Byron's Dan Murphy DA delayed

Victoria Cosford

The contentious issue of a Dan Murphy liquor store in Byron Bay remains on hold pending Council's recent move to defer the decision.

Reasons for the deferral were parking availability and concern for pedestrian safety.

Cr Tom Tabart said that while he had no intrinsic objection to the store, he felt there was a need to obtain more history on parking in the area.

Representatives of Azzura Constructions had met several days previously with Byron Shire councillors and other interested parties for a side-inspection of the proposed site.

Crs Patrick Morrissey, Tony Heeson and Tom Tabart joined town planner Chris Lonergan, Tom and Cath Mooney, and The Cellar's Darren Pearson in a 'walk-through' of the premises.

Azzura Constructions are the landowners of the Byron Bay complex comprising the Dendy cinemas and the car park to the south of Woolworths.

Contract administrator with the group Julie Nutting said that they wanted to create a welcoming amenity and environment with the extensive refurbishments and reconstructions involved in the new store.

'Obviously we are going to make a substantial facelift, with new pathways and new amenities installed,' she said.

'There'll be new concrete foot pathways, we'll relocate the cafe to the back and it's all going to be repainted.

'The footpath will extend all around and there'll be new gutters, street trees to replace the internal landscape, landscape screening to cordon off the cafe area and a fire-wall.'

Parking concerns

Hotel operator Tom Mooney expressed concern about the car parking issue but was assured that traffic engineers had reviewed the issue. 'It's all been checked,' said Ms Nutting.

'We've done a detailed traffic assessment and considered that.' At his query regarding whether or not Azzura Constructions were aware of the proximity to a preschool and a church she replied that, 'a full social impact assessment has been prepared and is available for viewing.'

Chris Lonergan told The Echo that he was there on behalf of some of the shopkeepers.

His main problem with the DA, he said, was the issue of conflicts between pedestrians and vehicles.

'The main thing is that this shouldn't be passed unless the conflict is minimised between traffic and pedestrians - and it isn't,' he said. 'It's a bit inappropriate for vehicles and pedestrians to have to go in and out of the loading dock.'

Cr Morrissey said that he did not have a particular objection to the company as opposed to any other companies but that from a planning point of view, public amenity was at stake.

General manager of The Cellar bottle shops Darren Pearson told The Echo that he just wanted to make it clear that 'we don't believe this is the right location for a big-box liquor store - for a whole raft of reasons.'

'But the main thing is parking. The DA puts a semitrailer delivery bay in the middle of a pedestrian footpath, and asks those semitrailers to reverse against the flow of traffic through a public car park!'

'It is obvious that this development offers significant conflicts between pedestrians and vehicles.'

He passed on a quote from a Victorian Road Safety Committee Meeting held in 1999 by a Mr Chris Raywood, Group Property Operations Manager for Woolworths Ltd.

'Wherever possible we endeavour to separate loading docks from public car parks... from a design perspective we are very, very conscious of trying to get that separation.'

'Even Woolworths don't think it's safe to put a loading dock in the middle of a public car park.'

Sales dropped since Ballina store opened

Asked what impact the new Dan Murphy has had so far on his Ballina Cellar store, Mr Pearson told The Echo that there has been a significant drop in sales and profit.

'Enough so that we've had to trim back hours,' he said.

Opposing Cr Tabart's motion to defer at the Council meeting, Cr Diane Woods said she supported the development, claiming that 'we're putting off the inevitable and giving people an excuse to take us to court.'

Moratorium lifting gives development green light

Ray Moynihan

Development in Brunswick Heads and Mullumbimby has been given a major boost with the opening of a new sewage plant and the lifting this week of a long-time moratorium.

Byron Shire Council voted unanimously last Thursday to lift decade-old restrictions on development in the Brunswick Valley catchment, which runs from the coast, west to Mullumbimby. According to Council documents, the completion of the $40 million upgrade of sewage treatment in the Brunswick Valley will enable 'additional load from approved development and growth.'

In practical terms this will immediately enable higher density residential developments in the existing towns, though its impact on the possibility of major new subdivision is uncertain.

Private town planner Stephen Connelly hailed the lifting of the moratorium as extremely good news, describing last Thursday as 'celebration day'.

Mr Connelly, who works for developers large and small, said ending the moratorium will open options including more affordable housing, granny flats and business alterations, though 'some will be unhappy' about the growth which will inevitably follow.

The historic motion was moved by Councillor Ross Tucker, who also warmly thanked the Council staff and contractors involved.

Councillor Diane Woods said the combination of lifting the moratorium, and dropping the fees for granny flats meant Thursday's meeting was one of her 'best days' since she'd been on council.

Granny flat fees to be waived by Council

Ray Moynihan

In a move designed to boost affordable housing, Byron Shire Council will drop the steep fees for those wanting to build granny flats.

Currently that can amount to almost $20,000 in Byron Bay.

At the same time, Council plans to create a register to try and ensure the new dwellings are used for affordable housing, rather than simply providing more tourist accommodation.

Council voted unanimously to remove section 94 developer's charges and section 64 sewage charges, though Councillor Basil Cameron expressed grave concerns there would be no real 'enforcement mechanism' to ensure granny flat rents were affordable.

Echoing warnings from

Council staff that enforcing compliance would be 'very difficult,' Cr Cameron suggested having 'planning agreements' to try and make sure new flats are not used for short-term visitor accommodation.

Rejecting the idea of new planning agreements, Mayor Jan Barham said all Council could do was 'create the opportunities and just have a bit of trust in our community.'

Most councils in New South Wales don't charge large upfront fees for granny flat developments - also called garden flats - and the plan to waive the fees in Byron Shire has been in the pipeline for some time.

It is considered as one strategy to provide more affordable housing.

Council documents made available to The Echo underline the depth of the crisis in the Shire.

They reveal that among those purchasing their own home, almost 1,000 households are in 'housing stress,' and among renters over 1,300 households are in stress, which is defined as having to spend more than 30 per cent of income on accommodation.

Across the state five per cent of homes are public housing, while the figure in Byron is less than two per cent.

Currently the combined section 94 and section 64 fees for a one-bedroom flat in Byron Bay are just under $20,000 and over $26,000 for two bedrooms, while fees are less in other towns.

Cr Diane Woods welcomed the move to waive the fees as a 'fabulous' development, saying she might build a granny flat and move into it herself.

In order to have the development fees waived, a granny flat will have to meet certain conditions, including being no bigger than 60 square metres.

Council staff noted the waiving of charges will reduce general funds, but may also reduce Council's need to directly invest in affordable housing projects.

OS Roundhouse plans rejected, for now

Roundhouse Action Group (RAG) supporters presented their self-funded plans to a split Council last week. Photo Jeff 'Casting Jokes' Dawson

Hans Lovejoy

Mayor Jan Barham used her casting vote this week to sell the Ocean Shores Roundhouse property; however, community group RAG (Roundhouse Action Group) haven't given up hope of a community facility just yet.

A rescission motion has been submitted by Cr Diane Woods, and with the support of Cr Simon Richardson, it could mean a win for RAG's self-funded community centre.

Cr Richardson was absent Thursday and therefore did not vote, but it is understood he supports the plans.

'I will be putting forward an extension until September,' Cr Woods told The Echo, 'which will be supported [at least] by Cr Tony Heeson and Cr Richard Staples.' She says this extension will provide time for an updated market appraisal, and she also expressed concerns for selling the property 'in a depressed market.'

RAG spokesperson Ri Fraser said, 'Does Council represent the community, or has Council become soulless short-term cold-hard cash-grabbers?'

'Does the GM and staff control councillors with fear of no cash, so they leave their hearts at the door? We understand why Council needs cash to pay for the blown-out un-budgeted Ewingsdale Sportsfields and other excesses.

'Comments from some councillors showed they had not understood, nor even read, the Roundhouse community business plan, which would bring in cash while still giving the community what it needs.

'Innovative community government cooperative developments like this are being encouraged the world over, but here in our 'progressive' Shire, Council has just killed this brilliant community-Council initiative stone cold dead.

'But we have not given up. It is heartening that five councillors support 97 per cent of the community who value social cohesion, cultural innovation, learning through creativity, and community gatherings at the Roundhouse, not just cold hard cash.

'Many people are saying any Roundhouse money will be spent on the Byron Bay Sports and Cultural Complex.'

Response on landfill fumes inadequate: residents

Hans Lovejoy

Concerns over toxic fumes at the Myocum Landfill have not been adequately addressed, say neighbours.

Resident Suzie Mylecharane addressed Council on Thursday, and despite the EPA implementing a new monitoring system worth $60,000, she says not enough is being done.

'Council are only doing a one-off sampling in eight locations, and we have been advised by a Sydney consulting firm that this is not thorough enough.

'Monitoring over a longer time period, as the gas is not always present, would be more likely to give results. Also our request to be able to communicate with this consultant has not been granted.

'It is essential that we be part of the monitoring process as thirty-plus households are breathing in this gas on a daily basis. Surely our information will be helpful.

Landfill report to be undertaken

'We are also wondering how Council approved a three-year extension to the Landfill without consulting with the residents. Is this legal? We have been given verbal assurances that this landfill will be closing in three years... for the last ten years. We don't believe anything anymore.'

While Council staff did not answer Ms Mylecharane's questions when asked by The Echo, they did say construction of a landfill gas collection and flaring system is continuing, with completion scheduled for the end of April.

Council's waste manager Russell Chaplin, said Council had submitted a proposal for the gas collection and flaring system to the Environmental Protection Authority (EPA).

He said the EPA had since modified the landfill's Environmental Licence to facilitate the installation of the gas collection system and flare.

'As a result, Council has monitored the gas from eight points on the landfill to determine the chemical nature of the gas and will submit the results to the EPA by April 21, 2011.

'An assessment to identify all existing and potential odour emission sources from the site, and identify mitigation strategies, will also be undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the EPA's Technical Guidelines.

'A monitoring program for the gas collection system and flaring must be established to ensure compliance with the requirements of the Clean Air Regulations, prior to commissioning the flare.' Mr Chaplin said Council was also engaging an external consultant to undertake an odour emission assessment, and a report on the gas emissions, flare installation and commissioning will be presented to Council on April 28 prior to the system being turned on.

Independent investigation clears Councillors

Ray Moynihan

A formal investigation has cleared two Byron Shire councillors following allegations they breached a code of conduct by criticising Council staff.

The investigations were ordered by the Council General Manager Graeme Faulkner and they highlight the sometimes tense relationships between elected councillors and staff.

In one case, Greens councillor Simon Richardson was accused of having 'impugned the reputation' of staff within council's compliance section, after he made comments about a fine issued to a ratepayer for littering.

'Displeasure about media coverage'

However, independent reviewer David Wolff found no evidence of a personal attack on staff, and concluded there had been no breach of the code of conduct governing relations between the two parties.

In the second case, Greens councillor Tom Tabart was similarly accused and similarly cleared, though the reviewer expressed displeasure about media coverage during the investigation, including in The Echo.

During Council debate about the findings last Thursday Councillor Ross Tucker disagreed with the independent review, arguing Tom Tabart had breached the code by attacking staff.

General Manager Graeme Faulkner also strongly defended staff, saying they were so offended by criticisms they'd sought union support.

While criticising the code of conduct as constraining freedom of speech, Councillor Tabart twice offered an apology to staff.

'I apologise for remarks directed at those people' he said.

Byron Naturally campaign launches

Victoria Cosford

For Byron United President Sevegne Newton it was a moment of immense pride.

After seven months in the planning, the chamber of commerce-generated campaign known as Byron Naturally was officially launched at the Byron Community Centre, with over 200 people in attendance.

Many of those were amongst the 100 businesses which had signed up to be part of the campaign.

Combining television advertising with a sophisticated website, the tourism media campaign will run for 22 weeks in a bid to promote the Byron Shire to South East Queensland, as well as Tweed down to Coffs Harbour.

It is hoped to eventually be extended to capital cities such as Melbourne and Sydney.

The financial support of the 100 businesses was matched with funds and assistance from both Tourism NSW and Northern Rivers Tourism. CEO of Northern Rivers.

Tourism Russell Mills told the crowd that he had watched the campaign come alive over the past six months and seen it as a journey.

'But a journey that's come about through some hard graft by a few people and by Byron United,' he said.

'I think they've done a great job.' He said that thanks to the huge groundswell of industry partnership, it was truly an industry-led campaign.

'I have to give a special mention to Sevegne Newton,' he said, 'pretty much the most tenacious and determined person I've met here. She hasn't stopped.'

Sevegne in turn thanked

Russell for believing in the concept 'from day one'.

She also thanked the businesses supporting the campaign then introduced Adrian Nelson who, together with his team at Utopia Creative, was responsible for putting the campaign together.

Adrian offered a presentation of the campaign itself, showing the 30-second television commercial then its 90-second version, and demonstrating examples of some of the local business micro-sites and micro-videos on the website.

'The idea is to move and allure the viewer to take action and come to Byron via the website.'

'We wanted to capture the spirit of Byron and we believe this will have people looking closer at Byron,' he said.

'We really believe it's a branding opportunity to get

Byron back in the market place.' In closing, Sevegne announced a new print media partnership with APN, who publish the Byron News and The Northern Star.

'We now have a campaign worth half a million dollars,' she said. 'We're thrilled, and we really appreciate them coming on board with this campaign.'

Earth'n'Sea co-owner Denise Woolsey told The Echo that she was really excited about it. 'It's getting people to their website,' she said. 'If they can capture what they took in my restaurant on Saturday night and put it in my micro-video - I had two wedding parties and two birthday parties going on just randomly - I'll be so happy. That's what's exciting to me!'

The Byron Naturally campaign goes to air on May 1.

$2.9 million Lighthouse Road work commences

Work will begin on the Lighthouse Road from Monday April 18 by Civilteam Engineering, say Council.

Council's executive manager of community infrastructure, Phil Holloway, said Lighthouse Road will remain open to single-lane traffic throughout the works but delays are to be expected.

'The boardwalk will also be closed to pedestrians after the Easter long weekend holiday. Pedestrian detours will be in place and Council requests that walkers stick to the routes and not wander onto the road work areas.'

'While we understand that people will experience some inconvenience in not being able to take the most direct walking route, the detours have been set up to ensure pedestrian safety.'

The restoration is expected to take approximately six months to complete, subject to weather conditions.

At a cost of $2.9million, the Lighthouse Road works include the construction of a reinforced soil slope, reconstruction of elevated boardwalk and site revegetation and restoration.

A major landslide on June 30, 2005, saw the road and walkway collapse.

Public enquiries on the Lighthouse Road Slope Stabilisation works can phone 6626 7101.

Byron book goes wild

Four years in the making, Wild Byron is the latest project by Byron-based and international photo journalist David Hancock. A portrait of a psyche, Hancock says Wild Byron is a photographic journey 'as much about a wildness of spirit as it is of a landscape in part still untamed.' The book will be launched on Wednesday evening at the Last Yard Gallery, Bangalow, behind the railway carriage one kilometre along the Lismore road.

If Rani Lindquist becomes a household name it may be partly thanks to a real estate agency.

The Byron High School student was recently awarded the inaugural Ray White Real Estate Byron Bay Scholarship valued at $5000, enabling her to fulfill her dream of studying singing at Southern Cross University.

The scholarship is part of the university's Rising Stars Scholarships program which aims to help financially disadvantaged students.

It was one of 108 donor-funded scholarships awarded to SCU students this year across three campuses: Gold Coast, Coffs Harbour and Lismore.

David Gordon from Ray White Real Estate Byron Bay told The Echo that the agency wanted to give back to the community. 'So we set about finding sporting clubs and schools to provide scholarships,' he said.

'We set up a monthly Citizenship Award program at Byron Primary School and we sponsor junior soccer, but we wanted a third one to help people.

'I know Peter Bowen, who has his own scholarship, and he proposed the idea to me to create a scholarship to those students struggling socially and economically.

'I met with Byron High School principal Peter King and asked him to give me an outline of our Year 12 students and why they're delaying going to uni and what challenges they're facing and he said it was mostly financial.

'So we created the Ray White Scholarship.

'More people need to know there's a need in our community with our young adults who seem to be disenfranchised a bit.

'Rani was going to defer uni for a year - and there's a lot of kids out there similarly struggling.'

Rani is enrolled in the Bachelor of Contemporary Music, specialising in vocals.

She told The Echo that she has been singing for as long as she could remember.

The scholarship means she has the chance to do what she really wants to do in life, she said.

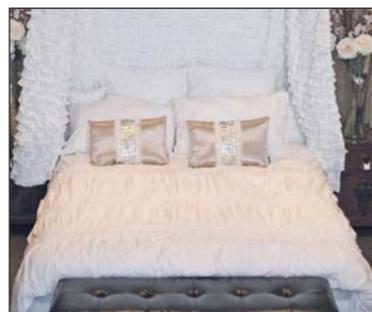

'Otherwise I would have had to work my butt off for a year and save up $5000,' she said.

'I'm very happy, I'm very thankful. It's probably the nicest thing that anyone has ever done for me,' she said.

