Dam resistance strengthens

Luis Feliu

Opposition to last week's controversial decision to build a new dam at Byrrill Creek is growing by the day with councillors called back for an extraordinary meeting this Monday to debate a rescission motion against it and a new group launched to fight it.

Tweed Shire councillors Dot Holdom, Barry Longland and Katie Milne lodged the motion a day after mayor Kevin Skinner used his casting vote to push ahead with the new dam option instead of raising the Clarrie Hall Dam wall which planning staff and the community working group (CWG) had recommended as the preferred option to increase the shire's water supply for future population growth.

Cr Holdom, who was involved in CWG meetings as an observer, said up to nine years could be wasted pursuing the costlier Byrrill Creek dam in which time new laws could rule out the option altogether and the cumulative environmental, social and Aboriginal heritage impacts of the new dam were far worse than the wall-raising option.

'A big mistake'

Her views have been echoed widely, with former longtime mayor Max Boyd, who oversaw the purchase of around 1,100 hectares of land for the Byrrill Creek dam, saying councillors had made a big mistake in that it was too late to win approval for a dam with tougher legislation in place these days.

Mr Boyd, a veteran councillor of 44 years who was one of three administrators appointed when council was sacked by the state government in 2005, said the three councillors who pushed through the decision - mayor Skinner, Warren Polglase and Phil Youngblutt - were backing 'a loser' and raising the Clarrie Hall Dam wall was the logical way to go.

He said the existing dam wall had to be strengthened and the spillway widened to meet current government rules anyway and the work could have been carried out at the same time. He said it was good thing council bought much of the land for the proposed dam in the mid 1980s as it protected that catchment for a dam if it was ever needed in the future.

The Byrrill Creek options involve a small dam covering 235 hectares or a larger dam covering 398 hectares, with Cr Polglase who pushed for the dam option favouring the 'big one'. The fight against a new dam also appears to have split local National Party politicians, with Tweed MP Geoff Provest calling on council to 'rethink its position', and putting him at odds with his Nationals' colleagues Crs Polglase and Youngblutt.

Federal Richmond MP Justine Elliot and Lismore MP Thomas George have both stayed out of the debate, with Mrs Elliot saying it was a local government issue.

Mr Provest said he preferred raising the Clarrie Hall Dam wall as the option with the least environmental impact and most cost effectiveness, urging council not to waste ratepayer money by chasing a new dam, as any future government, which could include him, might be 'reluctant' to allow it.

He said he had been told by NSW Water Minister Phil Costa in the corridors of parliament that a new dam was unlikely to be given state approval.

Murwillumbah Show blooming

Champion floral artist Merilyn Gilmore is hoping to impress at next week's Murwillumbah Show.

For decorative floral arranger Merilyn Gilmore the devil is in the detail.

Ms Gilmore, who first began learning floral art when she was just 14, says there is a lot more to the delicate craft than meets the eye.

Now 61, the Bray Park resident has been showing her creations at Murwillumbah Show for the last 20 years and was named overall champion in the flower arrangement category the last three years.

'It's not just putting flowers in a vase; it's a very detailed process. You have to get the balance and the colour just right,' she said.

'You can win or lose by a very small margin.'

Murwillumbah Show secretary Liz Chauvier said next week's event promises to be a unique showcase of local artisans and rural industry.

'It's a gift to the people of Tweed that they can come and see the best produce, the best cattle, the best exhibits,' she said.

Established 110 years ago by the Tweed River Agricultural Society, the show continues to highlight decades-old traditions that remain an important way of life for many in the region.

A way of life

'Amazingly there are sectors of people on the Tweed that still think recycling and making your own food is something new,' Ms Chauvier said.

'But really, for a lot of people here on the Tweed that bake their own bread, make their own preserves and brew their own beer - that way of life has been their way of life, all their life.'

'So we try to promote that and give them a showcase.'

This year's program incorporates a variety of heritage, craft, produce and trade displays, as well as dog shows, live music, beef cattle judging, rodeo, showjumping and wood chopping, culminating in a spectacular fireworks finale.

A ute and pushbike show, promoting sustainable transport, will also be run in conjunction with this year's event.

In its heyday the show attracted about 1200 people through the gates each day and was considered the highlight of the local social calendar.

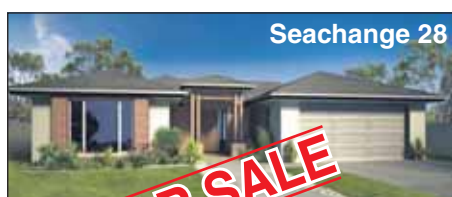

Today, it remains one of the few shows in Australia with free gate entry.

The Murwillumbah Show runs from November 5-6 at the showgrounds. For program information visit www.murwillumbahshow-ground.com.

GM warns dam is a 'dangerous path'

Luis Feliu

Tweed Shire Council's general manager Mike Rayner has warned that state government policy discourages the building of dams and planning for them was 'a difficult and dangerous path'.

Mr Rayner, the shire's long-time chief water engineer before his appointment as general manager during the three-year period of administration after the last council was sacked in 2005, said it was 'no secret' that the NSW government's weir policy discouraged the building of dams 'anywhere'.

In a lengthy interview with ABC North Coast radio last week explaining the process leading up to the controversial decision, Mr Rayner said raising the Clarrie Hall Dam would cost $35 million, yet a Byrrill Creek dam would be $45m for a small version and $67 million for the larger option.

He said the pipeline to south-east Queensland would cost around $9-10 million but it had much higher ongoing costs as the Tweed would have to buy the water.

