporated into the Marine Park on the southern side, as it is tidal.

On the northern side it is incorporated into the Billinudgel Reserve, both state departments. There are numerous other state departments that have to be included in any discussions and/or resolutions and finally decisions re the bund.

If that bund is changed too drastically, all residents along the waterways, any residents living in low lying areas, eg Balemo Drive, anyone near the golf course, can expect increased levels from what they are used to now, and that will happen even in a severe downpour which is not unusual for here. I now know that the new petrol station, which will have its entry in Shara Boulevard, will be importing extra metres of fill, so again more area is taken out of the flood catchment storage area. Not happy, Council.

There are hundreds of family homes involved in this, and as the Council has a duty of care to the residents that are already here, let your councillors know now that Tweed Shire has had the means to fix their own problems, and that they will have to give us assurances that no large scale development will be happening in the Wooyung area like Salt and Casuarina.

I believe Councillor Mangleson has had some talks with Max Boyd, one of three administrators for Tweed Shire Council, re this so she might have some answers.

Sourpusses

This letter is to the Mullum Maniac Sourpusses who relentlessly stole our advertising signage for the recent Brunswick Valley Fiesta. Did you have nothing better to do, are you short of constructive ways to spend your nights?

As the person who was out in the pouring rain and freezing cold night after night replacing the signs that apparently angered you so much I challenge you to come forward and identify yourselves. I would like the opportunity to meet you and discuss your motives. Did you feel left off the initial planning of the Fiesta, if so I would welcome your fresh ideas in planning the next BVF.

If you are just angry young people who roam the streets at night looking for ways to hurt your community may you find yourselves many years from now, grown, with a family of your own to support and looking for a cheap family day out finding there is nothing to do. I hope you remember your part in discouraging the many volunteers within our community who give freely of their time and resources to provide such events. If you are however an adult with a grudge I have no words.

In closing I would like to thank the many within our community who turned out in droves to make the Brunswick Valley Fiesta 2006 presented by the Mullumbimby Adventist School and associated SDA Churches of the Byron Shire another huge success. See you all next year.

Accountability

Jim Inness's obscurantist rant in reply (Letters, May 23) to Julie Nathan is revealing paranoid politics. The reader is subject to blithering, incoherent conspiracies: 'international centralists' – one world government? a United Nations' takeover, undercover Fabians, international communists in a Jewish plot, maybe? Isn't Sir David Flint the monarchist arch conservative and good friend of Alan Jones radio shock jock... adds up to the usual extreme far right political scare tactics?

Any informed reader of history and politics knows only too well that both Nazism/fascism and so-called

'communism' (Stalinism) are totalitarian regimes that commit horrific crimes and atrocities against their populations.

Until people recognise and demand governments to act according to the interests of true consistent democracy, full and proper accountability, transparency of political process, and most importantly the need to serve above all else the majority of ordinary people and not the powerful corporatist, financial interests, then we can never say honestly we live in a genuine democracy.

Horrid Greens

We'd like to do some Greens bashing ahead of the state elections as it seems that this may become the main sport again of a few local business interests in the near future.

Firstly we blame the Greens for the appalling state of our transport system. What a mess! They have a nerve to worry about the consequences of our polluting transport on global warming. What has that got to do with anything? Mate! They're all about spoiling my fun and taking away my 4 Wheel Drive.

And mate, they want to ruin us, close down our businesses, stop progress, drive the tourist away, put up barricades around towns, and make people walk, for heaven's sake.

Let's face it, the Greens are responsible for the mess we now have in our underfunded public hospitals (probably all over the world)

Did you notice?

I notice that there was a recent small tsunami in the area east of Byron Bay, that I had mentioned in a previous Echo letter. I notice that the North Coast ABC radio person I had mentioned in my last Echo letter no longer works for the ABC on the North Coast.

I notice a man drowned in the main street leading into Byron Bay, after I predicted the inundation of Byron Bay in an Echo letter.

Did you notice that three American states have voted for impeachment proceedings against George Bush? When do you reckon he will attack Iran?

Did you notice the world consumed more food than it produced this year; doesn't a big famine lie ahead? Didn't they tell you, there will be 25% less rainfall locally and globally from now on, due to the 25% global dimming?

Did you notice that your pay cheque doesn't go as far as it used to? Workers are clever enough to reject pay cuts, but not clever enough to realise that continual readjustment of the inflation formula has hidden the true high rate of inflation as shown in the original 1980 inflation formula, and hence has secretly reduced workers' purchasing power every year.

Uncompromising

How to explain the stand by Warren Entsch, Liberal Member for Leichhardt (Cape York) in his private members bill on same-sex relationships?

In his maiden parliamentary speech (1996) Entsch said things that suggest he's likely to take a principled stand on such issues. He challenged the 'the fallacy of community perceptions', 'the inaccuracy of stereotypes'. As a railwayman from a working-class family who became a Liberal MP he was going against what people expected.

Today he might have in mind the community's false perceptions about the dignity and quality of same-sex relationships compared with traditional marriages. Perhaps he grasps the truth - that they are morally equal on every count.

He promised 'grassroots, commonsense representation'. He's a man with real commonsense, sizing up situations honestly and without blinkers. His representations on behalf of Cape York Aboriginals and the Torres Strait Environment testify to that.

Entsch possibly now realises that giving same-sex relationships equal rights is equally commonsense, obvious, fair and reasonable. Only ideologically-blinkered idiots would stand in its way, and he's not one of those.

Whatever, he's sent the Coalition into a frenzy. One of their own steps out of line, so they're apoplectic, dancing around like headless chooks. He's probably smiling generously: 'I know I'm bloody right, I know it won't be popular, but I've never compromised on being fair and reasonable, and I'm not going to do it now.'

Oh for a few more in Parliament like that!

sights and we need to raise something like another two million US.

So many of us regard the humpbacks as family, having watched their numbers increase over the years, and the thought of their being barbarically and cruelly harpooned is too much to contemplate.

Local business will also be impacted as the whales who have begun to trust and once again come close to shore will be keeping their distance, affecting the whale watching business that brings a large slice of annual profits to our community.

Please if you have some cash to spare, help Sea Shepherd to secure a new ship. We must all take responsibility in anyway we can to protect our whale cousins.

Whales in danger

There will be little joy for many of us when watching the humpbacks make their way up to Hervey Bay this season and a lot of distress when they head back to Antarctica with their off spring.

This is because the Japanese whaling fleet will be lying in wait and about to slaughter 50 of them. Humpbacks have not been targeted since whaling stopped in Australia 30 years ago, numbers have greatly increased and family groups begun to re-establish but according to a government report released last week, they are still on the endangered list.

The only hope for whales in the Southern Antarctic Whaling Sanctuary this whaling season is for Sea Shepherd Conservation Society to have the ship it needs to go and stop the slaughter.

Volunteers are working world wide to secure the ship that Sea Shepherd has in its

How politics really works in NSW

I am afraid Jim Inness (Letters, May 23) is correct in saying that we do not live in a real democracy and I have first hand evidence of that during my fifteen years in the NSW Upper House.

New South Wales is essentially run by Cabinet Office together with Treasury.

The Director-General of Cabinet Office is Roger Wilkins. He was DG under the previous Coalition administration too.

Premier Nick Greiner would not allow Roger Wilkins to be present at Cabinet meetings. A Minister in the Carr Government complained to me that Bob Carr, however, allowed him to be present at Cabinet meetings, which the Minister thought was not at all proper. When I mentioned his presence in Cabinet meetings in the House and that Ministers didn't like it, the Minister came to me afterwards red-faced with embarrassment.

I asked a member of Cabinet Office once if the Premier, Bob Carr, wanted something, would he get it? He said, quite seriously, 'He does have some influence.'

Once I managed to squeeze a concession out of the Carr government to supply funds to top up the Dunphy Wilderness Fund to buy wilderness areas.

We had to see the Premier after having received the OK from Treasury. Bob Carr was thrilled and said, 'Oh good, something I want for a change.'

All policy minutes from ministerial advisers and others have to go through Cabinet Office first. One policy adviser told me that they came out the other side

'unrecognisable'. Cabinet Office is referred to by advisers as 'The Evil Empire'.

When Bob Carr came to office, the government essentially didn't change.

If Peter Debnam wins office in March next year, the real government won't change, because it is not elected.

The promises he makes to the electorate may or may not be implemented. He will have little choice. He may manage to privatise a few entities, such as electricity and public housing, of which the Treasury would certainly approve, but many of his promises may prove 'non-core'.

Ministers cannot manage their portfolios without advice. Radical changes are fiercely resisted by the bureaucracy and particularly Treasury.

Seedsavers visit Taiwan

Seedsavers founders Michel and Jude Fanton of Byron Bay recently visited Taiwan. They report back:

'The visit was greatly facilitated by anthropologist Dr Linda Gail Arrigo, whose former husband Shih Ming-te was jailed for twenty-five years during the period of martial law. Linda was the first person to produce reports on the working conditions of women, in particular those in factories, sparking a movement and she is now something of a folk hero recognised everywhere she travels in the country.

'We met with executives, staff and volunteers of Taiwan Environmental Protection Union, Green Formosa Front, Formosans Network for Heritage and Urban Conservation, Plant Protection Foundation of Science and Technology, Taiwan Environmental Network, Taiwan Nature Trail Society, Taiwan Homemakers, and Earth Passengers

'All of these NGOs sprung out of the democracy movement after martial law was lifted in the 1990s. We were also privileged to meet indigenous leaders and farmers and met with publishers about translating The Seed Savers' Handbook into Chinese.

'Taiwan has several pre-conditions for food plant biodiversity. There are expert wild plant gatherers the original Austronesian inhabitants, and expert cultivators in the dominant Chinese population.

'As well Taiwan has a subtropical climate with a central chain of steep mountains with hot springs where temperate crops such as peaches are grown in its rich volcanic soils. Taiwanese cuisine is consequently amazingly diverse. It is not unusual to have over 100 ingredients in a meal.

'As in many countries, it is home gardeners and the highland subsistence farmers, not conventional farmers, who are the guardians of 99% of crop diversity. Rapid industrialisation and urbanisation has put pressure on commercial farmers to use corporate seeds that produce tasteless but perfect-looking vegetables with the usual dependency on chemical pesticides and fertilisers.

'The head of the Department of Agronomy at the National Taiwan University was not aware that Seminis, the world's largest vegetable seed company, now fully owned by Monsanto, is entrenched in Taiwan with its agricultural research happening in Tainan province. As usual, the seed companies that have been absorbed by multinational corporations in Taiwan have not changed their trading names.

'Local varieties have been replaced by up to five times more expensive one-size-fits-all high-tech seeds. In turn these varieties require more Monsanto or Dupont agricultural biocides, resulting in more nitrates and pollutants in food. This pathway is well known.

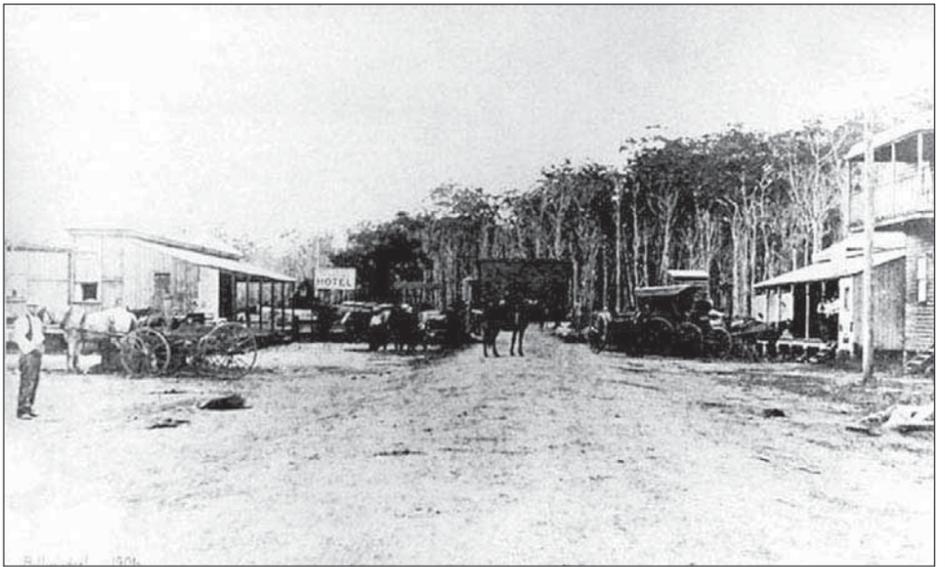

'At each meeting we had discussions over the extent of GMO plant trials in Taiwan. Surprisingly only a few people were aware of their existence.