There are Undergraduate, Honours and Masters scholarships available as well as the SCU-Bowen Fund, an endowed fund administered by the Northern Rivers Community Foundation.

The Byron Shire 'Frack Off' tour

Those who support the farmers and the immediate moratorium on fracking are invited to travel by bus 300km west of Brisbane to Tara, QLD.

Coal seam gas exploration – or fracking – has been known to poison water tables, and the mining process leaves toxic residues.

A bus will be leaving at approximately 9am on Friday April 29, and will return around 3pm Tuesday May 3.

The cost of bus per person is $55 – $60 (maximum).

The four days will include workshops, forums, displays, entertainment and direct action. BYO camping gear. Email anthea@antheamore.com or phone 0422 383 151 for more information.

Coal seam gas exploration is now underway on the north coast.

Byron Shire Mayor Jan Barham will soon be taking up her second role as a Greens member of the Legislative Council (MLC) in the state parliament from May 3.

She has been flat out with her mayoral duties, but feels confident she can handle the MLC duties as well.

'I am committed to fulfilling both roles and believe I will be able to service my responsibilities; there are other MPs who do both roles.

'My experience from the local level will inform the portfolio issues I have taken on and provide background to these important areas, especially for rural and regional communities.'

The Greens portfolio Cr Barham will take on includes Family and Community Services, Aboriginal, Ageing, Disability, Tourism and Arts.

She will also be the Greens spokesperson for Seachange issues and Community Resilience which includes volunteering, community education and disaster preparedness, as well as being a contact for North Coast issues.

'I'm keen to raise issues about the need for increased services for the rural and regional areas and focus on early intervention services and increased funding,' Cr Barham told The Echo.

'It will be interesting to see how the government positions itself, as it has a choice of who it works with to get the numbers to have legislation passed.'

NOTICE TO RESIDENTS OF BYRON SHIRE TRAFFIC CHANGES AT TYAGARAH

THURSDAY 21ST APRIL - WEDNESDAY 27TH APRIL 2011

After working closely with Byron Shire Council and The RTA, our consultants have formulated a traffic management plan to manage and minimise potential traffic impact in proximity to the Bluesfest site at Tanner Lane Tyagarah. We wish to inform you that the following changes will take place from Thursday 21st April through to Wednesday 27th April 2011.

TRAFFIC

A temporary ban will be in place for right hand turns, into and out of Grays Lane at the Pacific Highway intersection. The Mullumbimby off ramp at Tyagarah will be closed to south bound highway traffic. South Bound festival traffic will be directed to turn left at Grays Lane and enter the site via Tanner Lane. North Bound Festival traffic will enter the site via the Mullumbimby off ramp and overpass. These measures are designed to minimise traffic impact however, please be prepared for possible delay.

PARKING

The Festival car parks, in the north and south of the site are accessible from Tanner lane and Yarrin Lane, this will be open for day patrons.

- Temporary "No Stopping" signs will be installed in Tanner Lane, Yarrin Lane, and Fox Lane and on parts of Gulgong Road and Grays Lane.
- Please DO NOT park in the local road network around the Tyagarah Tea Tree farm, which is the Blues Festival site.
- Council Parking Rangers will be on patrol throughout the weekend

PICK UP AND DROP OFF AREA

There will be a drop off area for guests and parking set aside for disabled persons adjacent to the southern Festival entertainment area gate. Please call the Bluesfest Hotline (02) 66399899 for clarification with respect to these arrangements.

SHUTTLE BUSES

Shuttle buses will run every 20 minutes (subject to traffic) from Byron Bay Tourist Centre. There will also be shuttle services from the surrounding towns. The Bluesfest bus timetable is now available at www.blanchs.com and www.brunswickvalleycoaches.com Please help us eliminate some of the traffic – avoid the fuss and take the bus. See Blues web site for more information.

CAMPING

Camping is encouraged on the Festival site in the designated areas, contact the Bluesfest Hotline for information. Camping is not allowed in the Festival Day Parking Area or on local beaches, parks or roadside. Camping is only allowed in official campgrounds. People Camping in banned areas will be fined.

Supporting those who cause accidental deaths

Victoria Cosford

It is rare to hear from those who cause fatal motor vehicle accidents.

The horror and despair of causing an accidental death can be a burden for a lifetime, and often those killed are a loved one or friend.

Now a local man who experienced this himself is attempting to set up a support group for those who share this burden.

Twenty-six years ago, Scot Davies fell into a micro-sleep at the wheel of the car he was driving.

When he woke up the following day, in hospital and badly disfigured, it was to learn that his passenger had been killed.

He told The Echo that he lost his job, his house, his relationship and all his friends.

For three years he had no support whatsoever, even though the court case ruled the event an accidental death.

'I kept moving town so people wouldn't know me or recognise me,' he said.

'I got to the point where I drank to block things out.

'I tried to commit suicide; I was thrown out of my house.'

After years of meditation, however, he 'finally found an intrinsic purpose', which was to establish a not-for-profit support group to help similar victims.

For the past decade Scot has been involved with Byron Emergency Accommodation Program (BEAP) and Byron Housing Support Program (BHSP), which has resulted in government funding for him to attend training courses.

He says he has also been able to network with organisations like North Coast Brain Injuries, the courts and the police force.

'It's been an evolutionary path,' he said.

'That accident made me look inward.

'We're always hearing the side of the victims who have lost a loved one, but never hearing the other side.'

In order to set up the committee necessary to become a not-for-profit organisation, Scot is looking for people with a legal background, computer skills, counselling or psychology expertise, promotional experience and youth workers.

His aim is to start on a local level but eventually take the support group Australia wide, giving talks to schools and on radio.

He has come up with the acronym CASCAD, which is Car Accident Survivors Causing Accidental Death.

'Twenty six years later I still carry the scars on my physical body,' Scott said,

'They're not just internal.'

Scot can be contacted at cas-cad.inc@gmail.com.

Durrumbul's Japan funds go direct

The recent Concert for Japan, held at Durrumbul Hall, raised over $30,000, say organisers.

The organising committee have been discussing the best possible use of this money.

Now they say they have found a way with Elle, a year ten student at Cape Byron Steiner School.

'Ever since the earthquake and tsunami hit Japan,' says a fundraiser spokesperson, 'Elle, along with others from the local Japanese community, have been helping collect funds for the survivors of this tragedy via the Japanese Red Cross.

'Now Elle and her family will play a role in deciding how the $30,000 collected at the Durrumbul concert will be disbursed.

'Elle's father, Tsutomu Shimada, is a Tokyo-based artist, festival director and cultural activist.

'Tsutomusan has kindly offered to help with sourcing groups active in earthquake relief and will monitor the spending to ensure the money is used most effectively.'

Saya Minami, one of the organisers of the concert, said, 'We are very happy to have this personal connection with how this money will be spent in Japan. Byron Shire people have been very generous and we want to make sure their money goes to the right people in Japan, preferably small, local communities.

'We will keep everyone informed when we find the right beneficiary. Domo arigato Byron Shire people!'

If you would like to know more, please contact Saya Minami on saya.minami@gmail.com.

The Concert for Japan was auspiced by the Byron Neighbourhood Resource Centre (BNRC) in association with iQ and local businesses. For any BNRC enquiries, please contact Ian Leggo on ileggo@optusnet.com.au.

Freedom's just another word for... neglect?

Mandy Nolan

Has our attempt at counter-culture been detrimental to our kids?

That was the question I posted on Facebook as a lead-in to the forum, 'Are We Failing our Kids?' at the Community Centre on Thursday 28 April.

I was interested to see the scope of people's differing perspectives and ascertain whether it's a topic people are interested in engaging with. In just three days I had over 90 responses.

The posts were varied, ranging from 'We just didn't counter far enough. My kids countered right back to conservative,' to 'Would the increases in drug and alcohol abuse, violence and depression be on par with the breakdown of family? I got my 17-year-old son home after six months of "freedom" and he's so broken... Find your guns and stick to them. They love you for it later.'

Psychotherapist Brendan Healy agrees that our area has particularly unique issues resulting from being more ideologically open.

In his practice as a therapist who's worked at the 'coalface' he admits to having witnessed 'an incredible amount of sexual abuse in the village atmosphere with more open parenting because of the amount of unwell people that are up here.'

Most of the abuse Brendan believes occurs in the establishing of new relationships.

'You'll have these distressed mothers who've suddenly become aware that their new boyfriend has abused their daughter. It's never straightforward. A lot of abuse happens this way.'

We are the generation who tried to establish a sense of self outside of the mainstream,

we've championed alternative life paths to the usual prescriptive social route. But what are the costs? When does freedom become neglect?

One Facebook post by a woman who takes on an aunty role with children in the community noted a duty-of-care issue with the failure to pick young people up from parties.

She said, 'Its amazing how parents are willing to drop their 16-year-olds off at a party at 10pm and leave them to find their own way home at five or six in the morning. When I've asked the parents what time they were coming back, they were gobsmacked by the question.'

Born in Byron Bay, family support worker Delta Kay is the mother of six children, and is also the spokesperson for the Byron Bay Arakwal people. In a permissive environment, Delta's parenting approach has been firm.

'I wouldn't let my kids go to parties as teenagers. There's plenty of time being an adult.'

'I wanted them to enjoy being kids. It never felt safe and I just wasn't comfortable with the thought of them being in that situation. I also made sure I met the parents of all my kids' friends.'

'Many people in our area parent without the support of grandparents, aunts and uncles. In leaving our families behind to establish our lives in a new-age frontier town; many of us have suffered from a real lack of family support. This often marks the line between coping and not coping.'

Extended family played a vital role for Delta.

'The kids would hear stuff from me and then from an aunty or an uncle who'd say your mother's right, it's not safe to be on the street.' Ms Kay also believes that the most crucial learning young people get is in the home.

'Kids see a lot at home... as parents we are all guilty. We are bullies. We might be running down the neighbour next door, or our boss or our sister; they see us be bad role models smoking and drinking, saying you shouldn't do something that we turn around and do.'

'We have to be better role models for our kids.'

Delta also feels that there is a significant lack of positive male influence in the lives of young people.

'The men in general are not stepping up to the plate and we don't have enough good role models for our boys.'

Councils' Youth Activity Coordinator Belle Arnold believes that our perception of community is out of step with reality.

'We talk about what a great community we have' said Belle, 'but it's not really. It's always the same people at the same events.'

'There's a real lack of cohesion and engagement across the broader community. A lot of this probably comes down to the fact that we live in a "tourist town." A lot of young people feel like they live in a town where they don't really belong.'

Delta believes that families are supported by strong community.

'There are so many small families battling; we as a community need to bring back more community feel. Like shutting the pubs a bit earlier - alcohol plays such a huge role in destroying community.'

'Why aren't our kids at the Red Devils' Oval on the weekends? That's what we did as kids, we used to all come together at the football ground...'

Michael Hawton is a psychologist who runs Parent Shop, a program designed at supporting positive and effective parenting.

He also believes that the community has a huge role to play in supporting families.

'A lot comes back to a community defining what's okay and what's not. You don't have to take a moral or religious view to describe what's acceptable for the tribe. There are clearly some things that aren't okay, like violence and abuse and breaking the law.'

Youth Forum

A public forum entitled 'Are we failing our kids?' will be held at the Byron Community Centre on Thursday April 28 at 7pm - MC Mandy Nolan.

Blues Festival site managers, Nova Mikin and Matty Williams, say the tweaking of the stage locations will ensure maximum sound quality with no sound bleed this year. Matty also said good weather last week, during set up of the site, has put them ahead of schedule so the inclement weather of the last couple of days hasn't caused the well drained site any problems.

Dylan inspires Byron art exhibition

Retrospect Galleries thought it fitting that Bob Dylan's legend be honoured and celebrated with an exhibition opening Thursday April 21 at 6pm and running through to May 10. The works range from lyric interpretations right through to portraits of Dylan in performance.

Contributing artists include Lisa Lee, Donna Malone, Craig Martin, Luke Hallam, Simon McLean, Sarah Crawford, Susan Gourley and Shane Martin.

Innovation festival showcases technology

A new Innovation Festival, to be held from April 29, aims to help individuals, businesses, community groups and associations translate ideas into action, according to its organisers.

Byron Bay-based inventor Ric Richardson is behind the event, which will encompass a month-long program of seminars, workshops and forums.

'Many Aussies are held back by the tall poppy syndrome, and think the only good work is hard work,' he says, 'but it's the people who work with their strongest skills who are most productive, and have the most fun.'

He will kickstart the festival with a presentation titled 'Being a Self-Aware Innovator - Working Smarter Instead of Working Harder,' at the SAE Institute on Ewingdale Road.

The 2011 NCIF launch will be held at SAE Institute on Friday April 29 from 10am.

Seats are limited - to register visit www.rdanorthernrivers.org.au and click on North Coast Innovation Festival.

Woolworths' drinking problem becomes Byron Bay's

Apparently there is an undersupply of alcohol for Byron Bay, and Dan Murphy's – owned by Woolworths – have sought to fix the problem by establishing a megastore a stone's throw from a school, church and another competitor.

One of the cornerstones of Byron's identity is up for competition: the supply of booze.

Some councillors have said that this is inevitable, and unfortunately they are right.

There is no law that prohibits more alcohol outlets in the town, and it's just a matter of time before they check the right boxes to be approved.

Woolies will no doubt gain financially from entering a market dominated by longtime local operators. Unlike them, they have access to large national buying power.

However, unless you work for them directly, Woolies care very little for the people who live and work in the places they inhabit.

This has been demonstrated by their appalling conduct in Mullumbimby while constructing their supermarket monstrosity.

How will flooding the market with even cheaper booze help Byron Bay? It won't. Our over-stretched police and hospitals deal mainly with alcohol-related crimes and accidents, and Woolies will clearly add to that pressure.

Not happy, Dan.

Union luddites jack up on carbon tax

The AWU secretary Paul Howes is not as important as he thinks he is. For that matter no-one in the known universe is as important as Paul Howes thinks he is.

But that does not mean that last week's ultimatum to Julia Gillard was entirely bluff and bluster. Howes's threats are significant, not because they should be taken seriously, but because they suggest that the union leadership has abandoned sensible argument on the carbon tax and has descended into irrational demagoguery.

Howes's line, apparently, is that the industries in which his members work should be insulated forever from the real economy, preserved as museum pieces while the rest of the world moves past them.

The AWU used to represent blacksmiths; if Howes had his way the motor car would have been introduced only if the government could have guaranteed that no smithy would be displaced. The fact, of course, is that the motor vehicle industry employs more metal workers than blacksmithing ever did; the farriers swiftly found more useful and rewarding work elsewhere.

Reform entails change. It was heartening to hear the secretary of the Manufacturing Workers Union, Dave Oliver, recognise this and point out that while some jobs will inevitably disappear in the transition to a lower carbon economy, many others will be created. But he was drowned out in the clamour from Howes and from the heavies in the TWU and the CFMEU.

And Howes's position is peculiar in another way. He says that if one job is lost he, meaning the AWU, will withdraw his support. This, of course, was the phrase he used in the coup against Kevin Rudd: the prime minister had lost his support. But in that case there was, at least, an alternative. This time there isn't.

Does Howes mean that he would assassinate Gillard and install – well, who? Greg Combet, the public face of the policy he opposed? Jump to Bill Shorten, lacking both status and credibility? Or cross the whole way over to Tony Abbott, whom the unions accuse of trying to reintroduce WorkChoices?

Or does Howes simply mean that he will campaign against the

And speaking of insults and illiteracy, has there ever been a more selfish and mendacious campaign than that being mounted by the Registered Clubs Association against poker machine reform?

Once again they are claiming that the sky will fall if anything is done to restrain their privileged position, a position they have systematically and ruthlessly abused for many years.

The chief executive of Clubs

$92 million of that coming from its pokies. It is estimated by the Productivity Commission that some 40 per cent of this sum was taken from problem gamblers who make up about 15 per cent of all punters with another 15 per cent at risk of going the same way.

The financial and social damage to the community from this one club was therefore immense, far outweighing the amount it returned. So clearly something needs to be done, and the states – which, with the honourable exception of Western Australia, now gain a significant proportion of their own revenue from pokie taxes – are not about to do it.

Andrew Wilkie has forced the feds into action, and while his idea of pre-commitment – punters having to nominate how much they are prepared to lose and the machines rejecting their ID cards when that amount is reached – is both clumsy and expensive, no-one has come up with a better one.

The ideal would be to follow Tim Freedman's advice and just blow up the pokies; but this is unlikely to happen. An alternative would be to make them less voracious – limits on how much money they would accept in a given period – and also less glamorous and seductive, as is proposed for cigarette packets.

But the clubs will not compromise, or even negotiate. If restrictions are imposed, there will be no more clubs, no more sport, no more kiddies' playgrounds, no more communities. It should be remembered that they said exactly the same things when pokies were allowed in hotels: the clubs were doomed. Last year just 11 NSW clubs took $438,953,965 from their pokies and returned just $11,678,358 to the community.

These men are lying. They want your money and they couldn't give a damn about the community.