He denied council or the state had overestimated the shire's future population, saying historically the Tweed had seen a one per cent population growth a year, with a current population of around 90,000. Under the state government's Far North Coast Regional Strategy, a total population of around 145,000 was envisaged in 2030 and 165,000 in 2040.

He said under the values-based system of assessing the options, the Clarrie Hall Dam came out in front in terms of achieving a 'secure yield' for a future population growth but admitted the assessment was 'subjective' because it was based on community values and if ratings and weightings were changed accordingly, then the 'scoring' would also change.

He said raising the Clarrie Hall Dam wall had less environmental impact than building a new dam at Byrrill Creek yet neither scored particularly high in terms of environmental constraints.

He said the existing dam wall had to be raised 7.5 metres and strengthened to increase its safety and cope with a maximum probable storm or 'Noah's Ark event' but widening the spillway had much less priority but council planned to do both works concurrently 'if both time frames lined up'.

Mr Rayner said there were more landholders affected at Clarrie Hall as 24 land acquisitions were needed due to inundation and roadworks, whereas nine properties for a small dam, or 12 for a large dam, were affected with a Byrrill Creek dam.

He said raising the dam wall would increase storage capacity from 16,000 megalitres to 42,000 ML, whereas a smaller Byrrill Creek dam would only yield 16,000 megalitres and the larger one 36,000 ML.

In summary, Mr Rayner said the Clarrie Hall Dam option was cheaper and provide larger capacity with better rainfall runoff there than at Byrrill Creek. The Byrrill Creek area also had more endangered fauna and flora.

Mayor to tour dam site, meet residents

Tweed mayor Kevin Skinner is preparing for an emotionally charged meeting with residents whose communities will be submerged under shock plans for a second dam at Byrrill Creek.

Cr Skinner says he has accepted an invitation to inspect the area this afternoon and meet with residents before the council's extraordinary meeting on Monday to reconsider its decision.

'I am still keeping an open mind and I'm listening to both sides of the argument,' says the newly elected mayor whose crucial casting vote last week favoured the Byrrill Creek option.

'I have to say I'm still thinking in the same vein [as last week] but I've still got to hear from more people between now and Monday.'

Cr Skinner said he had been besieged with phone calls and emails after using his casting vote to push ahead with the Byrrill Creek and had since spoken to senior council planners and engineers.

'Most people I have dealt with have been quite congenial and have communicated on a decent level although a lot of them were speaking from the heart,' he said.

'So far the vast majority of calls I've had favour the Byrrill Creek option. It's a huge decision and it's certainly the biggest that's been in the council's hands to make.'

He said apart from a two-hour tour of Byrrill Creek today (Thursday) he was expecting to meet with other groups opposed to the dam when he officiates at the Tweed River Festival this weekend.

Yesterday, the No Rally Group (NRG), which succeeded in forcing the controversial world rally away from the Tweed, reinvented itself as the vanguard of the dam resistance movement, saying it would now devote its efforts and energy to fight the dam proposal.

Spokesperson Michael McNamara said NRG the decision to build a dam on Byrrill Creek 'flies in the face of reason and community opinion', and like the rally, was inappropriate and had major social and environmental impacts.

'Council employs water experts who agreed with community members that damming Byrrill Creek flies in the face of current practice to reduce water use, recycle storm water and encourage/mandate dual reticulation and decent sized tanks for each new house, Mr McNamara said.

'Council should be exploring every possible option of water demand management and water harvesting before even considering any dam option.'

'The state government's water sharing agreement for the Tweed River has not yet been adopted and the council has rushed in to make a decision, and like many rushed decisions, this could turn out to be a very costly mistake for the Tweed community, especially for ratepayers,' he said.

Mr McNamara urged the mayor to reconsider the decision on Monday.

Mayor Skinner, who was only elected to the position five weeks ago, told local media after his decision 'that if people in higher positions in state or federal government are going to override this decision, I respectfully ask them to do it as soon as possible'.

Council's director of natural resources David Oxenham told the council meeting last week that the benefits of a second dam in the shire would be reduced because state government regulations required a greater environmental flow to be discharged into the river from any new dam.

Meanwhile Cr Katie Milne says Monday's special meeting to discuss the rescission motion was a 'dirty trick' which had been rushed through.

'It's disgraceful, and there's no reason for it. There's no rush on this, we're not going to run out of water soon. They called the meeting to avoid further pressure and not allow the community much time to look at this important issue. We don't need a dam,' she said.

Mysteriously stalled rezoning

Ken Sapwell

Council director Troy Green has become embroiled in a row over a rezoning application which has stalled in a seemingly bizarre stand-off between council planners and a retired couple.

The corporate services chief was forced to declare a conflict of interest when details of the contentious rezoning push first emerged in a notice of motion by Cr Joan van Lieshout at last week's council meeting.

Mr Green, whose hilltop home at Terranora overlooks the grassy site which has room for seven houses, said he'd only just become aware of the rezoning move and had done nothing in the past to stop it.

Cr van Lieshout won narrow backing from councillors to fix what she described as an unjust anomaly in the planning process, but it's now shaping as a divisive fight following a rescission motion.

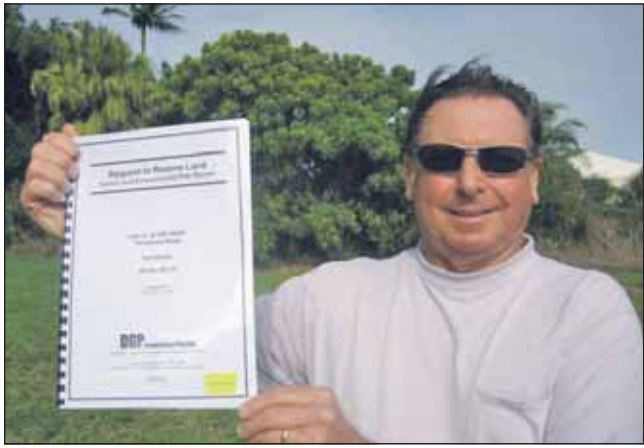

She told last week's council meeting that staff had frustrated the couple's attempts over several years to lift an agricultural zoning on their land, even though they were surrounded on all sides by land zoned for houses.