'We all put together strategies for an all encompassing seed conservation movement in Taiwan. Seed Savers has acquired a high definition video camera for a series of documentaries. Our debut was filming the guardians of traditional varieties in the breathtaking backdrop of Taiwanese mountains.

'Especially impressive were the ancient terraces, the cultivation of rare tea varieties and beautifully tended vegetable gardens. We interviewed indigenous leader, Alice Lin and democracy movement leader Linda Gail Arrigo on the cultural significance of keeping traditional food plants, indigenous cultivation and medicinal plants.'

Festival search for historic photos

Not a lot has changed in downtown Billinudgel over the past 100 years. The trees were a bit closer in 1906 and there is more development these days, but Billinudgel is essentially the same place.

Other old photos in Brunswick Valley Historical Society's collection show greater changes, such as Mt Chincogan shorn of its vegetation.

The society is looking for more historic photographs that show how the valley used to be.

If you've got any old photos from your family's collection, bring them to the society's historic photos exhibition at Brunswick Valley Nature Festival on Saturday June 3. The society will make copies of them and is offering small prizes for the best ones they receive.

You can also bring to the festival any plants you have at home that you would like to learn more about. Experts will be on hand to identify your native plants and weeds.

The Festival, a World Environment Day activity, will be at the Shearwater Steiner School at Mullumbimby.

The Festival will be a fun day for all the family with children's activities, workshops and talks on a variety of topics to do with the flora and fauna of the region, and a keynote address on the effects of climate change on the Brunswick Valley.

Upgrading the Pacific Highway Brunswick Heads to Yelgun

This project is jointly funded by the Australian and New South Wales governments

Changed Traffic Arrangements Pacific Highway - Yelgun

The Roads and Traffic Authority and Abigroup Contractors Pty Ltd advise of upcoming changes to traffic arrangements on the Pacific Highway at Yelgun. This is part of the works for the Brunswick Heads to Yelgun Pacific Highway upgrade.

On Tuesday 30 May 2006 (weather permitting) traffic will be temporarily diverted onto a new alignment of the Pacific Highway approximately 600 metres north of the Pacific Highway/Shara Boulevard intersection. Access to Stock Route Road will be maintained at all times throughout the works.

This new alignment will form part of the adjacent local service road once the upgrade is completed.

Motorists are advised to travel through the new works with care and observe any directions given by traffic controllers. Directional signposting and a temporary 60km/hr speed limit will be maintained to assist road users in this area.

For further information, comments or complaints please contact the project information line on 1800 071 144 or call into the Community Information Centre opposite Ferry Reserve Caravan Park.

CHES by Ian Rogers

Veselin Topalov showed once again why he is the world's top player with a stunning comeback behind victory at the Mtel Masters in the Bulgarian capital Sofia last week.

After six of the tournament's ten rounds, Topalov was trailing surprise leader Gata Kamsky by two full points and the battle for first place seemed to be between the American and world number two Viswanathan Anand.

Then Topalov began an incredible run of four consecutive victories - including wins over Anand and Kamsky - to take the Mtel title by a half point. One of the wins was against Ruslan Ponomarev, given below, where the Bulgarian was written off as lost but found a stunning combination to turn the tables.

Topalov confessed that he had never given up hope: 'Two points behind is a lot but it is not too much to come back.'

For Gata Kamsky, the Mtel tournament was almost a fairytale return to top level chess after his eight year retirement. Kamsky scored match wins against every opponent except Topalov but was crushed 2-0 by the Bulgarian and admitted, 'You can't lose twice to an opponent and say that you deserve to win the tournament.'

Latham bags Labor's internal mafia

Mungo MacCallum reviews The Latham Diaries by Mark Latham. (Melbourne University Press, hb, 429pp, rrp $39.95).

It is only six months since the political commentariat went into collective meltdown over The Latham Diaries - Mark Latham's searing account of his time in the Labor Party and how it all went toxic.

Since then the party has done its best to launder the whole episode out of its history; casual observers could be forgiven for thinking that the last ten years have consisted almost entirely of Kim Beazley, with perhaps a brief pause for Simon Whattsname thrown in for light relief. The year of Latham, with all its highs and lows, its promises and its gaffes, is not to be thought on; an aberration best forgotten.

In his address to the National Press Club last month (May), Beazley consigned two key Latham policies - Medicare Gold and the private schools hit list - to the dustbin and the general view was that the book was now closed. But interestingly, one Latham policy - arguably the most controversial of all - remains in Labor's platform: the withdrawal of Australian troops from Iraq.

When Latham first proposed this course in 2004 it was greeted with consternation. Howard and his media cheer squad derided it as a policy of cut and run; Alexander Downer, the excitable foreign minister, twittered that it would destroy the American alliance. Beazley was then sitting on the backbench and remained pointedly silent, and Labor's foreign affairs spokesman, Kevin Rudd, while loyally defending the policy, made it clear he was doing so reluctantly.

Almost unanimously the commentators described it as a catastrophic political blunder; most saw it as the start of Latham's downfall. And yet two years later withdrawal is not only a respectable option; it is almost the conventional wisdom. Beazley, a lifelong enthusiast for the American alliance, has no trouble embracing it. It appears that Latham has been vindicated; which leads to the obvious question, if he was right about Iraq, was he right about other things as well?

When The Latham Diaries were first published, most of the media focus was on Latham's scathing attacks on his colleagues; this was scarcely surprising as the blistering invective made much more exciting copy than Latham's more sober assessments of the party as a whole. By the time the serious commentators got around to substantial matters the caravan had moved on, and Labor's whole-hearted commitment to expunging Latham and all his works from the record as soon as possible meant that his critique never received the attention it deserved. If it had the recent turmoil over prese-lections in Victoria, with their shock-horror revelations of branch stacking, factional warlords and general sleaze may not have been averted, but it would at least have been made more manageable and caused less political damage.

According to Latham, the factional labels right, left and centre no longer have any ideological significance: they are simply the names of competing mafia families driven entirely by self interest. The caucus can be broken down into three main groups: Young Radicals (a tiny minority), Young Technocrats and Hawke Corporatists, the latter two being cautious and conservative and dominating the party's thinking. Almost all are more concerned with holding their seats than with anything else. From outside parliament the factional bosses simply deliver more of the same through their control of the preselection process.

The party grows progressively narrower and more incestuous as those who will not play the game get frozen out or become disillusioned and drop off of their own accord. And because the factions are built on mutual distrust, over time they fragment; the ALP now consists of a couple of dozen subgroups, each run by a petty warlord as his personal fiefdom. The situation has become not just unworkable and intolerable; it is beyond hope. Labor politics can no longer be salvaged, so no rational person should take part in it. End of story.

This is too bleak; for all its present troubles, the ALP remains the best hope of progressives, and there are already some signs of a grass roots revival as a result of John Howard's brutal industrial relations policies. The wheel will turn; it always does.

Latham is wrong to try and dissuade people from getting involved. Politics can be a frustrating, exhausting, even maddening game, but it's the only one we've got. Politics is still the only way to solve disputes without killing people.

Carmel Bird flies in for writing workshops

Lively and popular teacher of creative writing Carmel Bird will give two workshops on creative writing in Byron Bay in mid-June as part of the Northern Rivers Writers' Centre program. The first will teach the students and the second will teach the teachers.

Headstart - Creative Writing for Yrs 10-12 will be held on Saturday June 17. The workshop is aimed at HSC English students and extension English students in Yrs 10-12. It is prepared with particular reference to the NSW English curriculum.

Students will be asked to share their experiences and views of creative writing, and to express their hopes and dreams for their writing. There will be exercises in various forms of creative writing and a range of techniques and styles will be foregrounded, discussed and practised in the course of the day.

Creative Writing - Tips for Teachers will be held on Sunday June 18. This workshop is intended for anyone who teaches creative writing and would like to put more into and get more out of the process. It will be of particular interest to primary and secondary school teachers but is equally suitable for anyone teaching in adult education. It will be a practical hands-on day with a series of talks and exercises in both writing and the teaching of writing.

Headstart - Creative Writing for Yrs 10-12 will cost $25 for junior NRWC members and $40 for non-members. Creative Writing - Tips for Teachers will cost $45 for NRWC members and $60 for non-members.

Both workshops will be held at the Byron Bay High School from 10am to 4pm. Numbers will be limited and bookings are essential, call NRWC on 6685 5115 or email susie@nrwc.org.au.

Where to play: Byron Bay Services Club, Monday 7-10pm
Mullumbimby Poinciana Café, Saturday 2-5pm

Television Guide

1. Galaxy Quest (NBN, Saturday, 7.30pm) is one of the best spoofs ever of the sci-fi genre and Sigourney Weaver has great fun sending herself up. 2. Markku Peltola stars in Man Without A Past (SBS, Wednesday, 10pm), a first rate Finnish drama on the theme of amnesia (which usually seems to draw intelligent cinematic interpreters). 3. Dustin Hoffman is excellent as the idiot savant (called savant syndrome in polite circles these days) in Rain Man (Prime, Sunday, 10.30pm), as is Tom Cruise as his manipulative brother. ABC's new series Answered By Fire (Saturday, 10.20pm) starring David Wenham is particularly timely given the current trouble in East Timor.

Filmmaker David Bradbury reports on an unexpected detour to troubled Kathmandu

The king no longer has his Shangri-La

The crowd raised their fists chanting their demand for democracy. They had come to a standstill in the narrow cobblestone streets of Kathmandu and stood face to face with a line of police five rows deep. Behind the helmeted police with their shields and bamboo batons which they wield with brutal efficiency stood green clad soldiers with automatic rifles. The soldiers were the final back-up should the people break through the police lines and softer options of teargas, rubber bullets and baton charges. The people's goal? The royal palace one kilometre away.

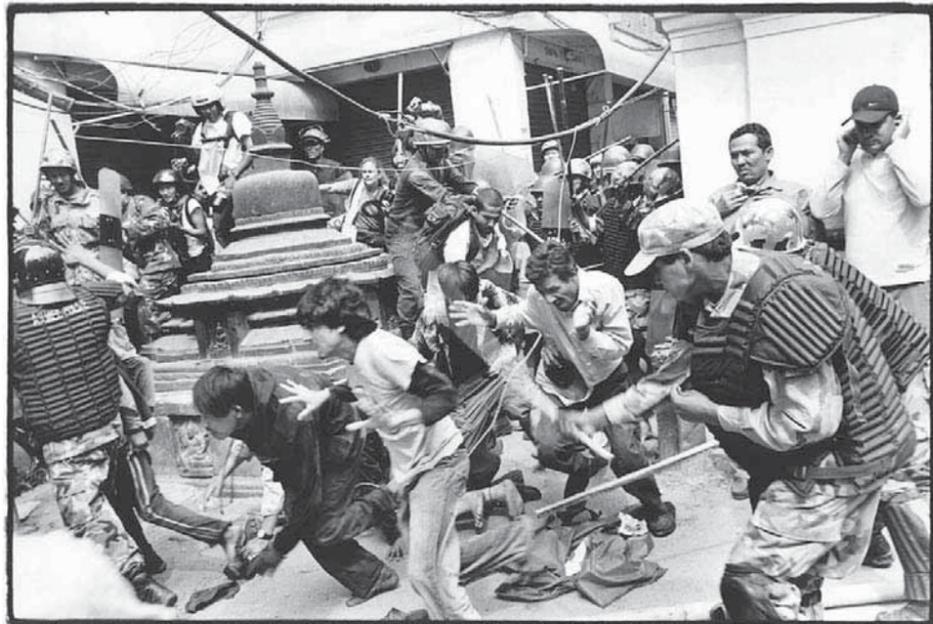

There King Gyandendra hung onto his absolute power with grim determination like a modern day Louis XIV. For two weeks and more before I landed in this hippy Shangri La of the sixties where cheap hash mixed with the flower children's desires to find the meaning of life, the demonstrators daily routine has been the same. People taking to the streets, burning tyres, stoning and torching taxis or any vehicle which dared to defy the general strike, confronting the police with their simple message. The king had to give back the power.

Already 14 civilians had been killed in this three week uprising, beaten to death or from live rounds fire. Thousands had pushed the hospital system to breaking point with wounds and cranial fractures from police batons.