While some jobs will inevitably disappear in the transition to a lower carbon economy, many others will be created.

tax within the Labor Party? The option is there, but not, if he is honest, at this year's national conference, which will take place before the effects of any carbon tax become clear. And in any case if he were to win, and Labor to drop its plans, it would blow Julia Gillard out of the leadership and Labor out of the race at the next election. This would not be a good result for someone as clearly ambitious as Paul Howes is.

In the past he has staked out a position as a bit of a maverick at times, but one who is serious about policy and rock solid about the party. To preserve his reputation he would do better to try and calm his troops down and talk to them about economic and political reality rather than surrender to the mob and throw his weight behind his traditional antagonists, the employer groups. As things stand he is being dismissed as a political and economic illiterate by, of all people, the Greens. Now that really is an insult.

NSW gave the game away last week when he attempted to defend an untenable position. The clubs, he said, were only required to donate 1.5 per cent of revenue to the community, but in fact they delivered more than 2.5 per cent – and that was out of income, not out of profits. Why, some clubs donated nearly a third of their net profits.

Yes, but clubs are supposed to be not-for-profit organisations; that's why they have attracted $6.5 billion – yes, billion – in tax concessions since 1997. So what happens to the rest of the profits from the not-for-profit clubs? Well, a great deal of it goes on salaries – some chief executives (they are no longer mere club managers) drag in half a million a year. And a lot more goes on self-promotion: last year the Penrith Panthers spent more than $7 million on advertising its benefits, compared with less than $3 million donated to the community.

And to put that in perspective, the club's total revenue was more than $154 million, with nearly

Council fails to inspire confidence

■ Re the Myocum landfill: DECCW has now asked Council to engage an independent consultant to monitor the gases prior to the flaring system going in. Thanks, EPA, however Council is only doing a one-off sampling in eight locations and we have been advised by a Sydney consulting firm that this is not thorough enough. Monitoring over a longer time period, as the gas is not always present, would be more likely to give results. Also our request to be able to communicate with this consultant has not been granted.

It is essential that we be part of the monitoring process as thirty-plus households are breathing in this gas on a daily basis. Surely our information will be helpful. We are also wondering how Council approved a three-year extension to the landfill without consulting with the residents. Is this legal? We have been given verbal assurances that this landfill will be closing in three years ... for the last ten years. We don't believe anything anymore.

Suzie Mylecharane
Myocum

■ Mr Faulkner's letter (Echo, April 12) raises more questions than answers.

We appreciate Mr Faulkner's response letters regarding the tips smell. He has been silent on the issue to this point and his input is welcome.

It does however raise more questions.

Firstly, Mr Faulkner states that the southern expansion of the tip is constructed to NSW standards and is under licence from the EPA, now the Department of Environment, Climate Change and Water (DECCW). This construction includes a dual lining system, again approved by DECCW. What about the now closed northern area of the landfill? What standards did that part of the landfill meet, and was there a dual liner in that area? How does Council know that gases are not emitted from that area and can Mr Faulkner guarantee that leachate from the northern area is not escaping into waterways, dams etc?

Secondly, Mr Faulkner states that a gas flare system is a standard method of eliminating landfill gas. Landfill gas is produced as a result of decomposing landfill waste. Did Mr Faulkner think that maybe at the Myocum landfill the waste would not decompose and produce gas since the gas flare system was only introduced after complaints from residents and will only be installed by the end of April 2011?

That's four years since the southern expansion was opened in 2007. Did Mr

Faulkner hope that maybe no one would notice the smell or did Council just neglect to manage the landfill properly?

Mr Faulkner states the gas flare system curiously burns off 99 per cent of the gases. That's very close to 100 per cent but not quite, is it? Is there some technical reason why this solution manages to avoid a total remedy to such a small margin? Is this a tiny opportunity to wriggle out of any question being asked after the installation is complete?

Thirdly, Mr Faulkner states that the southern expansion was given approval in 2010 to operate until 2014. Who gave that approval and why did local residents not receive anything in writing?

I know I sound sceptical but Byron Shire Council sure gives me reasons to be.

Woolies says sorry

We apologise sincerely to Edna Carew (Letters, April 5) and other diners whose meal at Milk and Honey was recently disrupted by the noise of road works. While there is an expectation by many that these works should be finished as quickly as possible, Woolworths has reiterated to our builder that in addition to abiding exactly to the approval conditions, we need to be sensitive to this type of situation, particularly when people are dining outdoors close to the site.

On the wider issue of disruption to Mullumbimby, Woolworths regrets the temporary inconvenience, but are carrying out works exactly as required by the development conditions. This includes building a roundabout as required by Council.

Once Woolworths is open, we believe customers will benefit from more convenience and Mullumbimby will benefit from more people doing their shopping locally.

In the meantime, we will redouble our efforts to finish the building promptly and with as little inconvenience as possible.

Complex blowout

Simon Richardson seems to have adopted the pugilistic and aggressive approach of Tony Abbott in his personal attack on Patrick Morrissey. The issue Patrick raised is a valid one in that we have spent over $7 million on the sports complex and now more money is being asked to be poured into it.

This project has blown out of all proportions. Ratepayers certainly want access to good venues for sport but they also need decent roads, better faci-ties in the shire and safe traffic control in our small villages.

The public purse is not inexhaustible and a balance needs to be found to use our limited funds wisely. Section 94 is drained of funds because this major project leaves scarce funds for other capital works.

We already have cycleways, beaches, parks and so on to meet the needs of many sports enthusiasts. However there are other pressing needs to be met for the remainder and majority of the community. Councillors may have given unanimous support initially to the project but have discerned rightly that the cost is now prohibitive.

It is obvious there are vested interests in trying to get a state of the art 'elite criterium cycleway'. Isn't there always a group pushing its own barrow? Healthy debate is needed in any decision making regarding ratepayers' funds and Cr Richardson needs to enter into the discourse and desist from making personal attacks on those who are informed and transparent.

I wonder how much thought Richardson has put into the traffic chaos that will hit us when we have a venue at the complex. Try going into Byron Bay on a Friday afternoon or the weekend. Between hitting potholes that damage your front suspension and taking half an hour to hit town, I think we have a valid argument in demanding our limited resources are spent judiciously in addressing these issues for a start. In the recent election material distributed by Richardson he stated he wanted to work with the community. As a representative of the community he needs to engage the wider community and listen to their concerns.

Where's that special designer?

I am seeking help from the readership of The Echo. I've been thinking about life recently, as you do, and I've decided that mine is far too simple. I got to thinking about introducing an element of complexity into the way I do things and have decided that my driveway could be the scene for some improvement.

Firstly, why do I need to drive straight into my garage? Way too easy. No, I want a loop that takes me out into the neighbour's yard and back again. I would also like some random white lines painted on the driveway that disappear unexpectedly, say, under the garage door. A heap of barriers that jut out from the side of the lawn would be good, too. Oh, and how about chucking a ridiculously bright light in the middle of the thing to attract every moth, locust and low-flying aircraft in the vicinity?

Which brings me to you, dear reader. Is there anyone out there who knows who designed the roundabout at the new sports field on Ewingsdale Road? I want to engage their services.

To market, to market

Exactly a year since the Friday produce market started trading. Time to celebrate, or is it? Exactly a year since trading at the original and authentic monthly Mullum community market became unviable for most of us!

Is anyone (apart from stallholders) aware of the disastrous effect the Friday market has had on long-term established traders at the Saturday market? Does anyone care? In the interests of fairness, surely consideration could be given to rescheduling the Friday market once a month so that is not held on the day before the Saturday market. We are all just simply trying to make a living!

Organic agriculture was the foundation of our civilisation and now it may help save us by mitigating the effects of climate change. As Andrew Carter wrote (Letters, April 5), organic agriculture has the ability to sequester nearly all the carbon dioxide generated by human activities. Our government needs to give more support to organic agriculture instead of genetically modified and chemical agriculture. On a personal level you can support organically certified organic farmers at farmers markets and retail outlets. A letter to local members of government would also help.

Roundhouse saga

As a new resident to the Shire and also as a recent member of the Roundhouse Action Group, it was with great interest that I attended my first ever council meeting to support the Roundhouse Cultural Centre. I came away disappointed. At public access the community representatives, Jan Mangleson and Ri Fraser, spoke eloquently about the proposal, saying that ultimately Council would benefit in many ways from the community proposal.

However, it seems that those voting against the proposal could not grasp this concept. The mayor referred to the proposed building as 'a community centre which Ocean Shores already has'. The business plan's description of the Cultural Centre makes it amply clear what the differences are! She then went on to say that 'Ocean Shores owed Council money'. I was shocked by the vehemence with which she made that statement. She seemed dead set against the community and demonstrated that she had no interest in developing a heart in Ocean Shores.

It also seemed like Cr Tucker had not understood that the community proposal would be a win-win situation. He would rather get a loan of over a million dollars to put in a subdivision, hoping that Council would retrieve its outlay and make some money from it. All this in a depressed market! He said that all this should be done as soon as possible to end the ongoing Roundhouse saga and finally put an end to the hopes of Ocean Shores that this land could be used for community purposes. Are the Mayor and Cr Tucker bitterly clinging on to the past, letting it blur their vision of the future? So much for the Economics of Happiness, which Jan Barham has waxed lyrical about.

Unfortunately Simon Richardson, who is on public record as supporting our plan, was absent. The voting was four for and four against taking the Roundhouse Cultural Centre to the DA stage and so our mayor, having the casting

Money needed for birthing

We are writing in support of letters submitted by Dr Liz Elliot and Vivian Waddell on April 5 regarding funding for staff in our health care system.

NSW Health has recently released the Towards Normal Birth Policy Directive, which requires that 35 per cent of women shall have access to continuity of care with a known midwife throughout their pregnancy, birth and postnatal period and that all women should have midwife home visits for a minimum of two weeks post birth.

Unfortunately the reality for many women in our local hospitals falls a long way short of this. Currently, it is commonplace for women to wait up to two to three hours to see a doctor should their maternity care require that.

Midwives working in the antenatal clinic often have only 10-15 minute lunch breaks because it is near impossible to provide comprehensive midwifery care in the time allocated for antenatal appointments. Often midwives on the postnatal ward look after six women at the same time.

Our birth rate is steadily rising but there has been no increase in funding for staff numbers to match that increase.

Our local hospitals are grossly underfunded. In maternity care midwives and doctors are overworked. Women and their babies are not receiving optimal care because there is no funding to employ the staff required.

If there is no real commitment to expanding staff numbers, the Towards Normal Birth Policy will become yet another well intentioned but failed attempt at creating real change for birthing women. While it is encouraging for our region to receive new medical equipment, what families really need now is more midwives and nurses to make real changes to the quality of maternity care.

Concert for Japan

As one of the organisers of the Concert for Japan, I would like to thank all the performers, volunteers and sponsors who helped to make the Concert for Japan an outstanding success. I am still overwhelmed with the love and compassion (and money) - over $30,000 - that has been given. So a whole-hearted thank you is extended to all who helped, including the community who supported the event.

Thank you to the Durrumbul community for tolerating such an unexpectedly large event that I know has caused a few ripples through the area. The event was free of any trouble or disturbing incident due to the incredible respect of those attending.

As the numbers indicate, there is a need to maintain community tolerance and obviously a need for a venue to accommodate events of this size.

No feudal societies planned here

■ I agree with Boyd Kellner (Letters, April 12), as I don't want to live in a feudal society either. Mind you, Helena Norberg-Hodge didn't mention feudalism, let alone support it, in her article. She does say she saw the relatively happy and fulfilled community in Ladakh change over 25 short years. They lost self-confidence and their localised lifestyle, replaced by urban desolation. Global commerce and culture had arrived. We're also upset by it here. Are Californian oranges 'cheaper' than Yelgun oranges? No, of course it's not true, it's 'free trade' bookkeeping manipulation. Yet many productive trees in Yelgun have been uprooted by government free-trade agreements, with local jobs lost.

Helena advocates liberating our minds from the myths that bind us, and I agree. We can aim to free ourselves from the financial and political belief systems that operate, as belief systems do, mainly below routine conscious awareness. For example, the Bank of England, US Federal Reserve, IMF, and World Bank are all privately owned; please research it if you're interested. They finance both 'capitalist' and 'collectivist' governments.

I'm into localising our food, for example, for good nutritional, economic, educational,

I received an email from the NSW Greens advocating a vote for the party, listing ten reasons why I should vote Green. Item 10 made the only mention of the environment and that mention was in relation to planning and development.

Without a primary focus on the environment, why call the party Green? Why not return to the roots of some NSW Greens and revert to the Socialist Party? Without a healthy environment, everything is at risk. There's never been a more important time to educate and involve the broader community on the major environmental issues this country faces and at the same time find solutions.

cultural, social, environmental, health and personal reasons. Why not? Broadly, let the good folk of California eat their own oranges, let the good folk of China make their own things, and let the good folk of this area look after as many of our own needs as we can, for everybody's good.

■ I am pleased that my reflections on the importance of economic localisation generated an animated response. Boyd Kellner raised some important questions. However, I take issue with him on a number of fronts:

1. It is unhelpful to see globalisation as a synonym for 'capitalism', for two distinct reasons. One has to do with perceptions. Like it or not, as soon as you're labeled 'anti-capitalist', you've lost a good part of your potential audience. Anticapitalism equates in the minds of the majority of people today with old leftie politics and the implication that communism is the answer. But it's not just a question of perceptions. Though on opposite ends of the political spectrum, capitalism and communism suffer from many of the same fundamental defects. In particular, they are both profoundly anti-ecological. As ideologies, they fail to grasp the importance of diversity (both cultural and biological).

2. Boyd suggests that I have failed to 'seriously investigate' the fundamental causes of the crises we face today. This would come as a surprise to most people who know me because, for better or for worse, I have been doing little else for the last 35 years! The conclusion that I and my colleagues in the International Forum on Globalisation have come to is that the enormous problems Boyd refers to are not, as he maintains, at the root of the crises we face today, but rather symptoms of it.

3. I do not advocate going back into the past, whether in Ladakh or anywhere else. However, let's not throw the baby out with the bathwater. I have lived and worked in Ladakh over a period of 35 years, and have spoken the language fluently from the very first year. In that time, I have learned that the traditional Ladakhi culture has an enormous amount to offer the 'modern' world. What's more, there are clear signs that year by year, as Ladakh is increasingly drawn into the global economy, the Ladakhis' wellbeing is declining. Things were far from perfect in the past (though that word 'feudal' might need a bit of a re-examination), but they're a great deal worse now.

4. It would be a big mistake to write the middle classes off as a force for change, for two reasons. Firstly, they are now clearly suffering the consequences of globalisation as their jobs are being threatened and their savings undermined. What's more, as Boyd says, relative privilege buys both time and money, and these are precious commodities. I personally know dozens of people around the world who could very easily afford to book into a five-star hotel for the rest of their lives and sip martinis on their private verandah, but who are instead working every hour of the day to build a better world. No-one will benefit if we insist on seeing the current situation through the outdated lenses of class warfare.

5. Finally, localisation is not a 'lofty utopian pursuit', but a very down-to-earth, community-based movement that is sweeping the globe. For me, it represents our best chance not only of reversing the current tide of increasing economic and social injustice and environmental decline, but of building a truly meaningful and sustainable future for generations yet to come.

Instead, we have a Green Party focused for the most part on distinctly non-environmental issues. I'm no fan of News Ltd or The Australian but man alive, the Greens need to be held to account and their policies (if they have any) held up to public scrutiny.

Good living

I note that the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation has donated AUD$17.7 million to two very worthy projects. The first grant will go a long way to alleviate the 670,000 deaths and 350,000 cases of blindness amongst the 90 million children in South East Asia alone who suffer from vitamin A deficiency, through development by the Rice Research Institutes in the Philippines and Bangladesh of strains of GM Golden Rice suitable for small-scale farmers. (Golden Rice is genetically engineered to produce beta-carotene which the body converts into vitamin A.)

The second grant will alleviate the risk of malnutrition for the 250 million people in Africa who rely on the staple crop cassava which, while a rich energy source, lacks essential micronutrients. Again genetically modified to add beta-carotene, iron and protein. These are examples of 'good' through living in a developed global world. Mind you, we have among us in MullumWorld and beyond those who glibly oppose these GM scientific developments while toddling down to their 'farmers' markets and enthusiastically awaiting their opportunity to not shop at the about-to-open Woolworths.

Of course when malnutrition isn't your problem it is easy to adopt a negative posture to genetically modified food science. So how about opening up your minds and really caring for people in these developing countries?

By the way, while you are opposing Woolworths you are supporting the local Dennetts IGA store, aren't you?

The evolving nature of opera

Jim Beatson

Launching live broadcasts of once-a-month Opera Australia productions from the Sydney Opera House comes Mozart's The Marriage of Figaro. With no local opera company, regional music societies are excited that AO is coming on the big screen.