Reasons for refusal were unclear and it was impossible for the couple, Geoff and Julie Stone, to farm the 6,000-square-metre block fronting Terranora Road because it was book-ended by houses, she said.

But a brief statement issued by council in response to an Echo inquiry about why the rezoning had stalled has given a new twist to a winding saga which began when Mr Stone bought the land in 2005.

Acting chief planner Lindsay McGavin said the rezoning had not progressed because no formal application had been lodged.

His claim was immediately contradicted by Mr Stone and his consultant, former council planner Darren Gibson, who says he lodged a formal request in October 2007 followed by a submission five months later.

Here's proof. Terranora resident Geoff Stone holds the development application which council said was not lodged. However, a former planner who is now Mr Stone's consultant says a formal request was lodged three years ago, followed by a submission five months later.

Mr Gibson said at the time he had been unable to determine from former colleagues why his client's comparatively tiny block wasn't included in a mass rezoning of former small-crop farms and even today was still none the wiser.

'We believe the document we submitted entitled a Request to Rezone Land in March 2008 constitutes a request for a rezoning and it now appears our request has not been activated by the council,' he said.

Stunned by claim

Mr Stone said he was stunned by the council's claim.

'We have emails and correspondence going back more than three years about the rezoning from (council general manager) Mr Rayner down,' said Mr Stone, a 66-year-old retired small business owner.

'We've never been given a reason and I'm flabbergasted that they're now saying we have not applied - we've already spent thousands of dollars on it.'

Cr Barry Longland, who is leading moves to overturn the council decision, deepened the mystery when he said staff advised him the land had been excluded in a bid to preserve some of the remaining scenic values of the Terranora ridgeline.

Mr Stone has called on councillors to view his documents and inspect his land before they make a final decision.

He said his block contained seven certified titles. He hoped to build his home on one and sell the rest to finance his retirement after originally being told that a rezoning was unlikely to hit serious obstacles.

'As it's turned out I'm going to be a tiny island in what will be a sea of houses but I have never been given a reason.'

Mr Stone says he believes residents opposite, including Mr Green whose two-storey home sits among a cluster of super-sized McMansion-style houses on one-acre blocks, are worried any development may compromise their views.

Mr Green, whose front balcony frames panoramic ocean views partly overlooking Mr Stone's land, says he declared an interest and absented himself during debate because of his status as an adjoining property owner.

'It's a planning matter and it's really nothing to do with me,' said Mr Green, who bought land on which to build his house in August 2007.

Mr Green's neighbour, Irvin Leishman, argued against the rezoning bid during the last community access session.

Mr Leishman didn't mention possible loss of views, but said Mr Stone should be made to comply with a 30-metre setback rule, a move which would make development of the blocks unviable.

AN AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT INITIATIVE

A world class sustainable event venue for the Byron Shire

The proposal for a permanent sustainable cultural event venue on North Byron Parklands' 660 acre site at Yelgun is now on public exhibition with the NSW Department of Planning. Your supportive submission will make all the difference to the success of the proposal.

- The event usage proposed is in grazed pasturelands covering less than 50% of the site, leaving the majority for habitat use and bush regeneration.
- Approval has been sought for up to 20 days of events each year:
 - Minor events - less than 300 patrons - no daily limits proposed
 - Small events - 300 to 3,000 patrons - no more than 4 event days per year
 - Moderate events - 3000 - 10,000 patrons - no more than 4 event days per year
 - Major events - 10,000 - 35,000* patrons - no more than 12 event days per year.Splendour in the Grass would occupy 3 of these 12 days.

It would take many years to build to this capacity. One or two major events would be held in the first year.
* Incremental capacity increases from 35,000 would only be sought based on achieving stringent performance criteria covering a range of aspects such as traffic, noise, ecology etc. Extensive studies have shown that a manageable long term upper limit of patrons for a major event is 50,000.

A later stage proposes a conference centre with a capacity of up to 180 people, a cultural centre covering indigenous and non-indigenous history from the immediate area, a depot and office for a rainforest restoration team and a nursery for rainforest and bush tucker plants.

- The application details extensive commitments to avoid where possible or otherwise mitigate impacts upon the residential amenity of those living around the site. Please see our website.

North Byron Parklands will, when operating at capacity:

- Distribute over $100,000.00 annually to local community groups through the North Byron Parklands Community Grants Program. The Program will commence with the first major event held.
- Inject $192.6 million (total multiplier effect) into the national economy annually. $40.88 million will be direct expenditure, with a further $151.72 million flow on effect (suppliers, etc). RPS Group 2010
- Create 210 full time equivalent jobs. RPS Group 2010

Tumbulgum shuns killer plastic bags

The historic village of Tumbulgum next to the Tweed River has become the second plastic bag free community in the Tweed and the third in NSW.

Hannah Butterworth from the village's Ferryside General Store said that going plastic bag free made sense for a village that was so close to the water.

'Local tourism relies on a healthy environment, so reducing the amount of plastic leaving our shop is a long-term investment in our business,' Hannah said.

Tweed Shire Greens councillor Katie Milne praised Tumbulgum retailers for their proactive approach to a serious environmental issue, saying retailers in Tumbulgum and the Tweed's other plastic bag free village, Chillingham, were showing great leadership in going plastic bag free.