The main focus of opposition and determination centred around several combative neighbourhoods on the outer 27kilometre ringroad that circles Kathmandu. Here the cry for democracy is greatest. It comes from the hundreds of thousands of people who have flooded into the capital from rural areas over the last two decades looking for jobs and a better life. In a country served by a reasonably independent media they cannot but compare their own miserable lot to the published corruption and lavish lifestyle of the king who thinks nothing of sending the national airline jet to Japan to pick up expensive material for his daughter's wedding.

To complicate matters, in the mountains that surround Kathmandu and stretch throughout Nepal to the mighty Himalayas and Mt Everest on the northern border with Tibet are the Maoist guerillas. The Maoists are committed to an armed struggle with a political ideology not dissimilar to the Shining Path in Peru in their determination to return Nepal to pre-modern times. The Maoists, inspired by Chairman Mao's guerilla tactics and ideology are disowned by today's Chinese leadership in Beijing who find them an anachronism in their own state driven capitalist ways to modernize China and make it the economic giant of the world. During this fight for democracy, the Maoists have declared a ceasefire and seem content biding their time watching how things pan out in the valley below where the seven opposition political parties have formed an alliance to back the people's push for the return to democracy.

I checked my camera was ready to go at a moment's notice and fitted my climber's helmet in case the crowd responded to the police with rocks and house bricks raining through the air. I'd had that happen around me a few times now and didn't fancy a rock in the face.

How was it that I found myself here thinking what would I do, where would I run for cover if the police did open up and the shit hit the fan? I was aware that I was just a bit player on this grand stage that saw the super powers of the world pushing the king to give the people 'democracy' so they could get on with more important business elsewhere.

When I left beautiful Brunswick two weeks before, kissing my kids goodbye to dash to Ballina airport to catch the plane to Thailand, I had no idea I would end up in Nepal.

I was going to Bangkok to link up with 41 year old Australian photographer Philip Blenkinsop who is based there to fly onto China. A peaceful assignment. Philip is to be the subject of my next documentary for SBS. Hopefully. But there are no guarantees in the film funding game.

Philip has lived and freelanced for the last 17 years covering lesser known wars and conflicts in SE Asia. He has a rather unique eye for the bizarre and extraordinary. With this gift, he has a strong sense of social justice and compassion that comes out in his photographs and his approach to his subjects. A natural choice you would think worthy of backing by either the ABC or SBS for the filmmaker who made Frontline (about legendary news cameraman Neil Davis in the Vietnam war).

On this day in this narrow street in Kathmandu the most dramatic moment of the last three weeks which had seen me dog his steps 24/7 was about to happen. And it's for the privilege of capturing and surviving these moments that you do it. You don't want to see them happen because people get hurt and I don't want that. But in a twisted almost voyeuristic way, as a filmmaker you are kept inspired by the opportunity to bear witness to events that somehow make more meaning of the good and dark sides of what it means to be human, what we are capable of doing. Not always a pretty sight.

Suddenly a tear gas round was fired followed quickly by another. The crowd immediately turned in a panic and their chanting energy transformed into flight as the cops charged with their batons swiftly raised and coming down on any poor wretch too slow or trapped by the fleeing numbers before him to get away in time.

A sea of sandals and abandoned shoes in those first few moments of mayhem were scattered before me as I looked up to film the fleeing crowd ducking down side alleys, running away from a continuing salvo of gas and batons.

Tear gas stung my eyes as I stumbled through the white mist upon Philip coughing and spluttering like me trying to get the wretched stuff out of his eyes and lungs. In good Neil Davis taught tradition, I kept the camera rolling no matter what and got some dramatic footage. I came upon a young boy of about 14 knocked unconscious to the ground wrapped in an embryonic position with a middle aged balding man I studied them in moments of a second like a sculptor or painter studies a nude. Wondering which angle best to shoot/paint them from. I remember thinking with cold calculation, how can I show the blood and this boy's five inch open gash to best effect? How best to show what these brutal bastards have done to this kid? The camera is a great tool to hide behind and distance oneself from what is naked reality before you, the same way people watch the news on TV and distance themselves in the emotional safety of their lounge.

Later the cops took off in another blood-curdling charge past us with batons, shields and helmets swinging and we were on the run again. Philip ahead of me and my camera wildly running showing cobblestones, sky and cops beating their bamboo sticks menacingly on the ground before me. Suddenly they came to the end of the alleyway which opened into a deserted marketplace. The cops paused for breath, a few smiling at their intimidatory charge.

A German traveller decided to take them on and give them a lecture in humanity. As he strode bravely into their midst giving them a serve up of why they should be ashamed of themselves, a couple of cops reared up in indignation but it didn't stop him. The officer had to move quickly to calm his men. The German continued to give them lip, denouncing their brutality. Philip snarled in agreement as he rewound his camera. He was outraged by what he had just seen and felt moved to challenge the officer in charge of the police.

'Do you have children?' he asked. 'Yes of course,' the young officer replied. Philip was angry and indignant. 'What are you going to tell your children you did in 2006? I beat the heads of other children in...?' The officer looked away. His other men looked away. A French woman took up the theme. She removed her surgical mask which gave some cold comfort from the tear gas.

'I am not afraid to show my face,' she told the officer. I felt him cringe again. I kept the camera on him and slowly zoomed in. His eyes showed tears and I felt for him. We found out later that he had a Masters in History and had never joined the police force to do this to his own people. An underling had fired the first tear gas shot that had started the panic and the baton charge.

Philip and I enjoyed a beer together back on the hotel top roof that night as the distant mountains embraced us in the nippy evening air. Glad to be alive.

Two days later the king went on television to announce that he would give in to the popular demand. He would hand back power to the parliament. The next day hundreds of thousands of people joyfully took to the ring road to celebrate their victory. It seemed the end to the story.

Flying out of Nepal the next day we read in the paper that the Opposition parties had chosen a dodderly old man of 83 who wouldn't be able to make it to the sitting of the restored Parliament the next day. We read that when he was previous Prime Minister he had been under a cloud of corruption charges for allegedly fleecing the national airline. The story of people's passionate determination being betrayed yet again seemed all too familiar. Philip and I knew this chapter was closed but he at least would be back again some day sooner than later. And I knew I had a lot of viewing to do to cut the pilot for SBS before I would head back again for more adventures with Philip.

■ If you would be interested to see some edited version of David's rushes shot in Nepal he says he would show them locally if there is enough interest as a fundraiser for the Frontline Film Foundation which helps fund films like Blowin' in the Wind and others. If you are interested in a local screening please contact Giovanni Ebono on 6684 6202 or giovanni@ebono.com.au.

Giving Peace a Chant

I RECENTLY REMARKED my aversion to chanting. In particular, chanting while wearing crocs. So when Nyck Jeanes and Rachel Zinman asked me to listen to their CD of devotional chants, Subway Bhaktis, as preparation for an interview, I was a little nervous. What if I suddenly became enlightened and gave up my job on the spot? What if I hated it? Thankfully neither happened, and I'm pleased to say that Subway Bhaktis is well grounded in the mechanics of good music but also offers purpose for those more spiritually inclined.

I played in on my drive back from Ballina and was so in the moment I nearly drove off the road into our local version of subway – you know, not the one that serves trains, the one that serves sandwiches.

Boasting 15 years together, Nyck and Rachel are the ultimate Mind/Body couple. Rachel in demand all over the world as a Yoga instructor and Nyck a broadcaster, publisher and provocateur. So why a CD? Petula Clarke warned Don't Sleep in the Subway, so should we be chanting in it?

For Rachel, putting melody to chant was just a way to try and remember her spiritual instruction.

'When I was living in New York my yoga teacher gave me different chants for health and well being – and to remember them I used to make up little tunes. I used to work in Manhattan and make them up on the subway on the way home – I'd sing it all the way home – I'd get home and say to Nyck here's a tune I've been singing and Nyck would put music together.'

It wasn't long before the chants found music and the songs found homes. According to Nyck 'We recorded 'Om Shanti Peace' with Kamal Engels our producer and he entered it in the Dolphin Awards and it won the best devotional music for 2003. When we were in New York doing Kirtan, which is devotional singing, in bigger groups we'd do some of the chants with a harmonium and people would sing along with us.'

'Most of the chants are traditional or variations on chants because this kind of stuff is varied. This is not classical Indian music, this is bhakti, which means devotion – so it's a form of yoga, and a celebration of the divine. We have taken it and made it our own – they are semi-pop and semi-ballad.'

As the two speak it's obvious it's been a great chance for them both to join in on a shared project, where each has something particular and complementary to offer. The accompanying images for the CD launch are passionate and exposed and I wondered if making an album like Sita Ram re-ignited the passion in a long term relationship.

There's a giggle and a 'Yes it did' from Rachel and from Nyck, 'It's more of a journey of our spiritual connection. A strong part of our relationship is that and the bond and friendship...we've always sung together.'

I do remember when Nyck and Rachel first met, hearing them sing together in the early throes of romance, at a cafe table somewhere in Belongil over a decade ago. They were the poster pair for passion.

So it's no surprise to see the theme continued, the title echoed in the masculine/feminine dichotomy of the album's production.

Rachel: 'Sita and Ram are the great lovers – and the elements of the divine – the Shiva/Shakti – that's why we did it like that ...It's really deep to write music together, and to be in the studio together. It's taken us about a year.'

The CD is a finely crafted delicate composition that reflects the careful planning and thought put in by the third party in the creative relationship, Producer Kamal Engels.

'He does all the programming, bass, keyboard... we went to him with raw tunes and he said, we can make something fabulous with that!'

For Rachel, creating the CD has actualised the deeper purpose of her yoga practise. 'For me that's what yoga is about, it's about the feeling you get in your heart – a lot of people when they chant will cry, and they say, I don't know and then into more eastern modes in to the celebration of the feminine and then into the masculine principle and then the two coming together which is Sita Ram and then coming together in a more orgasmic peace, and then receding into the subway – the true masculine and feminine.'

So, why the subway? What meaning does an underground travel system give to something as ancient as chanting?

Nyck: 'Those subway sounds you hear on the CD are real New York subway sounds...'

Rachel: 'My teacher actually gave me the talk once that when you fly it's easier to meditate but when you're in the subway you're really grounded because you are under the earth – it grounds you inbetween – so it's a great place to chant...'

'...it's been a journey for us and it's more like who we are – tongue in cheek – not new age people.'

why I feel so emotional – the chants are very hypnotic, it can be part of heart opening and can take you into a trance.

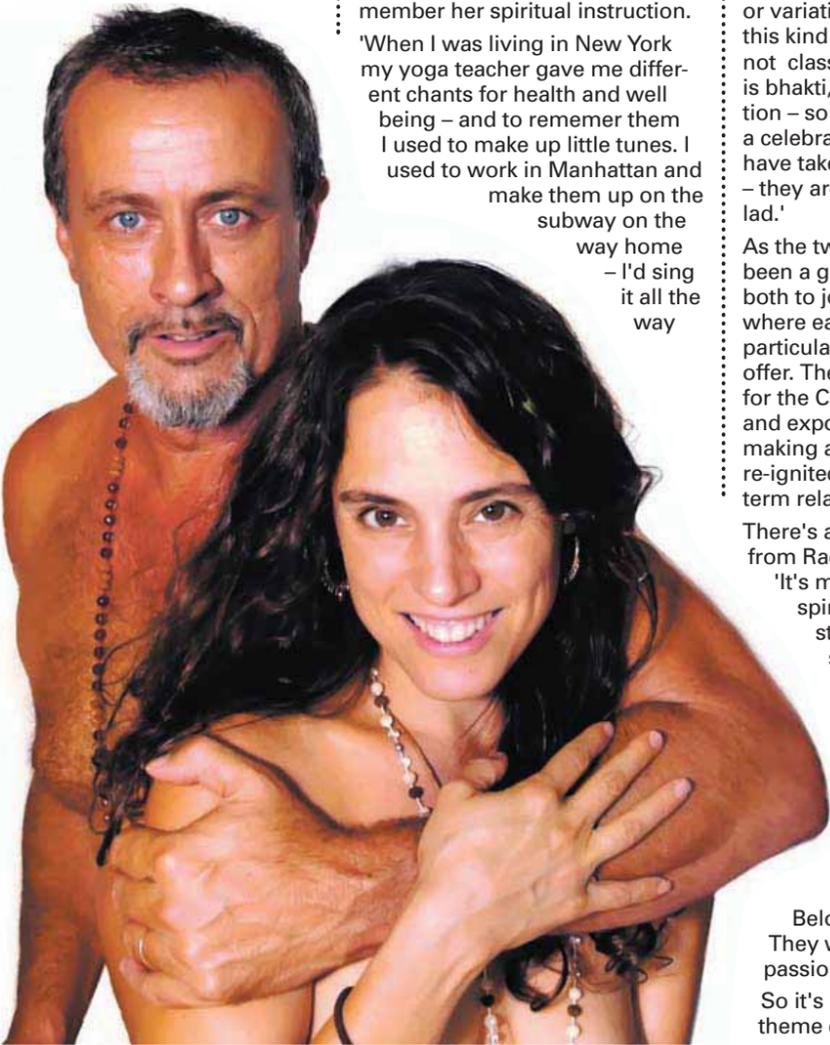

'You can get into these ecstatic trance-like states just by chanting – it doesn't matter what you chant as long as you repeat it over and over again. The theory is that you need to give the mind something to do and it's repetitive activity and if it's sound, the mind really likes it, so instead of giving it lots, you give it one thing to concentrate on, it doesn't really matter what...But in sanskrit, certain sounds have certain vibrations.'