Opera Australia has established an international reputation for casting sexy singer-actors like Teddy Tahu Rhodes, Cheryl Barker and David Hobson directed by local greats – The Belvoir's Neil Armfield (The Marriage of Figaro) Baz Luhrmann (La Boheme and Britten's Midsummer Night's Dream), Graeme Murphy (Turandot), Bruce Beresford (A Streetcar Named Desire) and Barry Kosky (The Flying Dutchman).

Yet Australia's two internationally legendary singers, Joan Sutherland and Nellie Melba, come from the age when the gusts coming from their diaphragms could power a sailing ship. Joan's voice resonated in opera goers' ears, filling the vast 'golden horseshoes' with sound, and without a microphone, at Covent Garden and Paris Opera (each 2,300 seats) Vienna (2,800) La Scala (3,000) and the New York Metropolitan (a whopping 3,625). It wasn't for her acting ability that Joan was called 'La Stupenda'. To fill an opera house with a voice coming from an average frame is an impossible task. Odd miracles like the svelte Maria Callas who could act and sing brilliantly appear.

The Sydney Opera House theatre benefits not only from the modest physical size of Bennelong Point but also was built in the 60s when opera goers were tiring of ever larger, more expensive productions using singers with a modest range of acting skills, from within a small repertoire.

If the battle for better acting and producing was won in at the same time in Europe's new smaller opera houses, in the larger houses this meant (sssh!) microphones.

Like all art forms opera is subject to bitter battles over style and substance. The play on which Mozart's The Marriage of Figaro is based, a scandalous attack on sexual privileges of the powerfully rich, was banned. But Mozart's equally abrasive opera struck a popular chord.

Opera started as an astonishing amalgam of all previous art forms: music, dance, drama, scenery, costume and lighting in the 1600s entertaining all people. It grew quickly, and casually. Performances with house lights on, audiences only pausing while playing cards, drinking and talking to listen to their favourite singer or song.

Operas became formulaic with arias (soliloquy), duets (intimate conversation), chorus (group conversation), typically each with its own melody. Between these came normal chat called recitative (sometimes spoken or sung to piano or spinet). Opera subjects were frequently lightweight, often with implied social comment which could be ignored or enjoyed.

Ignoring or enjoying was not part of opera's next revolutionary, Richard Wagner. After a few early works Little Richard declared most previous operas, including his own, as hopeless and in written argument and composition championed a new form for opera: melodic, dramatic, recitative. House lights down, strictly no talking, relentless.

The battle between the 'music purists' and the 'opera populists', a fixture within overseas opera circles for much of last century but little known here, exploded at end of the Second World War when London saw the creation of Sadler's Wells Opera, later renamed English National Opera, formed to make more imaginative productions in the language of the audience. Similar splits in the opera world occurred in New York, Vienna, Paris and Berlin with the newer companies claiming opera was for everyone, not just for the bourgeoisie.

But opera is no different from other types of music. Few opera goers love it all and it is always evolving.

GREEN GARAGE

Byron Shire's premium fresh and local food store

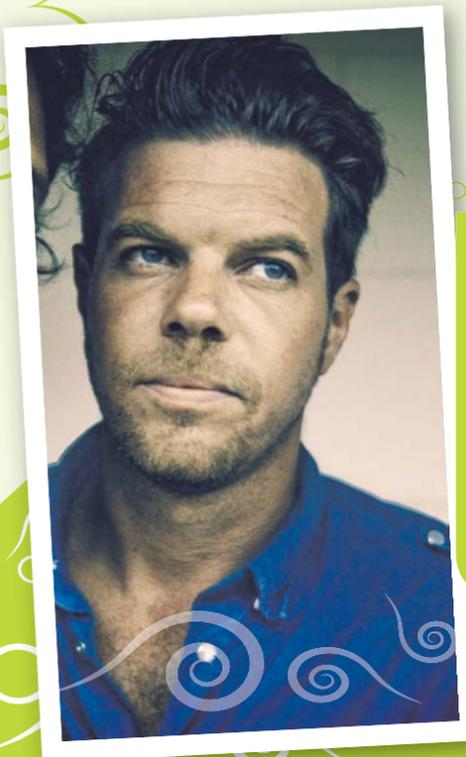

THERE'S A VIBRANT new team at Green Garage, headed up by Emma Dale and Nathan Valentine, and they're set to make some exciting changes in an attempt to lure back the locals. Part of their 'green' philosophy of providing as much locally sourced quality stock as possible is making everyday shopping an affordable experience – and to that effect they are slashing prices while endeavouring to maintain the high standards for which the store has long been renowned. To date they have reduced prices on over 300 lines in the shop, and this process will be ongoing. Their aim is to constantly strive to be competitive with the major grocery chains.

In addition, the store will be refitted over the coming months, enabling a larger amount of shelving in order to accommodate the increase in their product range. They are keeping all the popular locally made gourmet lines and each week will feature fabulous specials on lines such as Duck Creek Macadamias and Byron Bay Coffee Company.

The in-store cafe with its bean bags and outside seating offers a comfortable place for a mid-shopping coffee break or catch-up with friends, serving up sandwiches, wraps, sushi and salads, hot roast chickens and great cakes. Parking is always plentiful and the new team will even carry your groceries to the car when required. Saturday mornings will see live entertainment from 11am till 1pm, with a sampling of local talent both established and emerging.

Apart from Emma and Nathan, the team is Brad, Darren, Joey, Catherine, Bec and Leonie, Alex and the café team.

Richie Williams is a singer/guitarist and will be playing from his latest album Due to Unforeseen at the Green Garage on Good Friday and Easter Monday

ORGANIC GROWERS PONDER THE FRACKING ISSUE

Contamination from fracking chemicals used during coal-seam gas (CSG) extraction is a major concern to organic farmers, says Greg Paynter, consultant to Biological Farmers of Australia.

Following the revelations of the recent ABC Four Corners program into the current CSG practices, BFA supports the call for a moratorium on CSG mining until a full investigation has been undertaken.

With the environmental impacts of some mining activities under question, the risks being revealed to primary producers make it an uncertain future for many; however, for organic producers, meeting domestic and international standards brings with it further challenges.

Across Australia mining companies are exploring, drilling, fracking and extracting CSG, and the environmental repercussions of this form of mining are yet to be fully recognised and understood, which makes it particularly difficult

EVERY DROP DOES COUNT

SAVE $100 OFF YOUR BILL!

In Byron Shire, 75 per cent of water usage is through water that ends up in the sewer, ie through toilet flushing, laundry, showers, taps, baths. There are costs with treating this water at the sewage treatment plant that you pay for. So...the less water you flush, shower and wash with, the less you pay!

- Fix that leaking toilet and save 95,000 litres per year.
- Reduce your shower by just a minute and save 7,000 litres per year.
- Switch to a four-star dual-flush toilet and save 30,000–40,000 litres per year.
- Fix that leaky tap and save 60,000 litres per year.

- Use a water-efficient shower head and save 14,500 litres per year.
- A 5,000 litre tank connected to 100 square metres of roof will provide 48,000 litres per year for your garden. Connect it to the toilet and washing machine and get 59,000 litres per year!
- Rebates are available for rainwater tanks over 2,000 litres.

in terms of managing risks to organic certification.

'Organic management systems are based upon avoiding use of synthetic chemicals in farming and managing the risk of potential contamination from on and off farm. Mining brings with it many new questions around risk management with the concern that chemicals used in mining have the potential for pollution of land and water,' Mr Paynter said.

'A number of Australian Certified Organic [ACO] clients have already been affected by these types of coal mining operations. Others are currently under threat due to proximity, or the activities have yet to start in their region.

'Concerns held by ACO clients are in relation to the continuance of their organic certification; health of their families and workers; loss of potential markets domestically and also in export markets; and interruption to farming processes due to changes of the farm landscape caused by mining infrastructure.'

According to Akiko Nicholls, ACO managing director, if the land is contaminated from the result of CSG, organic certification status may be suspended.

'Producers could face loss of all markets for their produce for three years and even longer if there are ongoing problems with managing the risk and level of contamination,' she said.

Greg Paynter says the BFA is working for the best outcome for organic primary producers.

'We are communicating with growers, grower groups and government to gain an accurate understanding about the extent mining activities are affecting or may affect producers' organic status in future.'

GREEN SCREEN YOUR SUPER

I recently attended the screening of The Economics of Happiness at the Byron Bay Film Festival and was impressed with the film's effort to educate all of us on the benefits of sustainable living. At the end of the film, a Q&A session with the star of the documentary raised questions about what we can do to help our planet, fellow man/woman and our local businesses to avoid complete market domination by major global corporations. Most of us on the Northern Rivers appreciate the beauty of this region and are conscious about efforts to sustain it. But we can do much more!

A powerful tool overlooked!

There is one major area many overlook, however, when trying to do our best for the environment and communities. Its power can have fantastic effects and is yours to control – unfortunately many are not aware of how or where to start. Your money, your superannuation may be invested into companies that may not share your principles and ethics. For example, companies involved in manufacturing or sale of alcohol and tobacco, gambling facilities and equipment, uranium extraction, weapons, genetically modified foods or those with poor human/animal rights history. You may not want to invest in such companies...but there's a good chance you are...via your super!

The reality is, you want to 'do your bit' but you still want healthy investment returns!

Bin Sizes Can Reduce Waste And Save

Council offers a financial incentive to residents who reduce, reuse and recycle by offering three different wheelie bin sizes for household garbage. While everyone receives a large 240 litre yellow lidded recycling bin, residents who are able to reduce waste can save money by moving to a smaller and cheaper red lidded garbage bin.

Waste bins are collected weekly

Move from a large 240L garbage bin to a 140L medium bin and save $88 per annum.*

Move from a medium 140L garbage bin to a 80L small bin and save $87 per annum.*

* Savings are based on 2010/11 fees and charges and may change in the future. The option of different bin sizes is only available in urban areas.

TOUR THE CAPE BYRON LIGHTHOUSE

Visitors to one of Australia's most famous destinations can explore the maritime history of Byron Bay during the autumn school holidays, as the Cape Byron Trust is running the popular heritage tours of the Cape Byron Lighthouse.

'The Lighthouse Tours allow visitors to explore and appreciate the maritime heritage of Byron Bay,' said Cape Byron Trust Chair Yvonne Stewart.

'Join a tour and take a step back in time to discover what the daily duties of the Lighthouse Keepers and their families at the Cape would have been like.'

'Enjoy climbing the tower, stopping at each of the three levels before stepping out onto the top balcony to get a bird's eye view into the Marine Park below and surrounding hinterland,' said Yvonne Stewart.

Today the Lighthouse, an important north coast icon, is managed jointly by a community trust with the NPWS and the Bundjalung of Byron Bay Arakwal Aboriginal People.

Guided tours of the Cape Byron Lighthouse are available on Tuesdays and Thursdays (all year), and Saturday (NSW school holidays). Guided tours take approximately 40 minutes and cost $8 for adults, $6 for children and concession, and $25 for family groups. Children must be five years old to participate in tours. Bookings are recommended.

Please contact the Cape Byron Trust on (02) 6685 5955 or visit the shop at the Head Lighthouse Keepers' Cottage.

Cape Byron Lighthouse Tours

Join an experienced heritage guide and explore Australia's most easterly lighthouse.

Guided tours of the Cape Byron Lighthouse run on Tuesdays and Thursdays (11.00am, 12.00pm & 2pm) all year and Saturdays during NSW school holiday periods (10.00am, 11.00am, 12.30pm, 2.00pm & 3.30pm).

How's THIS FOR AN IDEA?

A monthly movie session just for pre-schoolers, called Sprok-ets, with two special launches. 'Special', says Byron Community Centre Project Officer, Jim Beatson, 'because we are holding two pre-screening parties with 300 free inflatable Hippos, a free face-paint or Indian bindi, plus prizes, and live entertainment hosted by Coco from Curly Cousins.'

Sprok-ets is made only for pre-schoolers and stars The Wiggles, Dorothy the Dinosaur, Baby Antonio's Circus, The Kingdom of Paramithi, Gazoon, Hilltop Hospital, Jungle Beat, City of Friends and 64 Zoo Lane. These are all award-winning segments made in Australia or Britain.

There a new edition each month, each hour-long program specially made for littlies.

Monday 25 April & Sunday 1 May. Party starts at 9.45am with Sprok-ets at 10.30am. All at the Community Centre's Byron Theatre thought what a good idea.

All tickets at the door $6.

IT'S PRETTY WELL IMPOSSIBLE TO CORRAL THE MUSICAL CURIOSITY OF A LUMINOUS CAREER SPANNING 30 YEARS, IN WHICH ELVIS COSTELLO HAS CARVED OUT HIS OWN SPECIAL PLACE IN THE PANTHEON OF ROCK HISTORY.

A swag of nominations and awards litter that historic trail – evidence of the respect and awe this performer commands from his peers. Such diversity and credibility over that number of years tells its own story of legend. This Bluesfest features a debut performance by Elvis Costello and The Imposters. SEVEN caught up with him on the eve of his Byron sojourn.

For Elvis Costello planning a show can be a challenge. He just has so many songs. 'It's quite a good challenge to have too many songs,' he laughs. 'If you don't have enough then you have other problems. There are concerts we are doing the the US where we are going to pick songs off a game show wheel!'

So how do you prepare for a concert where anything could be up for grabs? 'I put together a basic list, and sometimes I will pull something out of the catalogue that we haven't performed for a while. I'm not a fool; I know that people want to hear my reasonably well known songs. If people are coming to see you and they are fans they want something they recognise.'

For Elvis, sometimes the process of revisiting an old song can give it a whole new life. 'Sometimes I'll pull something out, something that didn't quite work for me in the first instance; maybe it was the recording, sometimes the production. The production values have changed so much over the years and it can make that song sound more in a specific time and place. Sometimes you didn't get it right, and you didn't arrive where you should have. You can always add something new with time on your side.'

When it comes to the creative process, Elvis is considered. 'I have no preciousness. I think there are some songs that have different meanings. I don't make the meaning to be simplistic; thats the point – not to be. I try not to be emphatic and dogmatic in songs.'

He's also not someone prone to creating event-inspired anthems. 'When provoked by events in the world it's tedious to be lecturing on the right and wrong of it, because that should be obvious; it's more like a lament you might arrive at like a Scarlett Tide, or a song that takes in different points of view.'

Songs for Elvis cover a broad scope. 'Songs don't always describe noble life; often you describe low life. You might be talking about people who are unpleasant – they are the characters who are telling a story. When I am writing, I am looking at the story through a window with the perspective of a writer, and people who aren't very smart get confused about it; they take offence at things and they hear words. They don't understand that words only mean what they mean to them.'

So how does someone like Elvis Costello stay real? 'I don't know that I am... I have a wooden leg full of gin.'

Catch Elvis Costello at Bluesfest this Easter long weekend.

READY, SET... WOO!

THIS EASTER DO SOMETHING A LITTLE DIFFERENT AND VISIT THE STARLIGHT WELLBEING EXPO AT THE BANGALOW A&I HALL. IT'S A SHOWCASE OF THE BEST HEALERS AND NATURAL THERAPISTS IN THE REGION. SEVEN SPOKE WITH RAYM, THE EXPO DIRECTOR.

Tell me about some of the highlights at this year's Starlight Festival. Who are the interesting characters we should look out for?

For those who are interested in communicating with their own higher guidance or 'spirit guides' there is a two-hour workshop by a very talented spiritual artist Lesley Crossingham. For those who wish to expand their consciousness we have 'The Template', a sacred ceremony focused on reactivation of access to higher knowledge that many believe was denied us through deliberate genetic manipulation of our species many thousands of years ago. Bambi Daul is a trainer and therapist with a very interesting background. Having studied with many of the great contemporary spiritual teachers, she offers their own fusion of knowledge to empower the individual to de-stress and align their energy bodies. Bambi is quite a personality; having been a Penthouse Pet and model in her youth she became a photographer for Penthouse magazine and has a degree in psychology. One of the most interesting presenters I've come across recently is a modern shaman, a woman who spent a great deal of time and energy learning from South American shamans in their native land. She offers a workshop on 'The Way of the Shaman' which I expect to be well attended. At the last Expo she was one of the busiest therapists – a testimony to her skills.

Why do you think people have such a fascination with Raghida? What does it mean to be a shaman in the modern era?

Like the Venerable Lobsang Tendar, a Tibetan Buddhist monk and a regular guest at my Expo, she became popular very quickly. This only happens when people get results, or clients have a profound experience during their sessions. The feedback I was getting from people who experienced sessions with her was very positive. What does it mean to be a shaman? As a practising shaman myself I believe that it is about somehow bringing an ancient tradition, which may have requirements that do not fit into the 21st century, into the this time and place. What I see with Raghida's work is an honouring of an ancient culture, an honouring of her teachers, but also a streamlining of techniques that may in other cultures require a more sacred space, more preparation and more community involvement. Acting as a bridge between worlds, the shaman is often feared because they tread a path that few choose to explore. Fortunately today there are a few modern shamans who are able to fulfill a great community service. In another culture, in another time, we would perhaps be honoured a great deal more than we are now.