'Their actions mean a reduction of around 40,000 plastic check-out bags annually,' Cr Milne said.

Tweed Shire Council's role in helping village retailers go plastic bag free includes a one-off supply of a reusable shopping bags that are sold in-store to cover the cost of the next order of bags. By supplying the first batch of bags, council is helping retailers overcome the initial cost of buying an alternative to single-use plastic check-out bags, which is a major hurdle in going plastic bag free.

The village-by-village approach to plastic bag reduction was developed in response to a council decision a year ago to investigate options for plastic bag reduction in the Tweed. Interested retailers in the shire's other villages are urged to contact council for more information.

Highway link for Kirkwood Road fast-tracked

Ken Sapwell

Residents' groups and business leaders have applauded an undertaking from the NSW government to create a freeway connection with South Tweed Heads at least six years ahead of schedule.

Work on the $11 million project to extend Kirkwood Road to the Tweed Heads bypass and construct south-bound on-ramp and off-ramp connections is due to begin midway through next year.

The council will contribute $7 million to the project while the NSW government has pledged the remaining $4 million as part of a revised schedule of works.

Tweed mayor Kevin Skinner said the new agreement was a winner for local residents, businesses and visitors. He said council was preparing an environmental assessment for the Kirkwood Road project and work was expected to start mid-2011 subject to planning approval.

'It is welcome news for the Tweed, particularly the business houses of Tweed Heads South, who have campaigned long and hard for this solution,' he said.

'We are pleased that in partnership with community representatives we have been able to bring the Roads and Traffic Authority on board with this process.'

Cr Skinner said while he welcomed the southbound connections, a further $21 million was needed to complete the western part of the project to connect Fraser Drive to the bypass with a series of roundabouts and a bypass flyover.

Business Focus Curtis said the work would relieve the potential for bottlenecks at the northern interchange which was being constructed as part of the Sexton Hill upgrade.

'Although the project will not be the entire Kirkwood Road interchange, it will be a welcome relief valve on the northern interchange at the southern end of Minjungbal Drive once the Sexton Hill project is complete,' he said.

'There are 28,000 vehicle movements a day at the southern end of Minjungbal Drive which were likely to jam the new interchange unless Kirkwood Road came on line.'

Mr Curtis paid tribute to former mayor Warren Polglase who persisted in overcoming the RTA's reluctance to start the work any earlier than 2017.

Another St Kevin?

Mayor Kevin Skinner has accepted an invitation to inspect the Byrill Creek area today (Thursday) to meet with locals who will be affected by council's contentious decision to dam the area. We just hope it's not too late for the councillor to change his mind – after all it was his casting vote, effectively giving him two votes, which carried the decision, because another councillor ruled herself out due to a conflict of interest.

No doubt the locals will point out the error of his ways, but surely this face to face, hands-on consultation should have taken place well before the decision was made.

Cr Katie Milne is absolutely right in describing the calling of the special meeting to debate the rescission motion as way too rushed. Planning alone for any dam construction will take years, so why the rush? The decision should have been deferred in the first place to allow much more consideration of such a vital issue.

All the facts and figures on the water supply options to date point decisively to the raising of the Clarrie Hall Dam wall as the cheapest option, with less environmental constraints than Byrill Creek and giving us us a greater yield. The argument that a Byrill Creek dam would double the shire's water catchment is spurious, as rain falls where it wants to, and not evenly over the whole shire.

Also, we doubt the shire's 'forefathers', as pro-dam councillors quaintly called the former council that bought up the land for the dam in the 1980s, would turn in their graves if current councillors had opted for the recommended Clarrie Hall Dam wall upgrade instead. The land, some of it covered by commercial timber plantations, continues to increase in value both monetarily and environmentally and is a future asset. When they bought it, it was much cheaper of course, so they'd be quite happy for the shire to keep owning it for any future contingency, water supply or otherwise.

To his credit, Cr Skinner is at least willing to listen again to the residents' concerns, but having ignored expert planning advice and the comprehensive community consultation which ruled out any new dam in the first place, we won't hold our breath.

Backflipping politicians don't usually come out smelling roses but in this case, an about-face would have everything going for it.

1,2,3... what are we fighting for?

The debate on Afghanistan was long overdue and the Greens are to be congratulated for forcing it upon a reluctant government. But it must be said that we have learned very little from it to date.

A very large majority of the parliament supports the idea of having troops there – or at least most members say they do, but they would, wouldn't they, because that's the policy of the major parties. Julia Gillard supports the idea hugely and Tony Abbott supports it even more. But neither wants to send any more troops there and both would really like to withdraw troops as soon as possible ... well, within a few years anyway, although it would be a mistake to set a timetable. And we will probably need to keep some involvement going for some time after that, but we're not quite sure what or for how long.

It used to be an axiom of military operations that before embarking upon any action, you should have a very clear idea of your objective. In the case of Afghanistan, this is not so. Originally the idea was to wipe out Al Qaeda and capture or kill Osama bin Laden – or so we were told. Australia was involved because there had been an attack on American soil on September 11, 2001, and thus the ANZUS Treaty could be invoked, but the invasion was also approved by the United Nations security council; all tickety boo.

Nearly nine years later we are still involved, but the aims have changed. We are still upholding ANZUS but we are apparently running a holding operation in Oruzgan province while training the Afghans to take over. Al Qaeda is dispersed, mainly to Yemen, Somalia and possible Pakistan; Osama is said to be living comfortable in Pakistan. Afghanistan is as far from peace and stability (let alone democracy) as it has ever been; the fragile and corrupt regime of Hamid Karzai and his fellow warlords holds sway in some areas while the Taliban rule unchallenged in others. The former are slightly less misogynist than the latter,

by Mungo MacCallum

but more dependent on the drug economy.