Sita Ram is a journey in itself.

'The first chant is about removing obstacles and as you go through it opens to the possibility of enlightenment, opening the heart

Nyck: 'It's very much about us, because we are not airy fairy people and the sound of the subway and Nyck and Rachel reminds you that we are just ordinary people living in New York doing these spiritual things, it's been a journey for us and it's more like who we are – tongue in cheek – not new age people.'

THE CD is to be launched at the Byron Community Centre this Friday where the venue will be transformed to a subway in situ. Beautiful cover artwork and photos are by Roger Cosgrave. # A Curly Issue

Like most kids, I was convinced to eat my crusts to make my hair curly. Of course there has been no proven connection between the hardened outside of a wheat loaf and the spiraling of one's hair – but I gobbled them up in the vain hope that one day my hair would be a mass of ringlets. No luck, I'm cursed with straight hair, a fat arse and now I'm gluten intolerant. I found myself using the same flawed logic to convince my daughter to finish her sandwich and she choked in horror: 'as if I want curly hair.'

It's true. For the past 10 years flattened hair has reigned supreme. Not only do you have to be pencil thin, to be fashionable you need to have skinny hair as well. Most of us would gasp at the very idea of ironing our clothes but think nothing of ironing our hair to get that smooth sleek look. Apparently it makes you look younger. I think it just makes you look the same as everyone else. I am guilty of hair ironing, but why fork out $300 when a regular clothes iron is just as effective, and you even have a steam option.

With a decade of sleek and stunning locks, one can only ask: what happened to the curly people? Where have they been hiding their shamelessly big hair? Their unruly, uncontained, larger than life, curls? I think it's time the curly folk got together and fucked up the straighties. How much money have the curly crew been spending trying to tame their boundless bonces? How many hours have they spent covered in chemicals, trying to flatten their follicles, only to work up a sweat and have the whole thing spring up again. Bring back big hair. Hair that enters a room before you do. Giant curls. Tight curls. Frizzy curls. It's time the straighties felt the pinch, felt the sting of social exile when their hair is suddenly deemed 'uncool'.

There's something a bit Ku Klux Klan about the whole straight hair thing. Whities have straight hair. Black people have curls. Beautiful wild enigmatic waves. Every time I see Beyonce bouncing around with her flattened head I think let that Hair-do go free sister. It's time the mainstream machine stopped oppressing the freedom seeking frizz. Just say Yeah to Big Hair.

You can't think with straight hair. Hair are your antennas to the universe Man. George Bush would be a different dude with a two foot afro. Let the curls go free, unleash them in all their largeness. I won't be happy until I see all the smug little straighties lining up for a perm. Let them bear the brunt of a genetically unachievable ideal. Let them feel inadequate and daggy. Let them stink of chemicals and too much hairdresser intervention. Let's burn those hair straightening devices and liberate the lock. I'm sick of living in a globe full of straighties: bring on a curly world!!!

interview

THE BLACK STARS have found themselves being heralded as the next big thing. After three years of playing together they've emerged with an impressive debut EP, Wasted in Numbers produced by Phil McKennar,

I had a quick chat with drummer, Regan about pulling in a producer like Phil. 'We sent off a home recorded demo and he got back to us and said he wanted to do it. It was like a dream come true. He's renowned for his work with Spiderbait, Grin-spoon and the Dirty Three. You just don't luck out on scoring a world class producer. That's something most bands would sell their nanna for. Producers choose you. Getting the greenlight from Phil has been a foot in the door.

so renowned for what he does and we've been doubly pleased that he's been able to do it. We are hoping to launch the CD nationally, we're really trying to build up a fan base...unfortunately the growth in Myspace coincided with the increase in petrol prices, so it can be expensive to go and touch base!

They've received impressive accolades, with Paul Mac and Daniel Johns raving 'the music that you have created and given to us is absolutely brilliant!! We hope to see you around more...'

Matchbox Recordings in the UK has called it 'nice crisp, punk-modern rock style that goes for the throat'.

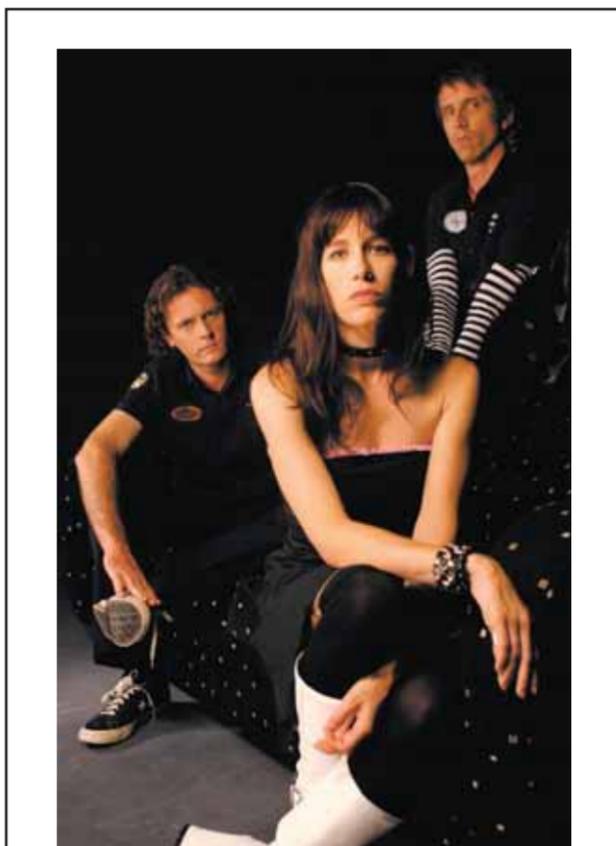

According to Regan the music is hard to pigeon-hole and the album could be best described as 'a ballad, moving to really visceral guitar tracks and then a really poppy track.' There's a great tradition of hard playing bands with energetic female drummers. In an industry that tends to objectify women and have them at the centre as singers, it always turns the tables when the only woman in the band is behind the drum kit. Chris Harding on vocals and guitar and Ian Buirrell on bass are both formerly from Sydney and have well and truly found their feet in this latest incarnation. Find out for yourself why people like Magic Dirt, Celibate Rifles, Antiskeptic and Giants of Science have invited them on board as support.

▶ THE JIVE ON JAZZ – Getting Straight
The Bangalow Jazz Festival over the Queen's Birthday weekend brings a horde of talent to the area. Straight Up are comprised of world class jazz musicians, this triumphant trio boasts a triptych of talent. With Eric C Ajaye on bass from the US with extensive experience, playing with musicians such as Freddie Hubbard, Bennie Maupin, Nancy Wilson and more...Eric has also done film and TV work in the US and since arriving in Australia he has performed with some of our country's leading jazz musicians. Michael Azzopardi tinkles the piano. The man started classical piano when he was five and moved on to jazz piano by 16. By that time he found himself playing with Sydney's best jazz and session musicians like James Morrison. Christopher Thwaite is a long time graduate of ANU school of music and has been playing and recording with bands like Malumba and Katook. Straight Up are exactly that, Straight Up are the best jazz you'll hear all night.

▶ OPENING THE JAZZ JAR

By now you'd be well aware that Bangalow is getting ready to break into some serious scat. In four venues over four days this equals one long weekend of fun. The opening night only tickets are available now and feature a stellar line up. With Badema, featuring Moussa Diakite, Twelve Tone Diamonds, Bobby Singh and Ben Walsh, Jackie Orszacsky Trio, Gerard Masters Trio, Roddy and the Fellas and True Live, this will be a complete knock out. Also performing is Axle Whitehead, presenter of Video Hits, and the Ben Winkelman Trio. So jump to it and don't miss out on the

▶ DREAMING ON – CELLULOID DREAMS

The Dreaming Festival pulls in an array of arts together, dance, music, theatre, comedy, street performance, poetry and film. In fact, nearly 70 full-length films, short films, documentaries and collections will be shown over this four day annual international indigenous festival held on the Woodford Folk Festival site. It promises to be a rare filmfest with an aggregate footage screening for more than 24 hours – so much that it could have patrons reeling. There will be movie magic of an indigenous genre contributed from several countries including Australia, the UK,

Canada, New Zealand, the USA, Papua New Guinea and Cambodia.

There are stories of love, smother love, mateship to mystery, struggle, strangeness, reunion and reconciliation, risk and revenge, discovery and dark deeds; the surreal and suicide, humour, horror and high hopes, inspiration and admiration, fear and forgiveness. Then there's passion and peace making, secrets, sadness and soulmates, loss, loneliness and the last of the nomads, war and whales, adventure and endangered species, triumph, turmoil and tribulation, courage and common bonds, reconnection and respect, humiliation and hip hop, dreams, demons and the desert, craft and cultural change, seasons and self-determination, recognition and the rice of life, and life in the forest.

▶ MIA TAKES YOU HIGHER

It's going to be the best Sunday evening in June when Aria Award winning Mia Dyson performs supported by Liz Stringer and Dirty Lucy. Most recently Mia was crowned Rhythms Magazine 2005 Artist of the Year. She's one of those rare artists who manage to waft between the lines of commercial success and credible, raw talent. Mia has been captivating crowds at festivals around the country and selling out her headline shows. Her Aria Award winning album from 2005, Parking Lots, is the follow up to her highly acclaimed debut, Cold Water. I Meant Something to You Once is the final single off that album. The song highlights the deliciously rich vocals that have become her signature calling card on stages around the world. She has a songwriting ability that has earned her respect and acclaim well beyond her 25 years. With tix at just $18/20 this will be an awesome night of duelling ballads and dirty rock. Bangalow A&I Hall on Sunday at 7pm. Tix are available at Barebones, Urban Cafe, Mullum Book Shop and All Music and Vision in Byron.

▶ IS THAT HUGH?

Hugh Cornwall was the original guitarist, singer and main songwriter in the UK's The Stranglers. He brings his solo show to Australia to promote his new album 'Beyond Elysian Fields'. Hugh has enjoyed massive success with ten hit albums and 21 top 40 singles in the 17 year period that he was in The Stranglers. He has revelled in his musical freedom ever since he stepped off the stage at a soldout gig the Stranglers did back in 1990 and announced it was the last time he would be fronting the group. Hugh felt it was 'a bit like having a noose' around his creative neck and that it was time to do something different. He said 'to leave a band you've been with for 17 years is an emotional decision and you feel it internally. The hard thing was not being able to talk to anyone about it. But I wanted to do it and that was that.' Hugh Cornwall is one of the world's great singer songwriters. He plays the Beach Hotel on Friday. Show starts at 9pm.

▶ LISTEN TO LOREN

This month's Epiphany Arts at Stoker's Siding Community Hall features Loren who first appeared as the support for Lior. He was so popular, the organisers decided to get him back. Singer/songwriter Loren is now three albums into what is proving to be an encouraging musical career.

On this, his first studio album 'Community' showcases his belief that strong communities are essential to building a better world. Able to switch between honest, soulful, acoustic tunes, to that of more uplifting groove laden folk, Loren is as enjoyable as he is diverse. Friday, with bookings for dinner by Wednesday. 6677 9457

▶ MUSIC FOR THE ENVIRONMENT

World Environment Day is all about celebrating the sustainable interaction of people in the environment. A song has never destroyed a forest. It's never put a hole in the ozone. But a song has inspired change, it has got people up, got them passionate and got them moving. That's why it's so appropriate to have musicians performing to celebrate the day. The musical program kicks off at Uki Hall on Saturday evening with Future Native, King Marong and Safara and again in Murwillumbah's Knox Park from 1pm - 3pm.