What is it that people most commonly seek when they come to a healer? Often people turn to complementary medicine when they are frustrated with conventional medicine or they have tried courses of treatment which have not achieved results. Some people just know intuitively that the cause of their challenge is much deeper than conventional medicine acknowledges.

Friday to Monday at the Bangalow A&I Hall from 9.30am till 4.30pm. Admission is just $10/15 and $1 from every admission is donated to Red Cross Disaster Relief.

SOAP BOX

Mandy Nolan

I SEE REDNECK

Last week a delightful redneck chap emailed me in response to my column on the Shooters Party. For the first time in 43 years I actually considered restructuring my value system and making that move to the right. After all it's so easy on the right. You can outsource all your thinking to a pretty straightforward ideology: if you don't understand it, if you can't farm it, sell it or root it, then it must be wrong. You no longer have to deal with this incredible annoyance called the social conscience.

I have to admit my pet redneck was extremely convincing. When one is faced with such erudite logic it is difficult not to concede and admit that one's personal politics are flawed and that it might be better for all concerned if we took up arms and shot the greenies. For instance how can you argue with this: 'All green voters like you should do the right thing by putting your money where your mouth is and sign your house, land and bank balance over to the Aboriginal community or some newly arrived illegal boat people!' I was so moved by the sense of this challenge that I immediately transferred $467.50 from my savings account and signed over my property. Unfortunately I rent, so the landlord was a little pissed off to find that his house now belongs to a family on Christmas Island. But then he's a greenie as well so serves him right.

Mr R Neck's major grief though was with blow-ins. He displayed incredible tolerance and a deep intelligence when it came to demographic analysis of our region. I'm thinking he may even end up a contemporary of Bernard Salt. 'Do you think there will be more screaming green, blow-in sea changers like you choking on their Soy Lattes anytime soon?' Ironically Mr Red Neck and the rest of the Neck family by virtue of admitting that 'they were born here', also admit they subdivided their farms and sold off their land to...commie greenie do-gooders. The Blow-ins made them rich.

The whole 'Born Here' versus 'Blow Ins' is a scar that runs six miles deep through our regional communities. It would appear that Mullumbimby is not just a town, it's a nationality. I was actually under the impression that we were all Australian and by the nature of what citizenship means, the entire country is at our disposal when it comes to choosing somewhere to live. If you are going to use the whole blow-in line, then I'd say being here for three or four generations is like a piss in the ocean when it comes to the long haul. Our traditional owners have out-birthrighted us by 40,000 years. That means that Indigenous people have been here for over 10,000 generations. I reckon that makes five look pretty pathetic.

That would make all Australians blow-ins. Australia Day would become 'Blow In Day' and instead of having a celebration, we'd be reminded that we're not welcome, that we have no right to an opinion and we should go back to where we came from. Hang on, isn't that what we've been doing to our Indigenous communities for the last 200-plus years?

My Redneck then gave me a quote that I'll be using on the dust jacket of my new book: 'Wow all the rest you write is just predictable, populist, leftwing, trendoid, yuppie, cliché-type stuff! Boring!' Thank you. Not since the Bjelke years have I been flattered with the reference of being a 'trendoid'. (I think it's someone who knows how to dress in a contemporary fashion. Clearly this is very frightening for Mr Redneck.)

What amazes me most though is that most exponents of the intolerance and fear as expressed by Mr Neck are usually fundamentalist Christians. I should remind them that Jesus, if he were alive today, would himself be a greenie, do-gooder soy-latte-sipping blow-in.

ROGER THAT AT THE HOTEL GREAT NORTHERN ON FRIDAY

Roger That at the Northern

'They're the sound of spiralling petrol prices, political scandal, a ready supply of the drug of your choice, botched invasion attempts, one raised finger to the man and fucking it all. They fly that freak flag up on high and into the sky. Swaying like the breeze, mind whistling like leaves, Amish beards and anti-establishment grooves – if there is anything lacking from our apocalypse envisioned in childhood, it's in the sights they bring to our feverish minds – the second coming Roger That style. The breath of fresh air we needed. Walking the water and swimming the land. If ever there is a diagonal slide into sweet oblivion that needed magnifying with guitar, bass, drum and electrified amp. Friday at the Hotel Great Northern.

Musical Journey with Elyjah

Don't miss the sensational one-man show by Elyjah Mcleod. A sellout last time, and sure to be one again. He's joined by the shire's finest: Steve Russell, Cleis Pearce, Thierry Fossemalle and Jamie Power. Mullumbimby Civic Hall on Friday 29th April @ 8pm.

Rackin' up the Music

Mason Rack Band breaks all musical genres – beyond roots with harder alt-rock and blues – flashes of Tom Waits and Hendrix, melting towards Ben Harper, with screaming Weissenborn lap slide, big bass, big drums, uniting broken glass vocals with jazzy funk and edgy rock. The best, meanest, horniest, rockin', swampy, smokey, blues music – watch for the explosive trio percussion duel drum show – it's not just about the music! Saturday at Lennox Pub.

Easter Billi

This Easter Sunday Billinudgel Hotel plays host to three diverse and talented Local Bands. Swingin' Cowgirl Kathryn Jones saddles up with Honky Tonk piano man Mick Buckley. Somersault is a versatile acoustic band who juggle instruments traditionally played in gypsy music. And The Dirty Channel makes their welcome return to the Nudge. Featuring Adam Brown – widely hailed as one of Australia's best Dobro slide guitarists – and Jason Matheson, both formerly of well known local Band Sanchez. Noon onwards.

Richie Rich...

Tamworth boy Richie Williams relocated to the Byron Shire just a year ago to get closer to that ocean out there and to keep writing his original material. Richie has just released a new album, featuring songs that gain an instant rapport with people through his catchy tunes and insightful lyrics. There are a few opportunities to catch The Richie Williams Band – Thursday at Ballina's Shaws Bay Hotel, Friday at the Treehouse on Belongil, Sunday at Suffolk Park Hotel and Monday at the Byron Brewery.

Easter Hunt

Lisa (sister) Hunt began singing in that great African-American tradition, the gospel church; there was laid the foundation of her soulful singing style. She went on to study voice at The City College of New York where she received a BFA in music. Her debut album was A Little Piece Of Magic for Universal/Polydor. She has had songs on numerous compilations around the globe, both as singer and songwriter, and has sold more than a million records. Strange for someone you've probably never heard of until now, but hey, that's showbiz! Sunday at the Beach Hotel from 4.30pm.

Plantation Music

Got your ticket for Bob? Watcha doin' for the rest of the week? Catch Blues Plantation at the Byron Bay Brewery on Sunday. This sensational, new local band features James T (Canned Heat), Col Germano (Feramones/Bourbon St), and dynamic rhythm section, drummer Mick Buckley with Take on bass. 6pm.

Last week's solution

Mungo's Crossword first published in The Week.

WITH LILITH

With the year already more than a quarter gone, this week would appreciate your attention to what you intend doing with the rest of it...

- ♈ ARIES: This week highlights how important other people are in your life. If this doesn't sit easily with your independent nature, then take it as your challenge because cooperation is more vitally necessary now than ever, both for you personally and the human species as a whole.
- ♉ TAURUS: Don't let a surprise outburst early in the week have you seeing red, because that's not something anyone wants. Shelf showdowns with difficult people or situations until after midweek Sun moves into Taurus and Mercury moves out of retrograde, ie. till the weekend.
- ♊ GEMINI: Others need special attention from you this week, so nourish your personal and professional relationships and they'll nurture you in return. If people are unusually assertive or independent, just give them space - Venus in a conciliatory mood brings a rational slant to talking issues through.
- ♋ CANCER: Sharing inexpensive pleasures with favourite friends is this week's least complicated antidote to global gloom. Late week suggests an influx of new and unusual people to spritz up your outlook, recalibrate your attitude, even get you surprising yourself by busting some bold and unexpected moves.
- ♌ LEO: If demanding people wanting to run the show (don't they know that's your job?) have been elevating your irritability levels, this flirty transit shines some delightful ego strokes your way. Difficult others may communicate like flame throwers, but the cooler you keep, the sweeter your week.
- ♍ VIRGO: This week could ask for tough choices about what's most important to you. A test of intelligent decision-making is imminent, so researching available data and aligning your ideas with the latest information on changing circumstances is the best kind of prep before making your choice.
- ♎ LIBRA: If you've been trying to make up your mind about - something this is your final week to decide, so check that you haven't overlooked anything or missed something important. Because next week changes will go into motion of their own accord, ready or not.

- ♏ SCORPIO: Early week Scorpio moon wants you channeling frustration into more constructive forms of stress release. Late week suggests saying what you need to as kindly as you can without being attached to results. And (good news, finally!) the weekend's an absolute corker for sensual pleasures.
- ♐ SAGITTARIUS: If you've been doing lots lately and achieving little, that's because recent weeks have been more for organising than forward progress. As midweek Sagittarius moon and Venus moving into a fellow fire sign pump up your fun hormones, judicious career socialising could get some satisfying results.
- ♑ CAPRICORN: Present planetary patterns are sprinkling you with personal growth powder and this week suggests expanding your spiritual horizons. Shock horror! You thought they were fairly fabulously expanded already, didn't you? In theory perhaps, but the practical apps may be in need of some adjusting.
- ♒ AQUARIUS: If your get up and go wants to lay down, stay private and just do whatever brings peace and pleasure, that's an entirely valid response to this week's world news, unstable arrangements and abrasive ways. All of which are telling you it's better to relax than wrangle...
- ♓ PISCES: This week's glitches will respond best to a review of your personal belief systems. Look honestly at what's happening in your life (life mirrors back your attitude to it), accept things as they are rather than your preferred version of reality, and make the necessary adjustments.

CHESS by Ian Rogers

Play at Byron Services Club, Mon 7-10pm

The Thai Open has traditionally acted as a warm-up tournament for Canberra's Doeberl Cup, but this year the apprentice may outshine the master.

The 2011 Thai Open in Pattaya still lags Canberra's Easter Grand Prix tournament in both numbers and prize money, but it can claim two world-class players as participants.

As expected, Spanish number one Paco Vallejo and former world title challenger Nigel Short set the pace in Pattaya, though a short draw in the fifth round gave the chasing pack a chance to close the gap.

For Short this is his third visit to the Thai Open, a rare repetition for a player who seems to have made it his mission to play chess in as many countries as possible.

'In 2009 I finished third and I was second last year,' Short explained, 'so...'

That the Thai Open exists at all is remarkable given that international chess has little tradition in the country, while makruk - Thai chess - is held in low esteem due to its popularity as a street gambling game. Thailand still has no International Masters, let alone Grandmasters, but perceptions about the game are slowly changing. For the first time the Thai Open has attracted a significant number of local juniors and one of them - 15-year-old Warot Kananub, a former junior makruk champion - looks like a future Olympic player.

In years past, Australia's young players had to travel to Europe to compete against top quality opposition. Now, with the Doeberl Cup and Sydney International bringing Grandmasters to Australia and strong regional events such as the Thai and Malaysian Opens, Australia's rising stars have a much greater chance to make a mark without the expense of playing on the European circuit.

Of the 12-strong Australian contingent at the Thai Open, teenagers James Morris and Max Illingworth have enjoyed stellar tournaments.

Both survived the first half of the tournament undefeated, despite Grandmaster opposition in some games.

Morris's demolition of Australian Olympian Guy West in the fourth round was particularly incisive - the type of risk-taking chess seen too rarely nowadays.

Pattaya 2011

White: J Morris

Black: G West

Opening: Pirc Defence

1.e4 Morris is developing a bad habit of arriving late for games - here West was left twiddling his thumbs for more than half an hour before Morris arrived to make his first move.

1...d6 2.d4 Nf6 3.Nc3 g6 4.f4 Bg7 5.Nf3 0-0.e5! Morris's caveman system, with which he has enjoyed considerable success.

6...Nfd7 7.h4 c5 8.h5 cxd4 9.hxg6! hxg6 Nobody has yet accepted the Morris bluff; 9...dxc3 10.gxf7+ Rxf7 11.Bc4 e6! is certainly playable for Black, though scary.

10.Qxd4 Nc6 11.Qg1! Now White is really gambling. 11.Qf2, headed for h4, is the recognised continuation.

11...Re8? 11...dxe5 12.Qh2 Nf6 13.dxe5 Nh5 is the best way to defend.

12.Qh2?! Obvious, but 12.e6! fxe6 13.Qh2 Nf8 14.Bd2 leaves Black tied in knots.

12...Nf8 13.f5! More ultra-violence, but the sober 13.Bd2 was sounder.

13...Nxe5! 14.Nxe5 Bxe5 15.Bf4 Qa5! 16.fxg6 (See diagram) fxg6? A fatal mis-step. After 16...Bxc3+ 17.bxc3 Qxc3+ 18.Kf2 Qd4+ 19.Kg3 fxg6!, Black's counter attack could become serious.

17.Bc4+! e6 18.0-0 Bxf4+ 19.Qxf4 Qe5 20.Qh4 Now all Morris needs to do is bring up the reserves and the game will be over.

20...g5 21.Qh5 Re7 22.Rdf1! Bd7 23.Ne4! Be8 24.Qh6 Nh7 25.Nf6+ Nxf6 26.Qh8+! 1-0

a b c d e f g h

How should Black (to move) defend this position?

CINEMA REVIEWS

Paul

The best ideas are those that appear to be so bleeding obvious after the event – and so simple, too. Writers Simon Pegg and Nick Frost, who also star in this heartwarming, playful comedy, have taken an extraterrestrial and put him in a road trip. And it works a treat. As Graeme, Pegg is once more your gormless Englishman (the antithesis of Colin Firth's diffident and Hugh Grant's suave variety), who sets out with his best mate Clive (Frost) on the holiday of a lifetime – a couple of sci-fi nerds planning to visit all of the locations in the US where there have been reports of contact with aliens from outer space. After a prang in Nevada, they meet Paul (voiced by Seth Rogan), a lonely, pursued creature whose desperate mission is to get back to his planet before scientists start slicing up his brain. There is so much to love in what evolves into one long homage to some of the classics of the American sci-fi genre – notably ET, Close Encounters Of The Third Kind and Alien, with Sigourney Weaver's veiled participation and belated cameo appearance a delight. Desert highways, Deliverance type rednecks, roadhouse brawls and a naive horny gal with a bible bashing, gun toting loony father (her T-shirt is a killer) are then added to make a riotous pot pourri. Rogan, whose usual MO is to make a virtue out of obnoxiousness, brings the little bloke to life (perhaps being heard and not seen is his métier) – and, as a regular guy, the sight of Paul lighting up a ciggie and sucking on a stubbie, so deliriously, unfashionably 'wrong', makes you realise how straight-jacketed we have become by our wowsership dictates. Chased into the woods by sinister government agents, the boys' adventure culminates in a hold-your-breath scene of unanticipated piquancy. Funny, smart and embracing the foibles of 'everyman' with neither condescension nor mockery, it's quite a while since I've found such pure and uncomplicated pleasure in a film. ~ John Campbell

Rabbit Hole

We've had a lot of fun over the years, haven't we, taking the proverbial out of Nicole Kidman. For all of the panting she did when Billy Zane was stalking her on that yacht in Dead Calm, to whatever it was she was trying to do – was it act? – in the great white elephant of Australia. So, in fairness, the Oscar nomination she received for her performance in this at times harrowing but never mawkish study of grief and recovery was entirely justified. Becca and Howie (Aaron Eckhart) have had a perfectly plentiful life shattered by the death of their four-year-old son. To no avail, they attend group therapy sessions as their marriage nears breaking point, with Becca derailing internally as a result of her inconsolable loss. Kidman's coldness, her strange inability to elicit empathy, is perfectly suited to the part of a character who, for all her maternal suffering, still manages to alienate – a not quite believable confrontation with a woman in a supermarket shows Becca at her self-absorbed worst. Eckhart's new-age but still flinty masculinity is also just right for Howie, whose emotional struggle we observe without a skerrick of information provided about his family or personal history – he seems more reachable, but it is Becca who is the protagonist. Adapted from a play, its wordy intensity gives an outstanding cast plenty to get their teeth into – Becca's unreasonable behaviour is cringeworthy in a brilliant ensemble piece involving her mother (Dianne Wiest) and sister (Tammy Blanchard) at a bowling alley. The cinematography is prosaic, which is probably as needs be, the pacing never bogs down and there is a welcome moment of levity when Howie and a fellow group member (Sandra Oh) attend a gathering stoned. A more melodramatic treatment of the subject than what is offered by director John Cameron Mitchell may have produced buckets of tears, but this journey is through the head rather than the heart – which is Kidman's forte. ~ John Campbell

Television Guide

1. Dakota Blue Richards stars in the highly-acclaimed British TV film about teenage angst, Dustbin Baby (Prime, Friday, 8.30pm).
 2. The late Heath Ledger is one of the variants of Bob Dylan in I'm Not There (SBS1, Saturday, 10.05pm). Bob is not there because he's here.
 3. Cute. Pert. Way lethal. And the original: Kristy Swanson played Buffy The Vampire Slayer (Eleven, Sunday, 8.30pm) long before Sarah Michelle Gellar picked up a wooden stake.
 Elsewhere, Joseph's son takes on the might of the Jewish oligarchy in Easter (7BC, Sunday, 9.30pm).