Apparently there is now talk of some sort of accommodation between elements of the two with a view to power sharing in Kabul and designated areas of influence elsewhere; this might lead to a ceasefire, but would be of dubious benefit to the people. Both parties are deservedly loathed by a majority of the population. But the presence of foreign troops is resented even more, and not only in Afghanistan. There is abundant firsthand evidence that the principal motivation for most terrorist extremists is the invasion of what are regarded as Muslim lands by infidels. In a very real sense the diggers in Oruzgan are unintentionally moonlighting as recruiting agents for Al Qaeda.

And then there is the nuclear arsenal next door, Pakistan. The Taliban were created in Pakistan by Pakistan, with the overt and covert support of some very important people in the military and the secret services. No one seriously believes that significant remnants of that support do not still exist. Pakistan is a large and powerful nation whose widespread poverty is due not to a lack of resources but to the fact that the military have grabbed most of them for their own use. While it remains at best ambivalent about its neighbour no end to the strife is possible. Indeed, history would suggest that no end to the strife is possible under any circumstances and that foreign intervention only makes things worse. There is certainly plenty to talk about, and the debate has a long way to go past the slogans of the party leaders; but it is hard to see anything substantial coming out of it.

So far the only serious proposition has come from the Green Adam Bandt, and it was not really about Afghanistan: Bandt wants parliament, not the government, to have the final say over declarations of war. It sounds attractive, but there are problems. Parliament as a whole can never be privy to all the information held by the intelligence agencies, both military and civilian, and while this may at times be misleading (Iraq's non-existent weapons of mass destruction spring to mind) it is better to have it than not.

And if only parliament can declare war, presumably only parliament can un-declare it; but in practice peace negotiations also have to be kept secret.

In any case, if Bandt's intention is to give parliament the power to block the executive from getting into wars of which it disapproves, that power is already there; parliament can simply refuse supply, thereby denying the government the wherewithal to fight. This would, of course, lead to an immediate election, but it seems only fair that the people should also have a say. As it is, it appears that while more Australians than not oppose the war in Afghanistan, they are prepared to trust the government: the anti-war movement is yet take to the streets.

But while Bandt's idea may be naïve, it is hardly less so than those of John Howard, who enthusiastically and unilaterally took Australia into the coalition of the willing in Iraq.

In published extracts from his forthcoming doorstopper, Howard writes that he was really unhappy when the then leader of the opposition, Simon Crean, wanted the endorsement of the United Nations Security Council before he would offer his support. In other words, splutters our former Prime Minister, he was prepared to wait on the whim of Jacques Chirac and Vladimir Putin! Of course our man of steel had no such hesitations; ignoring the wishes of his own people and the vast majority of the nations and populations of the world, he flung himself fearlessly behind the whim of George Bush and Dick Cheney.

That's leadership. Couldn't we send him to Oruzgan?

An overflow of dam indignation

■ The Council Water Report shows only 1,100 megalitres of water savings are required for the shire to achieve a secure water yield for the planning horizon discussed in the report, to the year 2036.

The report states that 1,300 megalitres of savings could be achieved if dual reticulation of greywater reuse for toilets and outdoor use was implemented at the new Kings Forest and Cobaki developments, ie. there would be 200 megalitres excess secure yield and therefore no need for either of the dam options at this stage. The question is why has this dual reticulation option not been adopted in these developments?

The report is also based on very conservative figures. The water demand figures were re-adjusted in this latest report as it was found there was an over-estimation in the predictions of the original 2006 report by approximately 4,000 megalitres compared to actual use in these last four years alone. That's more than three times as much as what's needed! I believe that these over predictions will continue and these readjustments will occur again.

Councillors who made the decision to dam Byrrill Creek instead of trying to achieve more sustainable water use, and voted against the Council recommendation for raising the wall of Clarrie Hall Dam, claimed that they made a decision on a much longer term planning horizon. But this longer term planning horizon was not discussed in the council report. It is extremely poor governance to be making such an important and technical decision without the advice of a staff report that would allow all the facts to be put on the table to be debated and analysed transparently.

We are so close to achieving a secure yield without spending the millions of dollars needed for these dams. Sustainable water use will also reduce the pollution loads to the waterways and are particularly appropriate for sensitive waterways such as the Cobaki and Terranorra broadwaters and the Cudgen Lake affected by these new development sites.

Cr Katie Milne
Carool

■ Mayor Kevin Skinner got a tick of approval from me when he voiced his dissatisfaction on the loss of the rally.

His is now playing like a spoilt brat by practically saying, 'Well, if you greenies don't want a race there, we will flood it, ha ha.'

I know that councils have a tradition of making bad decisions, but this has to be the clusterfk of all bad decisions!

Of the three poor choices that were on offer any intelligent human being would choose the 'raise the Clarrie Hall Dam' as being the best of a bad bunch. All of our water should be recycled as it's a lot cheaper and more efficient than dams and those power hungry desalination plants.

So, Kevin, you might have got one tick so far, but this is getting you a huge kick in the butt that you will never recover from.

John Curtis
Dunbible

■ An ABC Radio interview with Max Boyd, a 40 year local government servant of the Tweed Shire, reveals that the council has been on state government notice for years about urgent remedial work required for the Clarrie Hall Dam. Other radio callers confirmed that the earth/rock dam wall could be seriously damaged by overflows of water during a major rain event.

So, Tweed Shire councillors, the raising of the Clarrie Hall Dam wall was never just an option – it was and is a vital, urgent necessity.

This community needs you to unanimously confirm the rescission motion and start your deliberations again. I would also strongly suggest that the motion becomes a YES/NO on the repair of the Clarrie Hall Dam wall so that Cr van Lieshout is not manoeuvred out of the vote this time.