▶ THE SULTAN OF SING

We're in for a musical treat when Dan Sultan and Scott Wilson hit Why Not Restaurant in Byron Bay on Thursday. They finished off last year playing the Falls Festival to 25,000 people and released their first album in March this year backed by the John Butler Seed Program and The Australia Council for the Arts. Xavier Rudd has welcomed them on board on his national tours and they have been invited to record a song on the upcoming Kev Carmody tribute album alongside The Waifs, Tex Perkins and John Butler. What an Honour! See them up close and intimate from 6pm.

Mia Dyson
Bangalow A&I Hall on Sunday

▶ WALKING THE LINE

The Who sang 'The Kids are alright' but after you've seen the JayWalks, you'll be testifying that they're not just alright, they're frigging awesome! The band is barely in their teens with Robert Raguse at 13, Alex L'Estrange at 14 and Edward L'Estrange at 12. These guys formed back in 2003 – when most of their mates

M The A to Z of Collective Nouns

Imagine a dry Australian outback scene and a MOB of kangaroos in the distance. See the MISCHIEF of mice in the old shed and hear the noisy 'aark aark' of the MURDER of crows? You won't see a MISSION of monkeys or a MUSTER of peacocks but you might see a MURMURATION of those pesky starlings. Other more obtuse nouns are a MEWS of capons, a MELODY of harpers and a MOVEMENT of moles, while in a nearby town you might find a MELLOW of pot smokers.

– a microcosm of your body's health and wellness

Dr Jon is both a Conscious Dentist as well as a Metaphysician.

Holistic means to take into account the whole body in the context of healing – each tooth corresponds to a different system, gland, organ or meridian within the body. The health of your mouth, teeth and gums are a reflection of what's going on within the body, so through treatment with Conscious Dentistry, balance can be restored to whole being.

On a metaphysical level, Dr Jon's extensive training and skills can help him to help you address emotional issues, restrictive mental patterning problems that are manifesting physically, ideal nutritional and detox programs, allergies to food, people and places and to identify spiritual challenges from this and/or other lifetimes.

were going to boy scouts or sitting at home twiddling their thumbs on their playstations. Somehow these guys managed to get themselves into the Guinness Book of Records being the youngest band in the world to get a release banned from radio play. An edgy pre-pubescent howl under the doona, 'Fat Chicks' was a seminal turning point for these young men. Taking out a place at the Pocket Rocket competition at the YAC last weekend, alongside fellow Ballina band, Brittle FX, these guys are fronting the big stage at the Beach Hotel this Thursday. It's serious young punk. Mum and Dad can play in the sandpit, and the kids will join the mosh. It's just amazing to see the depth of talent these kids have - what's even more amazing is that it's coming out of sweet, quiet and rather sedate Ballina, a town renowned for being more nerdy than groovy. Way to go. Lovers of rock should catch these guys, they are seriously good.

IN THE NEIGHBOURHOOD

Tomme And The Neighbourhood return to their spiritual home of Coorabell Hall this Friday as part of their national tour celebrating the release of their new album Kachampo. Unlike his first CD, No Added Sugar, a live studio recording with full band, KACHAMPO features Tommee playing every instrument, as well as writing, arranging and producing all 11 tracks. His very particular goal was to bring together the sounds and spirits of the three influential tribes of his life and music; the Sudanese of West Java as represented by the kecapi, a versatile 20-stringed instrument, the Javanese of East and Central Java who crafted the percussive kaleng arumanis and his native Bima tribe from the island of Sumbawa, whose language features on KACHAMPO and inspired all the lyrics. The result is a musical journey that furthers Tommee's path of soulful, uplifting roots music presented with subtle virtuosity, total originality, and irresistibly funky grooves. Tommee And The Neighbourhood's most recent performance was at the WOMADelaide Festival where they were described as the revelation of the Festival. Not only was it an honour to share the stage with so many great musicians from all over the planet creating a multicultural vibe which is the essence of Australia for Tommee, but he also prepared a traditional Palumara Fish Soup for over a hundred people as part of the festivities. 'I was more nervous in the kitchen than when I am on stage,' says Tommee. Be transported to the jungles and be infected with the rhythm of freedom!

FUNKING GOOD

A blissful, mystical, 'zingy' night is guaranteed at the Coorabell Hall on Saturday with funky feel-good grooves set to fill the air, and the dance floor. Purveyors of conscious groove, The Blissmongers top the bill as they perform a farewell gig... before a four-month break, as lyricist Murray Kyle briefly departs to probe musical avenues in Europe and the US. Helping them raise the vibe will be the aptly named Mystic Beats with their eclectic and transporting sensory sound. Special guests, Zing, complete the line-up, playing tracks from their latest CD, 'Seeds of Thought', in a special night of hybrid world/dance music that is sure to leave a smile on the face and a glint in the third eye. Yummy food will be available on site so you can 'fill up' as you 'get down'. Admission is just $10. Doors open at 7.30 pm.

A VISTA OF SOUND

It's getting close to the end of the Vista's autumn season, full houses and incredible nights of music continue to amaze and delight the punters and performers alike. Mark Heazlett, high on the list of favourites, is back with his from-the-heart lyrical songs once more. He brings his Cancerian sensitivity and flawless artistry to guitar and vocals. Sara Tindley returns to present songs from her forthcoming CD. Sara is simply as good as it gets, a true Aussie country-style storyteller with the most easy-listen voice, vibe, looks and funky-simple guitar chops in town. Tarshito and Paul Kimmell are back with guitar and flute respectively. These mega-well-known and loved musical friends never fail to take their listener on a journey. A recent new face (he wowed 'em), imported from Tamworth, Guy Kachel opened his debut set with a brief intro, then whammed into a song with full country guitar and top oz-country voice, singing 'I was born in a town where stars collide!' It got better from there. Catch this guy if you like the real thing in country music. The Atmospheres, a globe-trotting Atmo and Bharti, transform transcendental love concepts into songs with easy musicality, and use guitar and acoustic bass to orchestrate the harmony of their vocals. Vasudha, of the groovy keyboard and self-penned songs is like an up close and

Drawing on her own experiences, Melanie has responded to each of these images in her preferred medium - oil paint on canvas. They will be celebrating their different interpretations in a collaborative exhibition 'We See Things Differently' at the Piece Gallery and Studio in Mullumbimby throughout June. The exhibition opens on Friday from 6pm.

RELATIVE SUCCESS

Wet Paint Gallery presents an inspiring collection of works by Cath Grant and her three children. This is a unique exhibition comprising of artwork from a funky family, who are as colourful in spirit as they are on canvas. 'It's All Relative' is an eclectic collection, including acrylic works on canvas, board, block-mounts, gourds, and a Maton guitar. It reflects the art of putting fun back into family. A family that paints together, well, I don't know, I suppose, they exhibit together. Opening on Saturday at 134 Mt Warning Rd, Uki.

THE TRUDY FACTOR

Trudy Factor is a much loved local artist with great energy and love of a good party. Trudy opens her signature gallery this Sunday with a host of friends who are coming to help celebrate, so you can enjoy Trudy's work and the musical surrounds. Featuring the talents of Lisa Hunt, Andy Jans Brown and Didjworks, this will be one chilled out fun Sunday art happening. From 3.30pm, unless Trudy decides otherwise. 12 Bayshore Drive, Arts and Industry Estate (next to the IGA).

▶ MERCHANT OF VENICE

It's a classic piece of theatre, and one that needs to be in your experience bank. This romantic comedy has always provoked great delight and a certain amount of controversy. It's centered on the character of Shylock whose name has become a synonym for meanness. He is an outsider, a usurer and plots revenge for the way he is treated and elicits our empathy for his pain and loss. Enjoy the tragic downfall in a disturbing statement about the way we live! Thursday and Friday, 7 & 8 June at Lismore City Hall. Bookings to 6621 5600.

▶ OFF WITH THE FAERIES

In 2004 artist Karena Wynn-Moylan received what was possibly the most 'left field' commission in her career to date. Author Vincent Selleck was looking for an artist to illustrate his book of Oracles depicting beings he calls Elanfae: Spirit guides for the human race. And just to make the commission all that more interesting Karena was asked to paint depictions of these entities from verbal descriptions provided from Vincent's 'channelling'. With true visual artist gusto Karena relished the opportunity and threw herself into the project producing over 100 extraordinary plates for Selleck's book and film. The presentation will explore how Karena and Vincent developed an effective way to communicate to enable the images to take shape. DANCE ▶ A GAY AFFAIR TO REMEMBER!

We should be very proud of two of our local dancers, Andi and Jesse will be heading off overseas to represent us in the first World Outgames, joining 16,000 other gay athletes participating in 35 sports in Montreal. To send the girls over there in all their chiffon, chintz and glory, we've got to get behind them and raise some dosh. It's the kind of story dreams are made of. The girls are having a fundraiser at Coorabell Hall next Sunday from 3pm until 6pm which Jesse joking calls 'Dancing with the Queers'. It's not really, it's called Flounce and people can come along and enjoy some home-grown ballroom and latin dancing with some instruction by teacher Kylie Mowbray-Allen so everyone can join in. Keep Sunday 11 June free!

Rails' will be back in the world of poetspeak on Sunday at the Rails. This month's show features two of the region's acclaimed writers: poet Max Ryan who has won several awards for his writing and performance including the 2005 Ann Elder award for first published poetry collection, 'Rainswayed Night'. While Lillian Rock writer Christine Strelan is a popular performance poet, well known for her novels and poetry collections. Open and invited readings as always, and new and visiting writers are forever welcome. Show starts at 2pm.

CALYX is a UK based drum and bass chef du jour renowned for his signature dish; a melting pot of 'dirty, twisted' techstep with a peppering of 'epic' neurofunk. Previously the Calyx project had two members, Larry Cons and Chris Rush (both of Oxford), but nowadays Cons rolls solo, in part as a result of his continual evolution as a musician. Cons' arrival on the DnB scene at the start of '98 was a milestone in a musical journey that began in his early childhood. Having studied five instruments from a young age, Cons went on to play with bands in several genres, perhaps most prominently as a guitarist in numerous Jazz and Funk bands, including his own eight-piece outfit 'Octane'. While he had set his sights on establishing himself as a professional jazz guitarist, that was all to change when he became obsessed with DnB during his uni years. Cons eventually succumbed to the urge to produce his own tracks, and teamed up with fellow musician, friend, and like-minded DnB fanatic, Chris Rush. Thus the original Calyx duo was born. Having spent most of their grants and several student loans on buying studio equipment they found themselves forced to consider beans, and multiple variants of beans, as their staple diet night after night. The sacrifice paid off however, when they began to turn their brainwaves into soundwaves. After putting together a demo tape of seven tracks, they mailed their work to several labels, and it wasn't long before the calls started coming in. Releases were quickly lined up with No-U-Turn, Rugged Vinyl, and of course, Moving Shadow; their home for the years ahead! The dark and swirling 'Cubic/Narcisis' was the first release to launch Moving Shadows' sister label Audio Couture, in February '98. This was followed swiftly by the massive 'Tectonic/Recall', which was released in March that year. Now things have 'blown up' Cons' student days seem a distant past. DJing has taken him from Iceland to Puerto Rico, 'I never thought drum and bass would take me somewhere like that but it's got a massive following there'. But has he been to Byron? 'Never been there before but I'm excited about it. A few of my mates have played there and it comes highly recommended. You know Byron always stands out in people's minds when they recount their OZ travel experiences.' I asked Cons what places were prominent in his travellers tales, 'Anywhere you see something alternative or dangerous', elaborate on dangerous, 'like bombs going off', but you can find that at home (in London). 'True but I was nowhere near them. Funnily enough when it was all going down my friends abroad were all calling me to see if I was okay but you know I think statistically I had better chances of winning the lotto than being blown up. I suppose it's good that they care but all in all it was pretty small scale given the population of London.' Upon hearing this I mused how funny it is that some places have such an inflated concept of danger when the greatest source of injury can lurk in the comfortable corners of the everyday... Cons acquiesces; 'Totally. A few years back I was playing Frisbee and mate, I pulled off the greatest catch of all time. I was diving backwards, I caught it behind my back but I landed on my head. I slipped three vertebrae in my neck and damaged some cartilage, so I spent the next year as a cripple. I had a neck brace for six months and I was flat out on my back. I couldn't make much music so I just opted for some big 'herbal' remedies.'

Check Calyx getting dirty and twisted with one hand and musically epic with the other at Play this Wednesday, but leave your Frisbee at home... it's not funny.

AFTER NEARLY A YEAR of regular Sunday gigs that have featured musicians DJs and laptop geeks from all over the world. Cyberbas is moving to a funkier Friday night slot at the Buddha Bar.