Pictures good enough to eat

Victoria Cosford

One photographer described it as being like performance art: when it's happened it's happened. Another suggested it was about selling a dream, needing the audience to want what you are conveying. However many definitions there may be of food photography, on one aspect of it is there unanimous agreement, and that is the way that over the last few decades it has transformed into a veritable art.

visa - and it was then that rather quickly she realised that she wanted to stay. She applied for a business sponsorship, and promptly got it. 'I had one week left on my three-month visa and in one day I got three job offers,' she said. 'They were all in Sydney and they were all managerial design jobs.'

Great food photography is so powerful that you could almost eat it. This, of course, is the whole idea, but a cast back to old cookbooks and food magazines reveals stilted frames of dishes laid out in a way both unappetising and inedible. For a long time food photographs would be shot from an overhead perspective, the way, in fact, that diners experienced a meal - so individual items (complete with their embarrassing garnishes) would be set out flatly on plates. Gradually, shallower angles, props and altered lighting came into fashion - and today the best food photography is characterised by clarity and simplicity, often achieved by extreme close-ups. I remember once being told that food photography in Australia was considered among the best in the world and it was because of the quality of the light we have here - the intense, unforgiving antipodean light - and to be sure light is the critical element, and if it is natural daylight then the effect will be so much more real.

So Fran spent the next few years in Sydney doing largely contract work, fitting in a course in photography at the Australian Centre for Photography as well. She ended up in Byron Bay because of a friend who was living here, 'just hanging out for a couple of months,' not wanting too much pressure. Then out of the blue she was asked if she was a food photographer. 'It was [chef/restaurateur] Matty Wilde,' she said. 'He said we need a food photographer. So I did food photography for him, and also his website. Then things just started to flow in. Because I was city-trained there wasn't a lot of high-end stuff up here. It was really nice to be hands-on creative again. So I started Frangipani Creative.'

It is indeed a great art, and in our midst is a photographer who is gradually making it one of her specialities. Fran Flynn is a Dublin lass who arrived in Australia in 1998 as part of a six-week holiday with a gaggle of female friends. She was in her early 20s with a degree in Graphic Communication and Design under her belt, and a major in photography. Fran loved Australia so much she decided on the flight back home that she wanted to return on a working holiday. 'Theoretically I was to be away from Ireland for a year but that stretched out to 19 months after all the travelling,' she told me. After that she wangled another three-month holiday

Fran had done some food photography as part of her studies. 'I was pretty good at it, and I'd been photographing for quite a long time already. That Wilde experience gave me a lot of confidence. Things just flowed - people saw something they liked - it's all been word-of-mouth.'

For the past two years Fran has been working with food stylist Sarah de Nardi, involved in campaigns for Zest (marinades) and Fishmongers, amongst others. Fashion and food photography have gradually become her niche - 'it's the work I do that draws the most attention - I enjoy it the most. And you're working with a team.'

She said that there's an urgency to food photography to make it look good; it all has to be done quickly. Everything is planned and pre-planned meticulously. 'The key,' she said, 'is being shot straight from the chef to the plate. Mine is 90 per cent the real thing. You're really trying to make it look as good as it does in reality.'

Food fit for Royals

Edwina Blightrose

Everything is abuzz at chez nous about the forthcoming Royal Wedding between Kate Middleton and Prince William. I haven't felt so excited since the last time Colin Firth emerged dripping from a pond in a Regency drama.

This Cheesefest, as the vulgar Americans call it, will see the ascent of Catherine Elizabeth Middleton into the Betty Windsor clan, whose divine right to rule is dependent upon her association to Conrad the Great of Meissen. The British may have fought against the Germans on several occasions but they seem to have no objection to their ruling the nation.

Young Kate has no such fuss about her provenance; she comes from the quiet village of Bucklebury in Berkshire and was raised by an airline officer and a flight attendant. She had, as the Royal gossips like to say, an 'idyllic childhood', so the Windsors can be fairly certain of the press not uncovering any embarrassing BDSM moments. The name 'Middleton' itself simply means 'middle town', so no surprises there either.

Pedigree issues aside, the main question which excites the minds of The Echo's battery of food writers is what the wedding party will be dining upon. One suspects that in this era of the great fiscal meltdown for ordinary folk, the Windsors will be mindful enough to avoid dishes such as peacock stuffed with vole or flambé of panda.

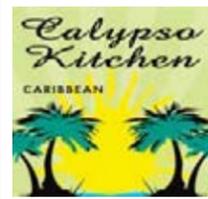

The menu remains one of life's great mysteries but the cake is the subject of much speculation. 'Dave' of www.royalweddingfood.co.uk/recipes suggests that royal icing at least is on the cards: 'Royal icing gets its name from having been the traditional icing for fruitcake – which was the wedding cake of choice among English royalty, and then among the general English population. Along with marzipan, fondant, and other rolled or formed icings, it has the advantage of sealing in freshness so that the cake in question could be made days in advance and still be tasty and moist upon serving.' Good thinking, Dave.

Among precedents in royal fodder we have Elizabeth the Queen Mother and George VI in 1923 consuming for breakfast Consommé à la Windsor, Suprêmes de Saumon Reine Mary, Côtelettes d'Agneau Prince Albert, Chapons à la Strathmore, and Fraises Duchesse Elizabeth. One would need a little nap after that lot.

The royal penchant for putting animals inside other animals continued with Diana and Charles in 1981 with brill in lobster sauce, chicken breast stuffed with lamb mousse and strawberries and cream. In 1986 Andrew and Fergie feasted on stuffed eggs, lamb with mint sauce and new potatoes, strawberries and clotted cream. Their wedding cake was six foot tall (182 cm in modern parlance) and adorned with pastel flowers. I understand Fergie is still selling pieces of the cake to pay off her bills.

But until the precise details of the banquet are revealed, we can all improve our minds with the royal wedding quizzes at www.itv.com/news/royal-wedding/quiz.

Bluesfest 2011 is here. This year brings a swag of international acts for their debut performance, including Grace Jones, Bob Dylan and Elvis Costello. Everyone has been saying it, but I'll say it again. It's quite possibly the best Bluesfest line up to date, possibly the best festival line up in the country this year. In a climate of music festivals, Bluesfest still retains significant points of difference. This is a festival for a broader demographic. It's not just starry-eyed 20-somethings, it's grandmas, and grandpas, babies, teenagers, the middle-aged, the prematurely aged and the ageing well. It's a festival for serious music lovers who get this rare opportunity once a year to hear the best music from every corner of the planet. Be prepared for a life-changing experience in your collapsible chair and your wellies. Ladies and Gentlemen, open your ears, your eyes and your hearts!

BOB DYLAN

He's the man that everyone is coming to see. Undoubtedly he is the most influential musical figure in contemporary music with a career that spans over half a century. Pulitzer prize winning for his profound impact on popular music and American culture, for compositions of extraordinary poetic power. He has toured since the late 1980s on what has been dubbed The Never Ending Tour. Much of his most celebrated work dates from the 1960s when he was an informal chronicler, and an apparently reluctant figurehead, of social unrest, though he is well known for revolutionising perceptions of the limits of popular music in 1965 with the six-minute single Like a Rolling Stone. He's been inducted into the Nashville Hall of Fame. Has a playlist of songs that would possibly take the entire Bluesfest to play and is incidentally one of the most popular trivial pursuit questions: Who is Robert Zimmerman? In his autobiography, Dylan acknowledged that he had been influenced by the poetry of Dylan Thomas. Explaining his change of name in a 2004 interview, Dylan remarked: 'You're born, you know, the wrong names, wrong parents. I mean, that happens. You call yourself what you want to call yourself. This is the land of the free.' Bob Dylan, the early champion of Counterculture finally comes to the town of Byron Bay to perform for the shape-changing name-changing people he first inspired.

A Poem to Bob

*In a young Summer's youth I wandered away,
Getting' lost in the rain somewhere south of LA.
Walked and I crawled on a long windy beach,
The sky full of diamonds...far out of my reach.*

*Dug all your songs, your poetry too...
Learned to play guitar and be just like you.
Wore out Spanish boots travellin' around,
Searchin' for freedom in South border towns.*

*How many a year seemed to pass me on by,
Laughin' and jokin'and tryin' to stay high,
Till I woke up one morning... feelin' weary and down,
With a taste for carnitas and Mexican brown.*

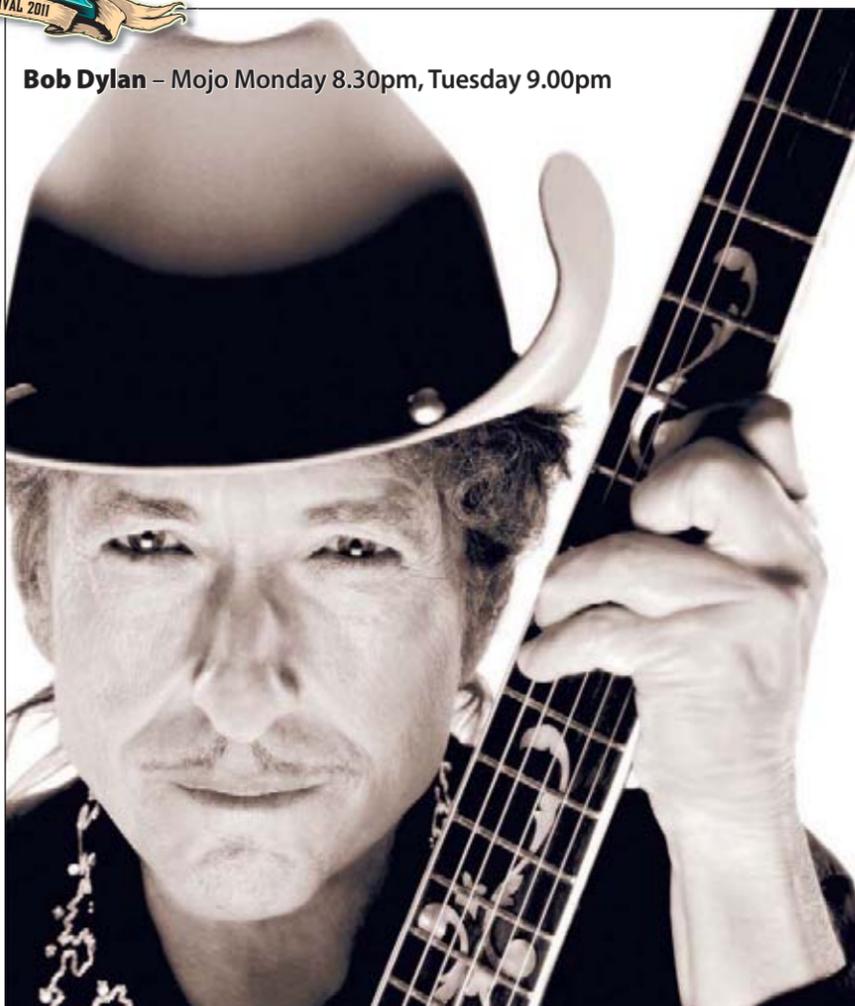

*Stuck in the basement with the Tombstone Blues,
Mixed up, noddin', dazed and confused,
Out on the pavement hustlin' nickels and dimes,
Wonderin' if this was what you had in mind.*

*But don't think twice Bob, I ain't blamin' you,
You just happened to be there, I was there too...
Will ask you one thing though, I have paid my dues,
Don't screw up your songs when you sing at the Blues...*

*Festival, in Byron Bay, this year, 2011, Monday...
(good God, are we still here?)*

RUTHIE FOSTER & HER BAND

Well, we just had to bring her back after her triumphant Australian solo performance debut in 2008. The soulful Ruthie Foster will spin the mind and the mood of Bluesfest audiences once again – and this time she's bringing her band. From her beginnings in the Brazos Valley of Central Texas, the ever-expressive Ruthie Foster has Southern blues in her groove, rock in her rhythm, a blend of gospel redemption, country poetry and jazz elegance in her singing. But not, according to Ruthie, until her latest album, The Truth, have all the pieces fitted into a picture this powerful. Her gigs have taken her from choir lofts to folk bistros and onto stages in America, Europe and Australia. As one US rock critic enthused: 'Music this moving doesn't come around often these days...' Well, here it comes again, with Ruthie Foster ready to unveil to Bluesfest followers The Truth, the eagerly awaited follow-up to her 2007 critically acclaimed The Phenomenal. Ruthie Foster tackles life's big issues, harmonised against her core message – that through all of the ups and downs of living, you must stay true to yourself.

XAVIER RUDD

A welcome return to a standout favourite at previous Bluesfest festivals. Xavier Rudd's music continues to build an increasing swell of support thanks to acclaimed performances at festivals in Canada, the USA and Europe. His unmistakable rhythmic, energising and rootsy sounds are drawn from his ancestry, from his surroundings and from an expanding pool of musical and spiritual influence. Hailing from Torquay on the southern Victorian coast in Australia, Xavier is a talented multi-instrumentalist - including a breathtaking proficiency on didgeridoo. He returned to Byron Bay to create his latest album. Released only a few months ago, Koonyum Sun is Xavier's first studio collaboration with bassist Tio Moloantoa and percussionist Andile Nqubezelo under the unified banner of Xavier Rudd & Inzintaba. This album, says Xavier, is the culmination of where he wants to be musically. He's ready to make his music mobile once again. 'I've never been more excited to tour,' he says, and fans at Bluesfest cannot be anything but ecstatic about that promise.

The Cat Empire – Mojo Sunday 10.30pm

Djarridjarri/Blue Flag showcase their two main styles of Indigenous music – one of songs stretching back over 10,000 years, reworked with new life breathed into them; the other, new songs written as a fusion of pop-reggae-ska. The message is clear: come hear this polished and brilliant band. You won't be disappointed.

THE CAT EMPIRE

Now a Bluesfest institution, Melbourne's The Cat Empire has won over audiences across the globe, selling multi-platinum albums, celebrating Number One debuts, winning a whole load of awards, headlining the world's most prestigious music festivals, and performing on some of the world's biggest entertainment shows like Letterman and Leno. The new album, Cinema, shows a band playing at its very best. In it the band captures the force and joy of its live performances, that.' Listen up Bluesfest faithful, and join the excitement.

ERIC BIBB

Winner of the 2010 DownBeat Critics Poll category for 'Blues Album' (for Booker's Guitar), Eric Bibb is a big favourite with Bluesfest fans. He has criss-crossed the world paying his dues and absorbing musical influences, picking up countless awards and nominations, and mesmerising audiences. While this acoustic guitarist and singer has been inspired by pre-war Delta blues music, he has brought the acoustic country-blues sound into the new century with his new and acclaimed album Booker's Guitar. The New York Post tells the story well: 'After a London gig, a fan approached Eric to see if he wanted to play blues legend Booker (Bukka) White's vintage guitar, which he had acquired. White was BB King's older cousin, and a master of slide acoustic guitar Delta blues. The delivered in a format perfect for loungerooms, backyards, barbecues, cafes, road trips and parties all over the world. The Cat Empire has a musical style that defies definition. The only thing that is guaranteed is that it is incredibly infectious, undeniably uplifting and definitely danceable.

As they look forward to the prospect of Easter in Byron Bay, singer and percussionist Felix Reibl says: 'The feeling right now is just like when we were starting out. We're all very excited about experience playing that blues relic fired up Bibb.' Well Eric remains fired up and at Bluesfest fans will relish the blues music that is aimed at the brain as well as the heart and soul played by a consummate artist. Purveying a beautifully realised and deftly accomplished, soulful and gospel infused folk-blues, Eric has no problem melding a traditional rootsy American style with a subtle contemporary sensibility. Powerful and intimate, don't miss Eric Bibb at Bluesfest 2011.