Terry O'Toole
Pottsville

■ I would like to correct some statistics claimed by Councillor Polglase. The council does not own 80 per cent of land affected at Byrrill Creek. At the very least, a third of the land inundated by a 36,000ml dam is owned by Peter Van Lieshout, with a further five property owners directly inundated bringing the total to approx 93 ha and National Parks owning a further 21ha. Five other property owners are affected by buffer zones. Furthermore, the council land purchased in 1986 was not worth 'millions' – we paid $780 per ha a few years beforehand.

The Clarrie Hall Dam, in brochures and signs, states 'the dam was designed for a population of 160,000' (in excess of our predicted 2036 population). What happened to this calculation, given reduced water use per person already well documented with our growing population? (260lts per person per day in 2001/02 compared with 201lts per person per day in 2007/08 – TSC Reports.)

One last point about our forefathers' 'vision' for the dam. The early explorers, who travelled by boat up the Tweed, were astounded by the awesome beauty of this forested area. Our forefathers' 'vision' has destroyed 85 per cent of natural forest habitat in the Tweed Shire since 1840.

Joanna Gardner
Byrrill Creek

■ Last Council election the three pro Byrrill Creek dam councillors, Polglase, Youngblutt and Skinner, only received 25.01 per cent of the vote (counting preferences) against the three councillors who voted against the dam, Milne, Holdom and Longland, who received 46.47 per cent of the vote.

Even if we assume all Joan van Lieshout's votes can be added to the pro-dam councillors, at best their total support is then only 36.7 per cent – almost ten per cent lower. Furthermore Cr Skinner, who used his second casting vote as mayor to dam the creek, only received 0.72 of a quota, with 538 preferences.

These three minority-supported pro-dam councillors have gone against both expert council staff advice and the community working group advice with their 25 per cent of the popular vote. Only the ignorant and foolhardy would suggest these three councillors have the majority support from both the experts and the community.

Laurie Ganter
Tweed Heads

■ My wife and I are 85 and we live in Brisbane. We have been visiting Byrrill Creek for 30 years and have seen a lot of changes there over this time. It is a beautiful forested area, rich in wildlife with lovely creeks and water holes where platypus live in abundance. It is so peaceful, a little tranquil refuge from life in the city. We are horrified to hear that a dam is to be built there. It would destroy so much, and we find it difficult to comprehend how the Tweed Shire Council could come to such a decision.

Phil Gardner
Taringa, Qld

■ Mayor Kevin Skinner told NBN News (October 20) that he voted for the Byrrill Creek dam so 'his grandchildren wouldn't have to drink re-cycled water.' As it's conservatively estimated that every molecule of water on earth has passed through a minimum seven sets of kidneys, one wonders where Kevin obtains his drinking supplies. Does the Vatican ship him virgin miracle water, untouched by urethra of any description?

Jeremy Cornford
Kingscliff

■ I was at the meeting, sat in the public gallery, and listened to the pronouncements of the three councillors who voted for this ridiculous outcome. Cr Youngblutt used some dubious arithmetic and wrong-headed science as justification for his vote. Cr Polglase channelled some long-ago 'forefathers' who told him to vote yes. Mayor Skinner agonised over his decision, he said, yet gave no hint of a valid, environmentally-concerned reason for voting yes. Then to break a three/three deadlock, he voted once again for the dam!

We all know that the NSW government is rotten and incompetent. Every resident of Tweed Shire should now have a fair idea of the standard of our local government too.

Bruce McQueen
Mt Burrell

■ As a member of the Community Working Group (CWG) for the Tweed water supply options and a relative newcomer to the Tweed Shire (and one of a moderate political persuasion), I was appalled at the arrogant performance of some of the more extreme pro-development members of council and their colleagues towards the CWG and the wider concerns of the community.

To those councillors who voted for Byrrill Creek as number one option, what was your justification for this decision?

I spent many hours on the CWG on a voluntary basis as the representative for Pottsville and the surrounding coastal area and was prepared to listen to reason, and on behalf of the community to support a sensible rational decision in the shire's best interests. This is not it. So why did I bother in terms of my time and my money to see such a poor outcome for the community? I certainly will not be involved in any further 'community best interest window dressing' committees for the Tweed Shire Council.

Rob Learmonth
Pottsville

■ Owing to lack of space we have had to shorten most of these letters about the dam, omit several and hold letters on other topics for next week

GARDENING GALA EVENT FOR BANGALOW

Bangalow Public School will be staging an interactive and informative 'Garden, Plant and Flower Day' on Saturday October 30 between 8am and 3pm in the school grounds.

There will be plenty of activities for all the community to enjoy and plenty of plants to buy.

Members of the Bangalow Garden Club will be on site to offer free workshops between 9.30am and noon, explaining how to deal with worms, weeds, orchid and heliconia division, and plant propagation.

Club members also plan to share their knowledge with young gardeners by helping them to pot cuttings. A potted plant competition for kids will decide the 'best vegie or herb garden' and 'best potted flowers' in three age categories.

Byron Shire Council will be at the school from 12 noon onwards to demonstrate how to achieve a healthy compost and visitors can enter a raffle to win a compost bin and worm farm donated by Council.

The Bangalow Community Children's Centre will also be in attendance with a stall selling garden related artwork and cards.

Instigator of the event and P&C Vice President, Simon Winfield, says the aim of the day is to share knowledge and bring everyone in the region together.

'There is a wealth of experience in our community on all things "green" and a day like this is the perfect opportunity to learn from each other across the generations,' he said.

'The school children and parents have been busy potting plants in their spare time and we envisage a large selection of plants and cut flowers will be available for sale on the day.