Justine's Budget Response

The concerns locals raise around the kitchen table are the concerns I fight for in Canberra

“Federal Labor’s Pact with middle Australia is built on one promise: When you put in, you get back.” That’s the commitment from your local MP Justine Elliot. “Mr Howard and Mr Costello keep claiming the economy is so good, but I know families in Richmond are really under pressure.

Families are paying for the triple whammy of rising interest rates, the rising costs of petrol and cuts to wages and overtime caused by the Howard Government’s extreme workplace laws.

“Treasurer Peter Costello failed to take advantage of a once-in-a-lifetime resources boom to invest in the training of young Australians. It is criminal that in 10 long years John Howard has failed to provide the training that Australians need to make our country competitive again.”

Federal Labor’s Pact

1. Fix the childcare crisis, with $200 million towards building 260 new childcare centres, giving Australian parents childcare places where they need them.
2. Fix the skills crisis by introducing free TAFE for traditional trades and childcare workers.
3. Build a broadband information super high-way so everyone can get access.
4. Train young Australians instead of importing foreign apprentices.
5. Help families secure their future prosperity by putting job security back into the industrial relations system.

Delivered: $335,000 for Mullumbimby’s Hall

It’s great news for the district - the Mullumbimby Civic Memorial Hall will soon reopen its doors. This is the result of a lot of hard work by the entire community.

Justine Elliot, Federal Member for Richmond was delighted to be the bearer of such great news - $335,000 has been secured in Federal Government funding for this worthy memorial hall.

Combine this with $547,000 from the Byron Shire Council, $50,000 from the NSW State Government plus pledges from many community groups for volunteer labour, including an offer from TURSA’s ‘work-for-the-dole’ group and the work will be soon underway.

“This is such a great result for locals and shows what can be achieved when all levels of government and a community work together. I will always fight to get our fair share of federal funding” Justine said.

The historical venue, which had to be closed for safety reasons, will soon receive a massive makeover and will once again become the town’s cultural, social, educational and creative hub.

Above: Byron Shire Councillor Ray Kestle, Justine Elliot & Byron Shire Deputy Mayor David Westheimer acknowledge the huge effort by the entire community that will see the Mullumbimby Civic Hall reopen.

Howard's axe falls on local workers

Local MP Justine Elliot organised a public inquiry held in Richmond with a Parliamentary Taskforce on Industrial Relations. Justine stated;

"I wanted the Taskforce to come to our area and hear first hand from locals about the terrible impact that John Howard's extreme workplaces laws are having on local workers and their families.

"Workers from a range of industries including construction, hospitality and retail told of how they'd been sacked unfairly, forced to sign workplace agreements and had their overtime and holiday pay slashed – all since the new workplace laws came into effect.

"I am very concerned that young people are particularly at risk of exploitation under these laws."

Justine and Federal Labor are serious about protecting workplace rights so local working families can have the stability they need.

Only a Federal Labor government will rip up these unfair laws and give workers back their rights.

Left: Taskforce Chairperson Brendan O'Connor MP & Justine listen to Dale Kelly's recent work experiences. John Howard's unfair work laws will hurt many young people.

NO
Nuclear Power

- A Federal Labor Government will not pursue nuclear power in Australia
- The economics of nuclear power simply don't stack up here
- There is no safe way to dispose of waste from nuclear power stations
- Developing nuclear power now would have ramifications for Australia's security
- John Howard wants to have nuclear power stations in Australia

Federal Labor says NO to Nuclear Power

Great WIN for our local Apprentices

Boat building apprentices were excluded from the Federal government's $800 tool subsidy until local boat builder, Bob Peel and local MP Justine Elliot got involved. Thanks to some well placed questions in Federal Parliament, Justine was delighted to have the Government "backflip" on the 'Tools for Your Trade' incentive scheme decision. Boat building apprentices commencing their trades will now be able to get this tool purchasing allowance.

Bob Peel, owner of Multihulls to Go, at Murwillumbah initially made Justine aware of the industry's problem. Boat building apprentices require a toolbox of at least 20 costly tools worth many thousands of dollars.

"The Government had initially determined that boat building was not a trade or occupation in skills need. From what local boat builders were telling me, I knew Canberra was wrong on this and it had to be fixed" said Justine.

"Its great to have a win that will directly assist our local industry. The $800 will take some of the financial pressure off apprentices as they buy the tools they need to learn their trade."

Helping hand for boatie learners

By ED SOUTHOON

THE Tweed's booming boat-building industry, with annual turnover approaching $20 million, has successfully lobbied to ease discrimination against local apprentices.

But the fight to encourage more urgently needed boat-building apprentices and tradesmen to the Tweed is not over yet.

Bob Peel, owner of Multihulls to Go, Murwillumbah, enlisted the support of Richmond MP Justine Elliot after boat-building apprentices were excluded from a tools subsidy, even though the subsidy was granted to other nearby tool-dealing trades, including mechanics and After asking questions in Federal Parliament, Ms Elliot secured a federal government "backflip" on the Tools for Your Trade incentive scheme, introduced to combat the national skills shortage, which pays $800 per apprentice towards the cost of tools.

Ms Elliot said the government had initially determined that boat-building was not a "trade or occupation in skills need".

However, the subsidy now will be extended only to new boat-building apprentices, not existing apprentices.

For Mr Peel, that means his five current apprentices will not benefit – in fact, they will miss out on a total of $4000.

And even though the tools subsidy is designed to help him hire new ap-

Federal Labor's Goals for Aussie Kids

Above: Local girl Georgia Meredith is telling Julia Gillard (Shadow Minister for Health) and Justine about her future goals. Federal Labor has strong new policies to improve the health and wellbeing of our kids – so they get the best chance in life.

Everyday we are seeing great advancements in medicine and healthcare. While a lot of progress is being made, Australian kids are not fitter or healthier than kids of earlier generations. Conditions such as obesity, mental illness, diabetes, asthma and allergies are increasing at a rapid rate amongst our young people.

Something needs to be done; otherwise future generations simply will not live as long as we will. Federal Labor believes that the best investment a country can make is in the healthy future of its children. That's why we've released Goals for Aussie Kids- a policy package to improve the health outcomes of our kids.

Goals for Aussie Kids includes:

- Screening of all newborn babies for health problems
- $5 million for research into the causes of serious food allergies
- A national childhood obesity campaign
- A fresh approach to tackling mental health problems among young people
- All recommended vaccinations will be given to all babies
- Ensuring pregnant women get enough folate in their diet so that fewer babies are born with spina bifida.

Rising Petrol Prices

Recent figures show the cost of the average Australian family's fuel bill has increased by a staggering $400 per year. Family budgets are feeling the pressure and the flow on effects to business are significant.

"Soaring petrol prices are hurting local families and businesses. I want the Howard Government to stop putting oil company profits first and take action to fix the problem" said Justine.

"Our area has a large number of people employed within the tourist industry. I am concerned that high petrol prices will lessen the number of people visiting our region and therefore will hurt local jobs and businesses."

"I believe Australians deserve a government that has a plan for the future and one that is willing to take action.

As your Federal MP I will continue to fight for local families and fairer prices at the petrol pump".

Federal Labor's plan is to:

- Direct Australia's consumer watchdog, the Australian Consumer and Competition Commission, to monitor price hikes.
- Make Australia self-sufficient in fuel so we are less dependent on foreign oil. This can be achieved by investing in alternative fuel industries like gas and bio-fuel.

Does your not-for-profit or charitable organisation need an Australian flag? If you would like one presented at your group's next meeting, please contact Justine's office for details.

BALLETS RUSSES

The past is indeed a different country, one in which celebrity status was awarded for achievements more praiseworthy than getting strung out on heroin. Hardly anybody today could name a prominent ballerina, yet in the nineteen-twenties and thirties they were internationally known stars who were regularly in the vanguard of artistic movements, collaborating with the likes of Picasso, Dali and Stravinsky. Established in France by Russian émigré Sergei Diaghilev, the Ballet Russes, comprised entirely of performers who never danced in their homeland, split into two competing companies and toured the world for thirty years, including a seven month sojourn in Australia, becoming synonymous with glamour and theatrical splendour. This documentary begins at a 2000 New Orleans reunion of surviving members and combines archival footage of the troupes touring, rehearsing and performing with present day interviews. They are now old but their vitality is undiminished. The film has been brilliantly edited and what might have been a late night SBS time-filler turns out to be an inspiring and intimate insight into a vanished world, with some surprising post ballet career diversions. It's all about dedication, discipline, joie de vivre and, above all, passion for the work and never tiring. John Campbell

CANDY

When few Australian feature films are being made, it is arguable that, so soon after Little Fish, another dealing with the dreary subject of drug addiction might be seen as superfluous to needs. It reflects the bourgeois conceit of funding bodies and their blinkered assessment of what is socially relevant, that getting down in the gutter is deemed to be more honourable and rewarding than reaching for the sky, that ugliness is more meaningful than beauty. Luke Davies and director Neil Armfield apparently took three years to write the screenplay of Davies's book about himself. You would have thought that in that time they might have come up with a story. There is none in this. What we get, despite the polish of its execution, is nothing more profound than rubbernecking at a car accident. As Candy, Abby Cornish is sometimes out of her depth and not helped by being made up to appear pretty and healthy throughout. Heath Ledger looks the part and is compelling and totally believable as her hopeless husband Dan, as are Noni Hazelhurst and Tony Martin as Candy's forlorn parents. But the end result is a boring and unedifying account of destructive, grubby lives. John Campbell

THE WORLD'S FASTEST INDIAN

The World's Fastest Indian stars Anthony Hopkins in one of his most endearing, least showy performances. On the surface it's a movie about an old coot and his motorcycle, but it is also about a kind of heroism that has gone out of style. These days, when movies often fatuously exploit youth and condescend to age, it's refreshing to see such a picaresque action movie. Based on the true story of New Zealand motorcycle builder and racer Burt Munro, he is shown trying to set a speed record on his ancient Indian Scout motorcycle at Bonneville Salt Flats in 1967 at the age of 68. The film is directed and written by Roger Donaldson who grew up in New Zealand, where Bert Munro was a folk hero.

Table Talk

Fine Young Chefs

The Lexus Young Chef of the Year Award has announced seven finalists in this year's competition. They are: NSW/ACT Beau Vincent, Assiette, Sydney; VIC Adam D'Sylva, Longrain, Melbourne; SA Melanie Gowers, Adelaide Convention Centre, Adelaide; QLD Ben Devlin, Restaurant 2, Brisbane; WA Joe Ditri, Kings Park Function Centre, by Fraser's, Perth; NT Anelle Bosch, Oscar's Restaurant, Alice Springs; TAS Iain Todd, The Henry Jones Art Hotel, Hobart.

Luke Mangan (glass, Hilton Sydney) and business partner Lucy Allon have established the Lexus Young Chef of the Year Award to help inspire and nurture Australia's hottest young talent. Many young chefs struggle to maintain their focus and enthusiasm in a highly competitive industry. This award aims to encourage and inspire young chefs to keep focused on their goals and give them an opportunity to be rewarded and assisted in their careers.

Finalist judge Lyndey Milan said, 'Last year was an amazing first year. This year, with all the publicity surrounding last year's superb event, not only were entries up but the competition was much tougher. I was blown away by the depth of knowledge of different cuisines, real cooking skills and desire to create a personal style. There were many more girls entering this year too and they certainly gave the boys a run for their money.'

The seven state finalists will be brought to Sydney for a cook-off on Monday June 5 at the Australian Women's Weekly Test Kitchens. Each finalist will be given three hours to prepare three courses – an entrée, main course and dessert. The entrée and main course will be produced from a mystery box of ingredients, and the dessert will be set. At the conclusion, each finalist will present their dishes to the judges and talk about their career achievements to date and their future career objectives.

Special guest for the evening will be legendary chef Michel Roux from The Waterside Inn, in England. Roux, a strong advocate of supporting young chefs with his own program, the Roux Scholarship, is recognised as one of the world's most accomplished chefs.

The national winner's prize package includes the prestigious opportunity to represent Australia at the S Pellegrino Cooking Cup in Venice in July 2007; a return Virgin Atlantic flight from Sydney to London, UK; one week's work experience at world renowned chef Michel Roux's three Michelin Star restaurant The Waterside Inn in England; a two day tour of the Champagne region, France; a Lexus Exclusive Experience Voucher; $2,000 cash, and a trophy and certificate.

Any young local chefs wanting to throw their hats in the ring next year can find out more at www.youngchef.com.au.