BEN HARPER & RELENTLESS7

Bluesfest and Ben Harper... well, they go together like surf and sun. Ever since his Bluesfest debut in 1996, Ben has publicly paid tribute to the fact that his career really kicked off in Australia. Ben presents a double whammy for 2011 Bluesfest. He'll play all his wonderful hits and perform in two great bands, Ben Harper and Relentless7 and Fistful of Mercy. Ben Harper and Relentless7 lit up the world in mid 2009 with their debut album White Lies for Dark Times. It charted #9 on Billboard 200 and #17 on ARIA Albums chart. Relentless7, who helped make that chart success, are Texas musicians: guitarist Jason Mozersky, drummer Jordan Richardson and bassist Jesse Ingalls. Together they combine for an effortless and eclectic mix of blues, folk, reggae and rock music. Ben Harper has a soft spot for Bluesfest. Fans at Bluesfest have shown time and again that the feeling is mighty mutual. www.benharper.net

RODRIGO Y GABRIELA

The duo that has already won the hearts of many Australian music fans are back and ready to wow us all again. To be hailed as 'the most exciting and intoxicating live acoustic performers on the planet' might cramp the style of many artists. But since winning that praise in the UK, Rodrigo y

Gabriela have swept all before them. That includes wowing the President of the United States, Barack Obama and his wife Michelle in autumn 2010 when they played at the Whitehouse. From their native Mexico City they moved to Ireland and conquered Europe. At the heart of the sound is still the stunning interplay between Rodrigo's dazzling lead work and Gabriela's unique rhythm play. Their latest album 11:11 showcases their willingness to explore musical expression, to embrace new sounds irrespective of fashion or trends; and a point-blank refusal to be pigeonholed as any particular genre. In this album they fulfil their wish to celebrate some of the great musicians, both past and present, who have inspired them along the way. Come hear their musical 'gracias' to a diverse assortment of talent delivered in the unique, the delicious and the diverse style of Rodrigo y Gabriela. www.rodgab.com

ASH GRUNWALD

Australian artist Ash Grunwald has set stages alight over a decade of touring: from our own Bluesfest to the Monteux Jazz Festival. More than just a powerhouse vocalist, Grunwald has been sliding, stomping and hollering his way into the lives of fresh audiences around the globe. Along that journey he has picked up four ARIA nominations for Best Blues and Roots Album, as well as

TONY JOE WHITE

Look no further than Tony Joe White for music and artistry of stature and depth. His music is part of America's soundtrack – sparse and elegant, filled with shadows, sadness and beauty. His songs shimmer with insight into the ups and downs, the twists and turns of everyday living. Tony Joe White's dark baritone, scarred and sweet, brings these songs to life. But others have memorably interpreted his songs, from Brook Benton's unforgettable take on Rainy Night in Georgia to Tina Turner's intensely soulful rendition of Steamy Windows. In addition, Elvis Presley, Ray Charles, Roy Orbison, Dusty Springfield, Etta James – iconic artists all – have in their own right honoured 'the Swamp Fox' by cutting his tunes. Previous Bluesfest attendees still remember the unique, mesmerising sounds of Tony Joe White. He likes it here, and you'll be glad you were there to welcome him back. www.tonyjoewhite.com

Australian blues awards for Best Emerging Talent and also Best Male Vocalist. What Ash has also done – no mean feat this – is reinvent the blues genre for a modern audience. At the beginning he was using only acoustic guitar and foot percussion consisting of a stomp box and tambourine. Then with his 2009 Fish out of Water album he entered new territory with many of the songs gaining a hip-hop edge to counterpoint Ash's traditional Delta blues. And now again another leap, this time 'neck-deep in the technological swamp of the 21st Century'. Hot Mama Vibes is the new album recorded in Adelaide, Brisbane and Melbourne. One of the most primal concoctions of elemental junkyard soul to stomp through your speakers, it mixes electronica with the blues. 'That was always a dream of mine,' Ash says. 'I love technology if it facilitates something that works.' Well, it's working for Ash and it will no doubt work for you at Bluesfest. www.ashgrunwald.com

ROBERT RANDOLPH & THE FAMILY BAND

If you want an endorsement for an amazing funk soul pedal-steel master guitarist then look no further than Eric Clapton. That is the tribute Eric Clapton paid to Robert Randolph inviting Robert Randolph and the Family Band to tour and open his shows. Eric repaid the compliment by guesting on their 2006 album Colourblind. Bluesfest fans will see for themselves the reputation Randolph's concerts have earned for their lively stage performances. Dance is an integral part of the concerts and during the number The March Robert has been known to leave his instrument to instruct the crowd on how to properly perform the intricate dance move. Other noteworthy concert features involve the entire band trading instruments, allowing each member to show off their musical proficiencies. When he becomes completely enthralled by his music, Robert can chew the audience up by kicking away the chair from his pedal steel guitar and dancing while he plays. www.robertrandolph.net

DEREK TRUCKS & SUSAN TEDESCHI

Derek Trucks and Susan Tedeschi have combined forces for a 2010 outing, touring together as one musical group. The guitar-slinging couple – married since 2001 – have recorded on each other's albums and toured together on occasion, but this new musical adventure reveals the two side by side leading one amazing ensemble. Fans can expect a mixture of material from both artists' repertoire along with a batch of songs worked up especially for this tour, steeped in blues, roadhouse rock and American roots. Derek forged a name for himself over the years as an innovative guitar virtuoso, taking a progressive approach to roots music, blending rock, blues, jazz, and world music into a sound defined by his eponymous project The Derek Trucks Band. Trucks was the youngest musician to make Rolling Stone's 'Top 100 Guitarists of All Time' and featured on the cover of their 2007 'New Guitar Gods' issue. In 2006 Trucks joined guitar legend Eric Clapton's world tour as a featured soloist in his band, a tour extending into the spring of 2007 and supported by rave critical reviews. Derek's sixth studio album, Already Free, was released in 2009, debuted at number 19 on the US Billboard Top 200 Chart. On the road over 300 days per year, Trucks has divided his time between The Derek Trucks Band and The Allman Brothers Band, and now looks to continue his path on the never-ending road with Susan and this exciting new project. Susan Tedeschi's knack for musical truth telling has been apparent in the years since she first captured the public's musical imagination. Her recent release Back to the River – produced by George Drakoulias, whose resume includes work with The Black Crowes, The Jayhawks, and Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers – is a mature, soulful work that demonstrates how much singer/guitarist/songwriter Tedeschi has grown in the decade since she burst onto the scene. Tedeschi's breakthrough album Just Won't Burn achieved Gold sales status and earned her a Grammy nomination for Best New Artist in 2000, followed by her 2003 Best Female Rock Vocal Performance Grammy nomination for Wait For Me, and her 2006 Best Contemporary Blues Album Grammy nomination for Hope and Desire. She is quickly taking her place as the new generation's greatest female blues guitarist/singer.

WASHINGTON

Here is a young artist crafting jazzy pop with depth and making big waves around the country. She tamed a field of songwriters from all over Australia by winning the inaugural Vanda & Young songwriting competition conducted by APRA/AMCOS. Her haunting song How to Tame Lions was just a taste of the crowded good times to come for Megan Washington. That song is nominated for a 2010 Single of the Year, along with five other 2010 Aria Music Award nominations. Her childhood was spent in Port Moresby, teenage years in Brisbane and her early twenties in Melbourne. This singer/songwriter and accomplished keyboardist has held close to her a love of musicals and cherishes her jazz composition training. Both shine through in her lyrics, music and performance. She is her own person, but she'll certainly tame Bluesfest fans and they will want to keep the music, the mood and the memory burning bright.

TRINITY ROOTS

Here is something special folks: New Zealand's most successful recording artist/group of this century. Reggae/jazz/soul band Trinity Roots have re-formed and are touring Australia exclusively for Bluesfest. Both of their independent albums went platinum in NZ, and now they are back after a five-year break. Trinity Roots's reputation was founded as a live act of generous and hypnotic performances. They created a formidable reputation. While their inspiration has been soul, reggae, jazz and roots, they developed a style of their own that was indigenous, organic and utterly unique. They, in turn, inspired a loyal fanbase that gave them an emotional farewell playing their final concert in February 2005 in a sellout concert to raise relief funds for the Boxing Day Tsunami at the Wellington Town Hall. During their break the band members have all continued to make vital music. Singer and chief songwriter Warren Maxwell assembled Little Bushman and will also perform with them at Bluesfest (see Little Bushman notes). Which means you get to experience both these great bands at one festival!

Michael Franti & Spearhead

LITTLE BUSHMAN

Connected to Trinity Roots, here is another great band from New Zealand that deserves to be heard. Little Bushman was formed by Warren Maxwell after Trinity Roots disbanded. He persuaded fellow Wellingtonians Rick Cranson, and Tom and Joe Callwood, to join him in forming what has been described as a 'proggy psychedelic rock band that wears its 60s and 70s influences on their sleeves'. This is indeed a new birth. Echoes of Hendrix, Pink Floyd and Cream fill the air as these fine musicians strut their stuff. For Pendulum, their latest album, each of the four members took on more instrumental duties, with Maxwell playing harmonica, piano, saxophone, guitar, and tambourine; Joe Callwood playing acoustic guitar as well as his usual electric; Tom Callwood on violin, cello, and electric bass; and Cranson adding additional percussion and vocals. One reviewer describes how Joe Callwood 'tortures a single note for almost two minutes; it's the most thrilling guitar break I've heard in years'. Bluesfest fans can experience this in full over Easter 2011, and help themselves to a large serve of this delicious torture!

FISTFUL OF MERCY

Featuring Ben Harper, Dhani Harrison (son of George) and melancholy songwriting genius Joseph Arthur! In early 2010 some stunning musical talent gathered in a Los Angeles studio with no songs written and no clear idea of what to record. Over the next three days, three musicians with three acoustic guitars and three microphones combined to compose and complete nine acoustic and vocal tracks. In doing so they also created what is being hailed as a new supergroup. Fistful of Mercy personnel are of course

Bluesfest favourite Ben Harper, iconic singer/songwriter Joseph Arthur and George Harrison's son, Dhani, who was befriended by Ben Harper at a Santa Monica skate park. Dhani talks modestly of the success of the debut album As I Call you Down: 'These guys are so talented. I can't believe I get to call them my musical brothers.' And Bluesfest is blessed to be able to give Australian music lovers a taste of that brotherly love. Don't miss Fistful of Mercy! fistfulofmercy.com

BLIND BOYS OF ALABAMA featuring AARON NEVILLE

A Blind Boys of Alabama performance is an uplifting meld of gospel, blues and rock 'n' roll...and it's harder to find a more joyful sound - shows filled with laughter and packed with emotion. The Blind Boys were formed in the Alabama Institute for the Negro Blind over 70 years ago and they haven't stopped since. Their road has not been easy, but their regard in the industry is unrivalled. Five Grammy Awards - including a Grammy Lifetime Achievement Award - and total reverence from musicians from every genre. They have shared the stage and collaborated with the finest musicians and songwriters including Lou Reed, Ben Harper, Mavis Staples, Tom Petty, John Fogerty, Peter Gabriel, Taj Mahal, Toots Hibbert, Randy Travis, Bonnie Raitt, Solomon Burke (RIP), Susan Tedeschi, Charlie Musselwhite, Asleep At The Wheel, k.d. HELP CELEBRATE OUR BIRTHDAY!

THREE THINGS I HATE ABOUT THE ECHO:

1. The way it knocks out my chihuahua when it's thrown onto the driveway.
2. The editors have such smartarse opinions.
3. It doesn't reflect the opinions of the real community.

If you have three good reasons for hating The Echo, then send them in by May 20 to editor@echo.net.au - with the word 'Hate' in the subject window - for possible inclusion in our 25th birthday supplement. Any amusing or quirky photos illustrating your point are also welcome. Indicate if you wish to be anonymous. Entries having a go at individual staff members will not be considered.

SEND US A POEM ABOUT HERE:

We want 10-line poems about any aspect of Byron Shire for possible inclusion in our 25th birthday supplement. Serious, whimsical, high art or doggerel, we don't mind as long as it's your original work. Send them to editor@echo.net.au with 'It's A Poem' in the subject window by May 20. There's no payment, just a chance to see your name in print and amaze your friends with your talent. Thanks heaps.

LET'S SEE YOU THEN AND NOW:

If you lived here around 25 years ago, send us a photo of you then and one of you now for possible inclusion in our 25th birthday supplement. Email them to editor@echo.net.au with 'Before And After' in the subject window by May 20 and include your name, what you did for a crust then and what you do now.

crowds. They have just celebrated their longstanding passion for live performances on their two-disc CD, Staring Down the Brilliant Dream, featuring 31 songs, each hand-selected by the duo to capture the most memorable moments of their 2006–2009 shows. It is a reminder for both their longtime fans and casual followers that the Indigos still consider live shows 'the most vibrant part of what we do'. Amy Ray explained: 'When I listen to a live CD, I want to be able to hear some shining moment that's unique and has a different feel to it than the studio version'. Some shining and vibrant moments are certain to be shared when Indigo Girls go live at Bluesfest. www.indigogirls.com with 'the sweetest voice in music' Aaron Neville who, after five decades of constant recording success – with The Neville Brothers...with Linda Ronstadt (two Grammys)...with Trisha Yearwood (another Grammy) – has a total of 16 Grammy Award nominations. He also won Best Male Singer two years running in the Rolling Stone critics' poll. His latest project Bring It On Home – The Souls Classics is produced by the legendary Stewart Levine (Simply Red, the Crusaders and BB King) and sees Aaron Neville 'reach a highpoint in a career marked by artistic superlatives' – Rolling Stone. You'll laugh, you'll cry – you'll raise the roof with your applause for these remarkable guys.

INDIGO GIRLS

The Indigo Girls are one of the most popular and well-loved duos in Folk Rock. Their luscious harmonies, catchy melodies, and fearless social commentary have seen them operate within the music industry without ever being a product of that industry, gaining the respect of their peers, not to mention an extremely loyal fan base. And this Grammy-winning folk-rock duo love a crowd. Indigo Girls, Amy Ray and Emily Saliers, have presented some of their best music in front of cheering

MAVIS STAPLES

VH1 named her as one of the 100 Greatest Women of Rock & Roll, and Rolling Stone listed her as one of the 100 Greatest Singers of all time. Mavis is a Rock & Roll Hall of Famer, a Grammy Lifetime Achievement Award Winner, and a National Heritage Fellowship Award recipient. In her 60-year career – from her groundbreaking family band, The Staples Singers, through her solo career – it is now that her star is shining brightest. With her new album, You Are Not Alone, this legendary vocalist adds a remarkable new chapter to her historic career, delivering wall-to-wall joy and mixing traditional gospel numbers with two new songs, penned by producer Jeff Tweedy of Wilco fame, and including her unique interpretation of songs by her father 'Pops' Staples, Randy Newman, Allen Toussaint, John Fogerty, Rev Gary Davis and Little Milton. 'I wanted to make an album where every song had meaning,' she says, 'where every song told a story and would lift you up and give you a reason to get up in the morning. And I know it's going to feel really good singing these songs on stage.' And it's gonna feel real good watching and listening to Mavis Staples when she visits Australia for Bluesfest.

ever and is responsible for recording some of the finest-ever soul music in the history of New Orleans music, including Time Is On My Side which was later recorded by the Rolling Stones and Otis Redding! Celebrating over 50 years as a recording artiste, Irma Thomas has many a story to tell. Those 50 years have not been an easy ride. By the age of 19 she had been married twice and had three children; she endured recording contracts where, frustratingly for fans and Irma alike, her recordings were 'buried' and mostly went unreleased and, despite constant touring she was unable to garner the crossover success of her contemporaries. Irma's luck changed when she met her present husband and manager, Emile Jackson, and returned to Louisiana to settle and open their own club – The Lion's Den. Finally she was recognised with a Grammy nomination in 1991. Fate hadn't finished with Irma and dealt her another terrible blow when Hurricane Katrina destroyed her house, her nightclub and all her possessions. For a while it was thought she was lost in the floods as well, but luckily it turned out she was playing a show in Austin, Texas – and was safe and sound. Not only has Irma Thomas rebuilt her house – but she has rebuilt her career and is enjoying a huge upswing in popularity. In 2006 there was finally Grammy success for Best Contemporary Blues Album for After The Rain (as well as a Blues Music Award for Soul-Blues Album Of The Year and many other accolades). She has performed with Stevie Wonder, collaborated with Bluesfest favourites Galactic and, in 2009, was inducted into the Louisiana Blues Hall of Fame. The unrivalled 'Soul Queen of New Orleans' is back...bigger than ever...and ready to thrill Australian crowds with her 'sadly, sweet voice of a fallen angel...'

WINE-TASTING CLASS

Local wine professional David Stevens-Castro will be drawing on his Chilean background in an Introduction to Wine Tasting class on 5 May. The second to be offered this year, it will be held in the Balcony Room of the Byron Bay Community Centre and will teach you how to understand the five senses involved in appreciating wine. Apart from Chilean wines, David will offer tastings of superior Australian and Argentinean ones as well. The evening is suited to both beginners and those interested in increasing their wine-tasting skills. The cost of $55 a head includes all wine, breads and cheese and kicks off at 7pm. Places are limited so booking is essential. Visit David's website latinocellar.com for details.

SHOUT LUNCH FIGHT HUNGER

On Friday May 20, all Australians are encouraged to donate what they would normally spend on lunch to Shout Lunch Fight Hunger, a one-day initiative aimed at helping the hungry, homeless and needy. All money raised will go to OzHarvest, a not-for-profit organisation that rescues unwanted food from restaurants, retailers, food outlets and corporate kitchens across Sydney, Canberra, Newcastle and Wollongong. OzHarvest distributes the rescued food to charities and homeless shelters daily. All you have to do is bring your lunch from home and donate what you would normally spend on lunch. All workplaces and individuals are encouraged to join in. Just one dollar equals one meal; $10 provides 10 meals to disadvantaged Australians. You will need to register or donate on line at www.ozharvest.org, or call Kim Morrison on 02 9516 3877, or email kim.morris@ozharvest.org. Once registered you will receive a Shout Lunch Fight Hunger info pack. All money raised on the day goes directly to OzHarvest and all donations over $2 are tax deductible.