'The Bangalow P&C committee will host a café serving coffees, cake and snacks and we will have a BBQ as well.'

Funds raised on the day will go to Bangalow Public School.

Stokers Siding School's Innovative Kindy Orientation Program

Richard Killion, an exemplary and highly qualified member of the staff of Stokers Siding School continues the school's tradition of "No Tears at Stokers"! Richard welcomes new Kindergarten children into his classroom for a term of socialising, getting to know you fun activities to introduce new children to their class mates and to school life at Stokers School.

Richard's program aims to make starting at "big school" a happy and relaxed time for all. Children join in singing, dancing, games and art and craft, all designed to help them feel welcome. The children mix with and meet this year's kindergarten children, who will be their classmates in 2011.

Mr Killion's Orientation Program's success can be seen in the smooth transition children make from home to school life and in the friendships formed before our "new Kinders" are officially "school kids".

Join us in October, November and December – become part of our Small School, Big Family.

We can't wait to get to know you! Every day is Open Day at Stokers School!

Understanding Your Teenager

Teens are living through a difficult time. They are faced with choices around drugs, alcohol, sex and relationships. For parents it is difficult to know how to respond to the challenging behaviours that teenagers display and to get them safely through adolescence.

The Family Centre is offering a free, four week course for parents on Tuesdays 6.00 – 8.00 pm, November 16 – December 7 @ The Imperial Hotel, Murwillumbah.

To book, call The Family Centre on 07 5524 8711 by November 9.

Paul "Rabbit" Robinson

Born in Murwillumbah and playing the violin since the age of three, he now fiddles for the Round Mountain Girls and is a finalist in two sections of the Golden Fiddle Awards in Tamworth this year.

The band also played four shows at the Woodford

Folk Festival to huge audiences. The album called White Rum is being played on the radio in 5 countries and their first video clip has been released.

Rabbit is now living back in the area at Pottsville Beach, Teaching fiddle and electric violin. He also has an educational DVD called 'Secrets Of The Electric Violinist'.

For more information look at his website at www.secretsofthe.com or call him on 0400 574 309.

Education in Human Values At The Sathya Sai Primary School

At our school we believe that education is not only about promoting academic excellence; education now needs to incorporate values which promote healthy relationships.

Our students participate in a whole school program called Sathya Sai Education in Human Values which assists children in the development of positive and healthy relationships and skills them to remain in a state of choice rather than be reactive.

This is done through explicit teaching of values such as patience, friendliness, tolerance, caring, respect, responsibility, consideration and helpfulness – to name a few!

We believe that the end product of education is character, the most valuable asset a person can have. Our children are the message we send to the future and our human values program encourages students to be conscious human beings.

9 Nullum Street, Murwillumbah. Phone 02 6672 8972.

Cherubs Rainbow Preschool – where children love to learn!

Cherubs Preschool & Early Learning centre is a boutique children's centre providing a traditional preschool program to our 3 to 5 year old children.

Cherubs Rainbow Preschool room offers an educational play based learning program that fosters children's early literacy and numeracy skills, enhances social, emotional and physical development and fosters a sense of well-being and a healthy self esteem in our Cherubs children.

Cherubs Preschool prides itself on building relationships with each child and their family, aiming to evoke a feeling of belonging and enabling our educators to work closely with our families, ensuring the best educational outcomes for their child.

Enrol now for Preschool 2011. Call Jenny on 07 5524 8778.

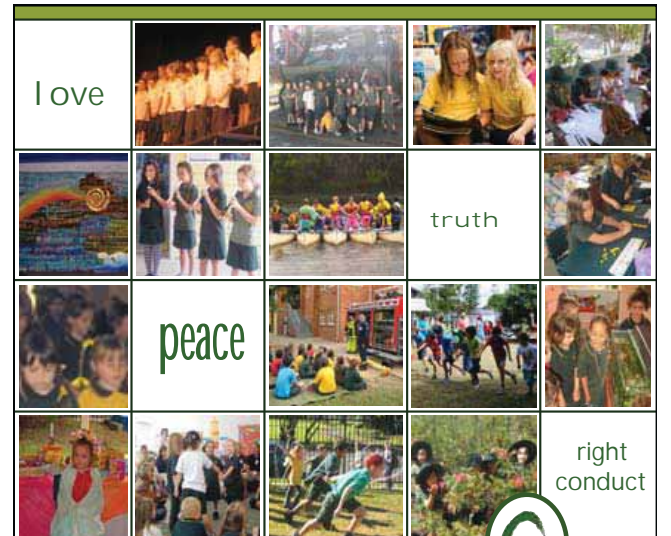

Cudgen Public School

live music

Jungal

This all-female Melbourne trio blended folk, soul and rock to create their own brand of Australian-flavoured indie roots music. Word has been spreading fast about Jungal's energetic live performances and catchy, positive songwriting. Leisha and Jessie Jungalwalla began playing in bands together in their teens and quickly added adopted sister Victoria Beard into the mix. Youngest sister Kimberly is also known to make a guest appearance on trumpet. Earlier this year, Jungal released their debut album, which flaunted their powerful, edgy style. Their politically-charged first single Say It has also received ample radio play.

Get a taste of Jungal's all-female musical flair when they play Sphinx Rock Café at Mt Burrell on Sunday, October 31 at 2pm.

Wolf Mail

A blend of traditional blues with electric, rock and soul Wolf Mail has been described as the missing link between Jimi Hendrix and Stevie Ray Vaughan and the undisputed heavyweight champion of electric blues. Born in Canada and raised in the south of France and California, Mail grew up as somewhat of a travelling nomad. He played his first professional gig at the age of just 14 and was touring Europe by the time he was 17. It is with blues music that Mail paved his way through the music industry. He recorded two independent albums in the mid 90s and has since released three studio albums to critical acclaim. Restless touring have become the basis of Mail's hard work ethic and his live shows are known to be legendary. He plays more than 100 gigs every year and has toured in over 20 countries, including Russia, Morocco and Japan. He is currently making the finishing touches to his book on the music industry What Day Job!