CHAMPAGNE CHAMPAGNE – Champagne aficionados around Australia can put their palates to the test by entering the 2006 Vin de Champagne Award. Organised every year on behalf of the Comité Interprofessionnel du Vin de Champagne (CIVC), the award not only aims to celebrate and encourage the enjoyment of champagne in Australia but seeks to find Champagne Ambassadors who will share their knowledge and appreciation of champagne.

'No other wine award like this exists in Australia or in any other major market for champagne in the world,' says Elisabeth Drysdale, director of the Champagne Information Centre. 'The award has run for over thirty years and has produced some of the finest champagne palates in the world.'

Entrants will be required to answer a number of essay questions on Champagne viticulture, terroir and history and are expected to have some knowledge of the administrative and marketing structure of the Champagne industry. State finalists will be flown to Sydney to undergo a final judging before a panel of judges in which they are required to show their skills in tasting a range of Champagnes selected from non-vintage, vintage, blanc de blanc and rosé styles.

Find out more at www.champagne.fr.

Champagne imports into Australia for 2005 climbed to 2.29 million bottles, jumping nearly 36% over the previous year.

Marketing decisions bring home the bacon

Victoria Cosford

At the Byron Farmers' Market I am told almost sharply by one of the stallholders that 'of course it's grown locally otherwise we wouldn't be allowed to sell it'; chastened, I move on. This mild Thursday in autumn a piano accordionist fills the morning air with cheerful melodies, a village soundtrack to my enraptured meanderings from stall to stall. A market larger every time I come to it, this morning's suggests so many delicious meals I immediately want to cook that I drift in a sort of trance, broken intermittently by greetings from people I know. The Italian heirloom eggplant with its pretty stripes reminds me how long it has been since I baked the desperately fattening but utterly luscious Parmigiana with its layers of fried eggplant slices, tomato and cheese (perfect with a plain green salad and a bottle of respectable red); the baby green capsicum the size of kiwifruit give rise to the urge to fill them with a stuffing of breadcrumbs, fresh herbs, garlic and cheese and roast them until they sizzle. The fresh green local prawns are a relatively recent addition to the stalls' offerings; I make a mental note to ask my mother in the next letter I write for her extremely old-fashioned recipe for Garlic Prawns (because despite my embarrassment of cookbooks and food magazines and the probability that I could even just make it up, I still feel the need for precisely her directions and doses in order to recreate precisely her dish.) The bush limes, the fat bulbs of fresh turmeric and globes of elephant garlic, the Japanese taro, the punnets of miniature red and yellow tomatoes and the green pawpaw all call out for some seriously exotic, enviably impressive dinner party menus, until I remember that what I love best is simple food and uncluttered flavour, preferably of a Mediterranean persuasion.

I could, however, do worse than a majestic fruit platter at meal's end, serving up some truly exciting fruit. Crimson dragonfruit I know, love and revere already; here, suddenly, is a smaller uglier version of it, a knobby prickly yellow beast which, according to its Friday Hut Road growers, is actually much sweeter and even more delicious than the red variety though rarely cultivated because of so many prickles. There are lemon-flavoured custard apples, spectacularly ugly; there are jackfruit, soursops, guanabana, chocolate puddings, golden tamarillos and longans. In my mind is the long wooden vessel like an impossibly narrow canoe, Javanese or Burmese, that I saw in the Nurybah Gallery at Newrybar, in which I would artfully arrange all this extraordinary fruit...

Instead I find myself ordering bacon rashers from the Byron Bay Pork stand, my mind made up. This cooler weather, dark by the time I arrive home from work, means that comfort and cosiness will dictate the meals I prepare, the relentless cycle of seared fish and salad ruptured at last. I have a dozen organic eggs, a huge bunch of basil and another of parsley, and I plan to make my version of Egg and Bacon Pie. Not my mother's - which to this day she brings along to picnics and parties and Very Nice Too - but a gorgeously light herby one whose base, employing cream cheese, can be whipped up in seconds in a food processor.

EGG AND BACON PIE WITH BASIL

For the pastry: whizz together 125 gr. diced and slightly softened butter, 125 gr. cream cheese, 250 gr. plain flour and 2 tblspns iced water in a Food Processor until it comes together in a ball. Knead a couple of times then chill in plastic wrap for at least 15 mins. Roll out 2/3 of the pastry and line a greased springform tin. Pour boiling water over 6 bacon rashers (rind removed) and set aside for 2 mins before draining and patting dry. Line the pastry base with 2 rashers. Combine 1 cup chopped parsley with 1/2 cup shredded basil, 6 green onions finely sliced and 30 gr. freshly grated parmesan. Sprinkle 1/3 of this mixture over the bacon then carefully break 3 eggs, one at a time, into a cup then pour over herbs. With a skewer pierce each egg and season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle over half remaining herb mixture and 3 more pierced eggs. Season then top with remaining herbs and bacon rashers. Roll out remaining pastry and cover pie - pierce with a fork and brush with an egg-wash. Place on a pre-heated oven tray and bake at 220°C for 10 mins. Reduce heat to 180°C and bake for 25 mins or until the pastry is golden.

With Sun, Moon and Mercury – planets of energy, emotion and communications – all in talkative Gemini, the competition for air space is fierce this week. But listen up and there'll be a welter of pertinent information you can put to immediate use...

ARIES: Aries are particularly sensitive to rejection, and sometimes handle disappointment and frustration – well, explosively. If your plans get scrambled this week, don't give in to why-me thinking. And don't underrate the value of being happy – or making others happy either.

TAURUS: This week Buddhists give gratitude for the Triple Blessings of Buddha's birth, enlightenment and passing. Bringing calm and equanimity to the present differences of opinion and dealing with glitches creatively is not only good karma, it's mandatory for your sanity.

GEMINI: In the words of Gemini John F. Kennedy, the epitome of Mercurian popularity and persuasiveness: 'Let us never negotiate out of fear. But let us never fear to negotiate...' This week's about brokering agreements and the kind of win-win deals where everyone benefits.

CANCER: This week's mixed signals, contradictory messages, forgetfulness and insensitivity require a high tolerance level from you, the Crab clan – but friendship's precious, so try to move past small upsets. It's an ace buying/selling/negotiating week for a shrewd bargainer like yourself.

LEO: You're in the mood to indulge, exaggerate, overspend – and oops! divulge something you forgot was confidential. This week some interesting inconsistencies between what you say and how you behave are likely to show up for your examination and education.

VIRGO: If you start the week in two minds about something – a common occurrence during Gemini transits – maintain a spirit of adventure and stay open to chance. That schitzy feeling dissipates with some delightful synchronicities solving your dilemmas in the simplest way.

LIBRA: Librans have a curious way of addressing problems which can appear to others like not doing it at all. But there's such an influx of new information coming in right now that you're quite right not to make major decisions for the time being.

SCORPIO: Gemini transits are about updating, and this week suggests reexamining your attitudes and beliefs in the light of current conditions. Which ones still apply, but could do with a makeover? Which are enduringly beneficial? And which really need ditching...

SAGITTARIUS: Honestly, what's the rush? Left to your own devices you're quite capable of dealing with problems simply and effectively.

Keep this in mind instead of getting swept up in this week's soap opera dramas and complicating your life unnecessarily.

CAPRICORN: Emotions are on a collision course this week. You want to be footloose and fancy free, others want you taking more responsibility, while reality weighs in with commitments, bills and demands. Don't let battling agendas cause a separation – find creative compromises.

AQUARIUS: Aquarian inconsistency levels are high right now – enthusiastic one minute, couldn't care less the next. But you need to get a grip because this week's just the ticket for rethinking financial strategies, assessing resources and reorganising your savings.

PISCES: Moderation isn't an easy concept for Pisceans, who are total immersion people. But you'll do best if you can stay in one strand of passionate enthusiasm this week rather than flying off on a dozen different, stimulating tangents that fizzle out and go nowhere.

Bang Thai

Will enchant you once more with their next degustation night, as chef Graeme Stockdale continues to woo diners with his gorgeous modern Thai food. Six courses of heavenly tastes are on offer in the cosy comfort of this popular Bangalow restaurant, but make sure you book as places sell out fast!

Byron Street Burgers

In two weeks' time Byron Street Burgers will be known as Byron Street Bistro. An exciting new French bistro menu will be available for lunch and dinner. The burgers will remain on the lunch menu alongside authentic country French specialities. Pascale's experience is extensive and this new venture will offer you some provincial dishes using local produce of this region. As in France the use of our local farmers markets will provide much of the seasonal ingredients.

DEPARTMENT OF LANDS

NOTIFICATION OF THE PROPOSED CLOSING OF ROADS

In pursuance of the provisions of the Roads Act, 1993 it is hereby notified that the Minister for Lands proposes to consider closing the Public roads within Byron Shire as described in Schedule 1 below.

Schedule 1:

- Crown public road separating Lot 2 DP 859817 from Lot 1 DP 1048569 at Everitts Hill, Parish Brunswick, County Rous. GF05 H76.
- Crown public road within Lots 3 & 4 DP 586578 at Main Arm, Parish Mullumbimby, County Rous. GF05 H96.
- Crown public road separating Lot 3 DP 631949 from Lot 5 DP 773520 at Yelgun, Parish Billinudgel, County Rous. GF05 H199.
- Crown public road separating Lot 3 DP 592005 from Lot 42 DP 838110 (eastern-most 250 metres) at Coopers Shoot, Parish Byron, County Rous. GF05 H252.

All interested persons are invited to make written submissions concerning the proposal to the Manager, Crown Lands NSW, PO Box 272, Grafton 2460, within twenty-eight (28) days of the date of this advertisement.

Having regard to the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act, information contained in such submissions may, at the discretion of the Minister or his delegate, be referred to the person(s) who initiated the proposal and/or Byron Shire Council for appropriate consideration.

In the event of closing of the Crown public roads proving to be unobjectionable it is further notified that, on a date not less than fourteen (14) days after the date of notification in the Government Gazette of the closing of such road, consideration may be given to the sale of the included areas of Crown land under the Crown Lands Act, 1989.

You may not see Council's development application advertising as it is not placed in your community paper. As a free service, therefore, we regularly list all significant new DAs on public exhibition, making clear exactly what is sought in the applications and identifying the location of the land affected.

We urge readers to follow up on DAs they feel may affect them by visiting Council's office before the advised closing date and making an appropriate written submission. Be aware that all submissions are deemed to be public documents.

Lions give Wollemi pines to schools

All schools in the area will get a chance to plant a Wollemi Pine thanks to the Lions Club of Brunswick Mullumbimby with Wilsons Creek Public School and The Pocket Public School the first to receive their trees last week.

'Over the next few years it is hoped that all schools in the local area will be afforded the opportunity of receiving these "dinosaurs" of the plant world,' said Colin Tarbox from the Lions Club. 'As the cost of each tree is high, it will take a few years to make the offer of a tree to all schools. Also, because of the size of the trees and planting conditions needed (eg well drained soil), not all schools will want a plant but our club is committed to providing the trees to local schools as funds permit.'

During the last week Steve

Steve Deak presents a Wollemi Pine to Aydan Clothier representing students and teachers at The Pocket Public School.

Deak and Colin Tarbox have been out and about, commencing the plant-out of trees to schools. For more information about the scheme call Colin 6680 2456.

More fundraising for MS Society

At the end of last month The Echo reported on intrepid trekkers Marie McDonald and Fran Slattery who are hoping to raise $8,000 for The Multiple Sclerosis Society when they take part in an 11 day trek in Ladakh, Northern India later this year.

The pair has taken its first steps towards their goal with a highly successful fundraising dinner held at Fishheads recently.

They are now onto their next fundraising project: a Bhutanese film night to be held at Byron bay Golf Club on June 15 at 7pm. Three films will be shown during the evening including a video made during Marie's recent trip to Bhutan which was organised by Bangalow psychologist Suellen Donnelly who has made several trips to Bhutan and was looking for people to share the experience.

Marie describes Bhutan as 'A truly amazing country nestled in between China and India which is virtually entirely mountainous. Only 300km long and 150km wide, it is not an ordinary place, and has one foot in the past and one in the future.'

Suellen is now organising another trip from September 24 to October 6, so anyone interested should come along to the film night.

Entry for adults is by $10 donation to the MS Society; $5 for children under 16 years.

Sports Roundup with Alex McAuley

Lisa Arthur is Mullum's new golden girl

Mullumbimby mum Leisa Arthur is back from her adventure in Tasmania where she represented Australia in the women's over 35 hockey team playing New Zealand in the Trans Tasman Challenge. Leisa had a terrific tournament as goalkeeper and kept a clean sheet in her first stint representing her country.