Hogan's heroes dig their way out of the clink

John Campbell

There were fifty-eight seconds left on the clock. The scores were locked at 32-all. Mullum had a tackle up their sleeve, thirty-odd metres from Northern United's line.

They might have worked closer to the posts for a field goal, but Scott Hogan backed himself to break the deadlock there and then.

He struck the ball sweetly. Dead silence accompanied it as it sailed into the night sky. It faded towards the right of the sticks, but held its line just enough, clipped the inside of the upright and ricocheted through for the point. The crowd went berko.

It had been a pulsating, top-sy-turvy tussle.

United's fullback, Brenton

Cochrane, put the visitors ahead before the ground announcer had finished reading out the teams, but for the next half-hour it was all Mullum. They have a pack of battle-hardened hombres and, led by captain Dane Molenaar, who received tireless support from Brett Archibald and burly Jared Flick, the Giants followed Plan A by taking it straight up the guts – and Northern could not stop their progress.

Quick play-the-balls and sharp passing from Hogan and halfback Jake Francisco led to a brace of tries to both centre Tim Abbott and enthusiastic rake Grant Cook and, at 22-4, the Giants were all over their opponents.

United's half, Roy Bell, then executed one of the plays of the night, putting up an enormous bomb from midfield and sprinting through to take it on the full and cross for a brilliant individual try.

Mullum's 22-10 lead at the break was not as comfortable as it might have been. You sensed that United had got a sniff and that it was crucial for the Giants to score first in the second stanza. They didn't.

In the blinking of an eye, Bell was in again – 22-16 – and the livewire number seven was beginning to slice through the defence at will.

Whether or not the Giants had psychologically bundied off in the sheds, they were not the same side. Fundamental errors crept into their execution – they fell off tackles, were unable to lock up the ball, knocked on at dummy half and, a cardinal sin, when awarded a relieving penalty, failed to find touch. Looking leg weary as United repeatedly cut them up on the fringes, Mullum soon found themselves behind by 22-26.

On a rare visit to the other end, Hogan sold a gorgeous dummy to go in untouched and square the ledger. Inspiring surges from bench forward Robbie 'Crazy' Goodacre and a try to Luke Woods put the boys ahead again, only for them to squander the advantage by conceding a soft try from a scrum.

The stage was set for Hogan's theatrical coup de grace.

It was a night as cold as a witch's tit, but the Blue-and-Golds' supporters went home feeling all warm and fuzzy inside.

Magpies lose to Tigers

The Byron Shire Magpies travelled to Pottsville to take on the Tweed Tigers, last year's premiers.

The Magpies started well and continued with their linking teamwork style.

Dougie Perich and Hansom Brooks were winning in the forward line and kicking goals. Marcus Atkinson again was full of run and was providing plenty of ball for the Magpie forwards.

Dan Tiffin, Shayne Baldwin and Cristo Barrett-Hall were repelling Tweed's attacks and Byron led by three goals at the first break.

Tweed came out playing hard football and with the wind had closed the gap to one point at half time. The Magpies' intensity dropped in the second half and Tweed kept up the pressure and ran away with the game in the final quarter winning 18-12-120 to 10-6-66.

The Magpies battled hard to the end and coach Preston said he was happy with the team's performance despite the loss. It was good to see new players Clint Morrison, Simon Stapleton and Baldwin on the paddock and getting plenty of touches.

Atkinson was voted the 'Hernes Butchery' best on ground for the third week running.

With a break over Easter, the next game is on Thursday April 28 in a night game at home against Nimbin.

Enquiries contact Mick 0432 401 334 or George 6684 1454.

SLSC PATROLS

This is the last weekend of the SLSC patrol season. On behalf of the residents and visitors to the Byron Shire, I would like to thank our Surf Life Saving Clubs for keeping our beaches safe and taking time out of their lives to help us have the time of our life. I encourage all residents to support the local SLSCs by spending a few dollars on a raffle ticket, joining in the great events organised by the clubs and helping out wherever you can, even in a small way. Mullum ascend to group A play-offs

Congratulations to the winning sides in Tweed Byron District Women's Bowls Association and to all players selected to represent their Club in this event.

Competition was quite fierce during the duration of the rounds with a very high standard of bowls was displayed in all grades. Fortunately the weather was kind most of the time with the exception of Mullumbimby.

Their last round was played over a two-day period due to rain interruptions. Cabarita Beach won the Grade Two comp, Condong were the Grade Four winners and the Mullumbimby bowlers Cheryl Thorne, Joyce Beaumont, Kaye

Freeman, Betty Croft, Joan Towner, Jean Kidman, Heather Robb and Rene Thompson won the Grade Three winners. These three teams will now go forward to the Group A Play-offs to be held from May 10-13 at South West Rocks. Well done ladies. The TBDWBA wish you the best of luck and Good Bowling!

Mullum Giants fight skin cancer

The Mullumbimby Giants Rugby League Club is among 20 lucky organisations in New South Wales to win some extra armoury in the fight against skin cancer for the 2011 season.

The club has been awarded a large $4000 shade tent and a year's supply of sunscreen through the Suncorp Bank Shade Tent Giveaway competition.

Lismore Branch Manager Kevin Poole said the much needed prize would provide valuable protection for the local community.

'The tragedy of skin cancer brought the Mullumbimby Giants to their knees after losing their beloved veteran volunteer groundskeeper to the deadly disease,' Mr Poole said. 'The Giants have recently planted

100 trees to provide sun-safe areas and we're pleased to support their efforts in encouraging their members to stay safe in the sun. Through the shade tent giveaway, the Mullum Giants now have a portable shade structure and sunscreen they can take with them wherever they go.'

This year's Suncorp SunWise Summer Survey* revealed almost 74 per cent of New South Wales residents believed they didn't have adequate shade at their local sportsground.

The survey also found 38 per cent of New South Wales residents never or hardly ever wore a hat when they went outside and 49 per cent of residents did not bother to apply sunscreen if they were heading outdoors and planned to be in the shade.

Mr Poole said wearing a hat was vital and while seeking shade was a good start, it was still important to protect your skin in other ways. 'Even if you're standing in the shade, your skin may be exposed to reflective light causing it to burn,' he said. 'The majority of skin cancers are preventable which is why it's so important to wear a hat, protective clothing, sunscreen and sunglasses every time you head outdoors. In summer, it may only take six minutes to burn.'

Leading Australian skin cancer specialist Dr David Whiteman from the Queensland Institute of Medical Research said skin cancer was still claiming far too many lives in New South Wales.

'Each year in New South Wales almost 3500 people develop melanoma and about 480 people die from the disease so when it comes to sun protection there is no room for complacency,' Dr Whiteman said.

'While research continues to try to find a cure for this terrible disease, we know that prevention is every bit as important and it's essential that New South Wales residents make every effort to protect themselves from the sun's deadly rays.'

*The SunWise Summer Survey was conducted by Pure Profile.

Sports grants for North Coast Women

Local MP Justine Elliot is calling on local women who are involved in sport and want to take their careers to higher levels to apply for the recently launched Sport Leadership Grants and Scholarships for Women.

'This is a great opportunity for women in our region who are sporting coaches, officials, administrators, managers or marketers to further develop their skills and receive expert leadership training,' Justine said.

'Grants of up to $5,000 for individuals and up to $10,000 for organisations are available, providing access to support and training and development opportunities.'

Ms Elliot explained that the grants and scholarships provided a tangible way for women to obtain the skills and

AFL booming in the Bruns Valley

Brunswick Valley Juniors Under 13s have had a successful opening for the season with a resurgence of fresh players and they have won their first two games and are sitting on top of the ladder.

The Under 13s did not win

a game last year and the turnaround has been exciting.

The Under 11s have been training with Auskick and also are developing into a great young team.

The club is looking to continue to grow its numbers and any young players eligible for Under 11s or Under 13s are welcome to come along to training for a kick on Wednesday afternoons at Stan Thomson Oval Brunswick Heads. Training runs from 4-6pm; all players will be most welcome.

Crankin' what's happening in the surf

All Girls Surfriders

The All Girls Surfriders club round saw a change in location from Broken Head to Lennox Head due to closeouts.

There was a SSE swell and the wind was light SSW tending SE to NE five to 15 knots during the day. Morning saw some good clean surf around the 2ft to 4ft range.

Conditions changed towards midday and the girls had to paddle hard. Congratulations to the following finalists.

Piece of Mind Meditations

These one-to-one meditations are specifically designed for persons who have become aware that they have 'lost' their peace of mind and have strong desire to regain it. Experience total peace of mind in the first session. I will teach you in this and subsequent sessions how to maintain this peace of mind indefinitely. HOST FAMILIES REQUIRED FOR DEMI-PAIR (nanny) Program
GV Byron Bay seeks friendly local families to host international students on a Demi Pair program. Highly qualified, experienced and motivated female students from France, Germany and Switzerland offer your family:

- A safe and reliable extra pair of hands around the home
- 20 hours of childcare and general household duties per week at times that suit you and your lifestyle
- A unique and memorable cross-cultural exchange

IN RETURN FOR PERFORMING DEMI-PAIR DUTIES, STUDENTS REQUIRE:

- A welcoming environment in which to improve their English language skills and experience Australian culture
- Full board (including food) and lodging with their own bedroom

Students combine Demi Pair duties with study at GV Byron Bay
For details, please contact Kate or Justin at GV Byron Bay Accommodation Office on (02) 6680 9903

Don't wait for a new property listing to come online is the advice from real estate agency PRDnationwide.

House hunters sick of missing out on their dream property need to stand out from the crowd if they are searching in a popular area.

PRDnationwide research analyst Dan O'Halloran, who is a property investor himself, said don't wait for properties to be added to real estate portals.

'Identify the key agents dominating the market that you're interested in, visit them personally, let them know that you're really keen to buy and the type of property you're looking for and ask them to let you know if anything comes up,' he said.

Sales consultant Nathan Verwoert from PRDnationwide Geelong says it is worth having daily email alerts sent of new listings from the main portals. 'Sign up with real estate agents as a genuine buyer for specific types of property, this way when they go out and look at a property you can be notified about it and get the first opportunity to secure it before it hits the open market,' he said.

Mr Verwoert said an agent is more inclined to assist you if you assist them. 'The more details the better – if you want four bedrooms all with walk in robes and two with ensuites then make sure you tell your agent specifically what details you're after.'

Tips for being ahead of the buying pack:

- Introduce yourself to most active agents in the area and asked to be informed of properties that match your criteria before they hit the market
- Be very specific with detailing what type of property you are after
- Monitor social networking sites
- Set up daily email alerts to keep up to date with all new listings
- When you have decided to make an offer on a property, make it attractive to the seller and act fast to ensure another buyer doesn't beat you to it.

A Very Special Property $675,000

This extraordinary 8 acre property offers breathtaking views from most rooms and the generous decks take full advantage of the uninterrupted vista. This two storey solar powered residence offers a quality galley style kitchen, 3 bedrooms, an office, 2 large bathrooms and a slow combustion wood heater. The master bedroom has its own private deck. The richness of the timber flooring blends beautifully with cedar windows and french doors and the interior has an inner harmony that relates perfectly with the peace and serenity of its bush surroundings. The property is located at Tomewin, north of Murwillumbah in the beautiful Tweed Valley with close proximity to the Gold Coast and beaches.

East of Everything

Occupying the most north-eastern corner, offering beach and white water views from its commanding elevated position, this original beach house sits on arguably the most desirable allotment available at Watego's Beach, Byron Bay.

Locally known as The Most Eastern House in Australia and offered for the first time in more than 40 years, the position boasts unsurpassed levels of privacy and amenity. Surrounded by Cape Byron Headland reserve - yet only thirty steps to the sand - watch waves crashing into the rocks of The Pass, the lights of Byron Bay and the majestic Mt Warning hinterland in the distance all from the privacy of your north facing balcony.

Refurbish the existing dwelling in the classic retro beach-house style or start from scratch and build your dream. May be considered by the Foreign Investment Review Board as suitable for purchase by a non-Australian Resident.

Do not delay, register your interest and capitalise on the almost limitless potential of this truly magnificent location.

We got the blues and we got music by locals, vegetables, fruit, meats, bakery, pasta, preserves, farm eggs, and a good cup of locally grown coffee. Every Tuesday, including on Easter Tuesday 26 April, rain or shine, New Brighton Farmers Market, 8am - 11am New Brighton Oval.

Tel: 6684 5390 newbrightonfarmersmarket.org.au

Dear Easter visitors, welcome to Byron Shire and be sure to have fun. In this Shire we like to define fun as not including pissing on shopfront windows at 3am, disturbing quiet neighbourhoods or vandalising the natural environment. Otherwise, enjoy the music, the beach and the opportunity to practise your needlework. This advice works equally well for residents.

It was a fairly historic week in Council, especially with the lifting of the sewerage moratorium and the creation of extra sewerage capacity – it's a developer's wet dream. Backlash wouldn't expect a huge rush of DAs, given that a fair bit of land needs to be rezoned for more residential subdivision to happen, but those developments stalled because of a lack of sewerage capacity are now likely to come on line.

Jan Barham has a big job on her hands now that she is the Byron Shire mayor and a state MP, with her duties taking her to Sydney. Can it be done? Naturally speculation has already begun as to whether she'll participate in the next mayoral race in 2012, probably in September unless the new state government has other ideas. We reckon likely runners are Simon Richardson, Basil Cameron and the perennial Ross Tucker. Care to predict the field? Then email editor@echo.net.au, with 'Mayoral runners' in the subject window, with your picks.

Does anyone have a copy of the first edition of The Echo in good condition? We'd appreciate borrowing it and scanning it in as our file copy is now a little grotty. Please bring it in to our Mullum office. Many thanks.

If you wanted to nominate someone for The Echo Community Awards, we made life harder by putting the wrong email address in our ad last week. Try awards@echo.net.au instead. And if you've got a good photo, you can enter the Colours of Byron competition at photocomp@echo.net.au.

Our food writer Edwina Blightrose has become excited about the upcoming royal wedding in the Good Taste pages this week. Likely you're excited, too, and you can find out more about royalty and its historical imperative by searching 'Monty Python – The Annoying Peasant' on YouTube.

If you'd like to see a highly intelligent potted history of the universe in 18 minutes, we suggest you type 'David Christian Big History' into the YouTube search engine. For more background on Big History, check out the website of the International Big History Association at <http://www.ibhanet.org>.

Note that both Echo offices will be open Easter Monday April 25 (also Anzac Day to make life more interesting) and the paper will be coming out as 'normal' on Tuesday April 26. The Byron Bay office is likely to close at 1pm.

Thank goodness the pubs and clubs are setting the public straight with their ad campaign against restrictions on the pokies. If we're not going to be allowed to make huge profits out of the poor and foolish, what is the world coming to? For a different point of view, see www.getup.org.au/files/campaigns/getuppokies1500x1026.jpg.

Headlines 20 years ago: Council summonses Byron Bay Rugby League Club in an attempt to recover $17,000 in unpaid rates, South Golden Beach gets a dunecare platform, and the Mullum chamber of commerce petitions against a pedestrian mall outside the post office. – The Echo 17/4/91

Property in focus
A beautiful mixture of Victorian and Queenslander

This 4 bedroom family home sits on 7.2ha (18 acre) prime land in the Byron Bay hinterland at Brooklet. The main bedroom has its own private entrance, walk in robe and an ensuite bathroom. Character abounds throughout with 11 foot ceilings, hardwood floors and a huge undercover deck where the whole family can enjoy the serenity of this area. The 16 metre, saltwater pool is easily accessible from the main house yet maintains a wonderful level of privacy. The property also has a rustic 2 bed, 1 bath log cabin studio. Offer your guests their own private space or perhaps generate an income. Next to the studio is another fresh, bright & quaint 1 bed, 1 bath cottage. This acreage currently has about 1300 Macadamia trees, 250 Lemon Myrtle trees, 65 Jackfruit trees and an assortment of Limes, Mangoes, Nectarine and Mandarin trees. There is also a chook pen, greenhouse and vegetable garden area to complete the picture. This property also has an abundance of water and a current water licence. This property must be inspected by the buyer who would like a level of self-supporting rural lifestyle with a character home in a great elevated location...only 15 minutes to Byron Bay, 5 minutes to Bangalow and couple of minutes to Newrybar village.
Address: 32 Jorgensens Lane, Brooklet. Price: Auction

OPERA AUSTRALIA
presents
2011-12
Series of Australian opera
The Marriage of Figaro

Comical, chaotic and ultimately heart-warming, Figaro loves Susanna. The Countess still loves the Count. Cherubino loves the ladies and as for the Count, love is not the word for how he feels about Susanna. Confused? You will be. Sung in Italian with English subtitles.

Music: Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart
Conductor: Patrick Summers
Director: Neil Armfield

2pm Sunday 24th April 2011

Cast: Peter Coleman-Wright, Taryn Fiebig, Teddy Tahu Rhodes, Rachelle Durkin, Warwick Fyfe, Jacqueline Dark, Sian Peadar, Opera Australia Chorus, Australian Opera & Ballet Orchestra.