'The weather was dreadful,' said Leisa. 'It was pouring rain and there were puddles of water everywhere, so there were lots of injuries.'

Despite the conditions, the Australian girls dominated New Zealand, winning all three of their matches in spite of a close scrape in the first game.

'It was 1-1 at full time after the other keeper was unlucky to concede a late goal,' said Leisa, 'and it was still drawn after extra time so it went to penalties. The other keeper was fantastic and saved four of the five shots.' It was the first time the over 35 women had won the challenge for six years, and not only did they bring home gold medals for their efforts, Australia also won the cup.

Leisa is now focusing on the state titles in Toowoomba next month where she hopes to gain selection for the Queensland team. Assuming she is successful, she will then travel to Darwin where the Australian team will be chosen, which will travel to Edinburgh where they will compete against most of the world's teams.

If she is successful, she will be holding a trivia night in early July and running a number of raffles in order to help pay for the trip.

Giants need to stick to their game plan

The Giants were back on form last weekend in their Northern Rivers Regional Rugby League clash with South Tweed, at least they were for one half of the game. Starting strongly, the Giants went into the break with an impressive 42-4 lead, however coach Paul Latta was not impressed by their second half performance.

'When we came back out after half time it was as though we'd switched off,' said Latta. 'I put it down to complacency; we thought the game was won, but if we're going to be competitive we've got to play for the full 80 minutes, and we've got to stick to the game plan.'

Murray Brown was the exception and had an excellent game in both halves, while Scott Hogan shone in the first half. With the end of the first round in sight, the Giants need to start stringing their wins together to cement a spot in the top four at the business end of the season.

'Although we couldn't manage first or second now, third place is still attainable,' said Latta. This weekend the club plays South Grafton in reserves with the first grade going down for the solidarity which Latta hopes will help pull the troops together for what will be a very physical encounter with top of the table Casino the following week.

Final score Mullumbimby 58 d South Tweed 24; reserves Mullum 36 d Sth Tweed 4; under 18s Mullum 29 d Sth Tweed 24.

Valley soccer looking forward to finals time

Another good week for Brunswick Valley Soccer Club resulted in wins for three out of the four teams. The top three grades are all well placed in their respective tables and hope to be in contention come finals time.

The second division side romped to a 6-1 win over a lacklustre Lismore Workers. A sublime goal from midfielder Shane Anderton followed quickly by yet another strike from Aaron Duffey put the Valley in the driving seat early on. Despite relentless pressure, Workers managed to keep it that way until the break and even managed to pull one back. As the second half progressed, the opposition finally run out of steam and the floodgates opened. Two goals from Brazilian wing wizard Chris de Carvalho and one from the irrepressible Casey Mills put the game out of Workers' reach. Defender Heath Ogston also got his name on the scoresheet, a just reward for his solid work at the back and penetrating runs forward.

The thirds had everything to play for in their local derby clash with league leaders Byron Bay. The Rams started brightly and asked a few difficult questions of the Valley defence. A commanding performance from captain Justin Isaac and some tough tackling from Eric Steele-Boyce ensured that the opposition could not find a way through and became increasingly frustrated.

The Mullum boys got the break they needed just before the interval when a Dean Treveton rocket found its way through the congested goal mouth and into the net. Towering centre back Kirk O'Sullivan scored an almost identical goal in the second half to see the game finish at 2-0.

The Fourths also had a convincing 5-1 win over the Nimbin Headers to consolidate their impressive league position. The Fifths fought hard, although they were finally overcome 4-0 by Lismore Thistles. Good performances from Chris Fenwick, Lucas Mott and Jeff Berkovic.

Rams victorious after a nail biting finish

Last Saturday Byron Bay's Hotel Great Northern soccer premier and premier reserves played hosts to Lismore Workers and shared the spoils.

The premier reserves, who had been playing so well and were joint leaders seemed to leave their playing boots at home and before they knew it they were 4-0 down to a fast moving Lismore side. To the Rams credit they did get a goal back before the break, and the second half was a more even affair with a goal each to the Rams and Workers.

The Premiers, who were also leading the competition, played third placed Workers and from the outset they dominated. The two wide men, Patrick L'Orange and John Bradbury, were too fast for their opponents and were a constant menace. Finally after a succession of near misses, Bradbury scored with a spectacular strike from 35 metres out which sailed into the top corner of the net. It was L'Orange's turn next and he followed a poor clearance to stab the ball home for a 2-0 halftime score.

The Rams continued to dominate in the second half but couldn't get the elusive third goal to put the result beyond doubt. Disaster struck when Workers squeezed home a goal and then three minutes from time scored again. However the Rams weren't going to surrender their lead on the competition and went on one last sweeping raid with defender Aaron Richter-Steers on the end of the final pass. His angled shot was right on target, to the delight of the Byron Bay fans. The team played well as a unit and certainly deserved their win. Next week both teams are away to Lismore Thistles Thirds went down to Mullumbimby 2-0; over 35s had a win 4-2 over Kyogle and the women had a big 4-1 win over Alstonville.

Don't forget the trivia night at the Hotel Great Northern on Saturday June 10 from 6pm. All junior and senior teams need to organise a table; those from outside the soccer club are welcome also. Tables of eight at $5 per person; lots of prizes and fun. Come dressed up as your favourite team. Ring Vlad on 6685 6676 by Friday June 2 to book.

All the girls are set for a showdown

Sally Fitzgibbon of Gerroa is one of Australia's exciting young talents and will be competing at the Lennox Head Icon Australia All Girls Surf Showdown being held June 10-12.

With only one week to go until the June long weekend and the Icon Australia All Girls Surf Showdown, ratings for the competitor's drawer are being collated. The open pro division is truly a who's who of the women's professional circuit with many girls returning to defend previous titles including Stephanie Gilmore, Laurina McGrath. Last year's finalists Kathy Newman and Sandra English will be back along with up and coming young surfer Sally Fitzgibbon who finished runner up in this year's World Grommet Titles.

The competition is already at maximum capacity in most divisions but there are limited spaces in the 14/U and longboard divisions. Competition kicks off each morning at 7.30am at the most contestable surf break at Lennox beach or Ballina North Wall, with the chosen site advertised outside Lennox News and on the grass opposite the Lennox Point Hotel.

The Lennox Fire Brigade will be firing up the barbie for their sensational breakfasts and burger lunches, with coffee/tea and cold drinks to quench any thirst, and beachside activities will be running daily with great prizes on offer.

Enquiries can be made to Event Coordinator, Vicki Bellato on 0414 753 766 or email allgirlssurfshowdown@bigpond.com.

Byron wins its battle of the forwards

Matt Alexander

Byron Bay Rugby entered the second round of the Village Competition in strong form downing second placed Evans Head in a hard physical encounter at the Byron Rec grounds on Saturday.

Byron planned to play a tight game early, but fast turn overs and a mobile back three threw the game plan to the wind and they ran in an early try to winger Mick Dlak. The game seasawed through the first half with Byron landing two penalty goals to take the lead 11-0 but were unable to contain the Evan's forwards close to the line and let in a try to go to the break 11-5 up.

The game continued to be a torrid forwards encounter as Evans gained mastery of the set piece while the Byron forwards were more dominant at the breakdown. A slashing move to the Byron backs which started from nothing was turned into a try by fullback Rob Caldwell and took Byron out to 16-5. In spite of everything the Evans team could throw at them, Byron held out the KillerWhales and took a well earned victory.

Special mention was made of Flanker Andrew the Super Welshy, the Albino Rhino Liam and the Great Holmesy.

Next week sees the much anticipated second clash between Byron and arch rivals Bangalow at Bangalow at 2:30pm. With Bangalow's immensely strong forward pack and slick backline, Byron will have to produce something special.

There will be a reunion for all Byron players - past and present - after the game this weekend. Come along and support the team and catch up with a few old mates.

Aussies on fire at Cloudbreak

Some excellent conditions in the early rounds at Cloudbreak, Fiji for the Globe WCT set the scene for some great surfing, and with Kelly Slater out of the event due to injury, the opportunity is there for some of the lesser gods to shine. Australians have dominated the competition so far, with 12 winning their way through to the round of 16. Surprisingly, Parkinson and O'cay were eliminated in round three, however Byron Bay's Danny Wills (pictured) is in great form and will take on current world number two from the USA Bobby Martinez after a convincing round three victory over South African Greg Emslie. ### Move Right In

It is ready. It is central to Mullumbimby town. It is a great home for a young family or tradesman. The home consists of 3 bedrooms, a two way bathroom, a modern kitchen, a separate living room and a double garage with auto door.

The 9x6x4 m colorbond garage/shed at the back of the property is ideal for a tradesman with power, water and a mezzanine floor for extra storage. Schools and shops are all in walking distance. The vendors have bought elsewhere and are very motivated to sell. Give us a call, have a look and make an offer.

Baby Boomers Dream

This beautifully architect designed and hand crafted timber home sits on top of a hill on 1 acre of land with a perfect north east aspect and is only 4 km from town. The home features 3 bedrooms, 2 bathrooms, cathedral ceilings, 6" brushbox floorings, a modern kitchen with Smeg appliances and a 100 year old Australian cedar front door. Any number of rare timbers have been used in the finishing of this magnificent home. There are old trees on the property and many different palms have been planted keeping the garden low maintenance. This is the perfect 'Tree-change' place for the professional couple or 'Baby Boomers'. Is this you?

Family Home Near Steiner School

InRealEstate has just listed fabulous 8 flat acres near the Mullumbimby Shearwater Steiner School. The north facing home has high ceilings and timber floors in the living area and a large combined kitchen / dining area leading out to an 8x6 m deck overlooking the paddocks. There are four bedrooms whereby the master bedroom is air conditioned with an ensuite and built ins. Two single garages are built onto the house and there is a separate double garage next to the house. The property is newly fenced and there is plenty of room for a pool and some horses. This is an ideal home for the growing family. Call now for an inspection.

Hard To Believe

Solid weather board home on three quarters of an acre with plenty of rain water tanks, sheds, studio and a swimming pool. The house features 3 bedrooms + study, an airconditioned master bedroom with walk in robe and ensuite, a functional timber kitchen with a 1200 mm stainless steel La Germania stove, timber floors and 9 ft high ceilings. The 9x6 metre shed is a dream for every bloke to have and there is a separate studio which can be rented out. Top it up with a swimming pool and a dozen mixed fruit bearing trees then it is hard to believe what you get for your money. Owners are moving to Sydney and are keen to sell. Understatement of the week came in Mayor Jan Barham's report in last week's agenda: 'It's now two years into the term of this Council. There's never been a dull moment...'

The Cosmic Couple Marie and Philip will be down at Byron Bay this Saturday evening for anyone interested in having a close look at the Moon, Jupiter and Saturn – through a telescope, not by astral travel or some-such. Join them down at Bay Street reserve just past the surf club around 5.30pm. If it's cloudy they will try again on Sunday, same place. Details www.starrynight.com.au or 6680 2448. It's a great opportunity to get up close with the shiny bits above our heads.

With only a few sleeps to our 20th birthday, we're getting all nostalgic. The Echo was born on June 11, 1986, and has been a dark and brooding Cancer ever since. The second issue reports on the 'long-awaited' exhibition

Fresh from the oven: Ceramicist (or ceramist) Doug Young of Young At Art hand crafted each of the trophies for The Jasons, The Echo's awards night being held next Saturday to honour local community heroes and celebrate our 20th birthday, from a design by our cartoonist Geraldine Searles, who summed up Byron's diverse interests in the garb of bondage harness, strap-on dolphin fin and sarong. Photo Jeff 'Half-Baked' Dawson of the draft Shirewide local environmental plan and suggests it provides for 'management and development of this Shire into the 21st century'. How optimistic is that!?

Backlash began a few years later and its first logo was far more dramatic. (We're far less bondage-orientated these days.) An early column from 1989 noted complaints about an overenthusiastic dog at South Golden Beach. The more things change...

The Steel Can Recycling Council is issuing a challenge to Australia – if every one of the 7.5 million households in Australia recycles just one steel food or aerosol can on World Environment Day June 5, 500 tonnes of steel will be saved from landfill. This is enough steel to build 385 family sedans, 33 train carriages, 11,111 family sized refrigerators, and 8,064 household water tanks. The 500 tonnes of steel cans that the Council aims to collect this World Environment Day will save 566 tonnes of iron ore, 317 tonnes of coal and 27 tonnes of limestone. See more at www.cansmart.org. An average family sedan, pictured here, contains 21,000 cans worth of steel.