Wolf Mail is performing as part of the Ivory Tavern's Halloween celebrations on Saturday, which get underway at 8pm.

Guriguru

A proud Indigenous man, Gary Kafoa grew up on the banks of the Tweed River and is the son of a local tribal elder. A former professional fisherman, he also has a long history as a local musician. Using a mixture of traditional and modern instrumentation, Gary sings of what was passed down to him by his elders and contemporary issues that affect us all today. The result is a new dimension in Indigenous storytelling. Dr Greg is a veteran of over 40 years on bass with bands of every hue from deep funk to krautrock, and his lifelong interest in ethnic musical forms means he can supply unique groove assistance to the project. Together, they are Guriguru. See the duo perform at the Sheoak Shack on Saturday, October 30 at 7pm.

The Audreys

It's been a hell of a ride since The Audreys first took their trademark alt country roots sound out of the studio and onto stages in 2006. Their two previous albums Between Last Night and Us and When the Flood Comes earned rave reviews and both took out the ARIA for Best Blues and Roots album. Tours of US, Canada, and Europe followed sold out shows in Australia. They have now released their third album Sometimes The Stars. See The Audreys at Curumbin Soundlounge on Thursday, October 28 at 9.10pm.

Cost for members is $15, $20 for visitors and $5 for children. Gold Medal Winners at the Festival of Performing Arts will kickstart the evening's entertainment from 6.30pm. Bookings are essential and can be made at 02 6672 1697 or www.greenhillsontweed.com.

Chris Pickering

Chris Pickering's unique style and sound can only be called his own. His songs boast catchy melodies and sparkling arrangements, peppered with clever, contemporary and thought-provoking poetry that offer an insight into his imagination. After moving to Nashville earlier this year he performed to a sell-out crowd at California's famed nightclub Viper Room. He plays Unplugged in the Basement at the Gold Coast Arts Centre on Thursday, October 28 at 9.15pm.

The Lucky Wonders

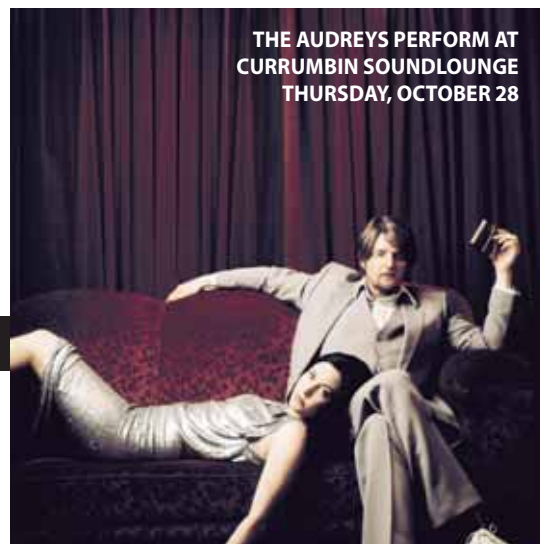

The Lucky Wonders' acoustic style reflects influences from folk, pop and blues, inspired by artists such as The Waifs, Old Man River and Angus and Julia Stone. It is insightful music that makes you feel good. The intimacy of the songwriting has struck a chord with music lovers. Small wonder then the Byron Bay outfit topped Triple J Unearthed Roots chart with their debut single Happy Pill. See them at Curumbin Soundlounge on Friday, October 29 at 9.30pm.

Bill Jacobi

Bill Jacobi uses an array of foot percussion, as well as open-tuned and lap-slide guitars that snake and rattle around songs both evocative and passionate. Jacobi attributes his love of roots and folk music to his early years growing up in the southern US. A regular on the Tweed music scene Jacobi combines an eclectic mix of roots-rock, hillbilly-funk and alternative country. He plays the Riverview Hotel,

BECAUSE THE NIGHT BELONGS TO US

It took me until I was in my forties to sleep without fear.

Growing up with a single mum with no man in the house it was part of my feminine conditioning: be on alert because at any time some random bloke could climb through the window and force himself on you. There are times now where I'd jokingly say, fuck it, leave the window open.

But it's no joke. Those long summer nights with all the windows locked tight and the moths buzzing the toilet light was where I first learnt what it's like to live with fear. As I sweated in my bed in the nauseating Queensland heat, my mother and I lay waiting for footsteps that never came. Although we did find a pair of Neville Wesling's size 11 thongs in the front yard one morning after he'd got lost on the way home from the pub.

That deep insecurity about my safety has remained with me for years. When I walk to my car after a gig I hold the keys between my fingers so that if I'm grabbed suddenly I can jab someone in the eye. (I must apologise to the lady who ran after me to return the phone I'd left on the bar last weekend, but apparently she's got most of her sight back now.) For years I dreamt of being pursued by predators. It was always a faceless male who'd chase me, try to break into my house, hide under my bed, in the backseat of my car. The dreams only stopped when one night I turned on my knife wielding attacker, wrestled him for his knife and decapitated him. It was horrific, but in the landscape of dream symbolism I had faced my own darkness and taken control. I had stopped being a victim.

When it comes to this fear of sexual or physical violation I am not alone. Most women have always accepted that this is the curse of being born penis impaired. I was raped twice as a young woman. Once by a 'boyfriend' and once by the friend of a friend. At 14 I was picked up on the way to a bus stop by a group of men who offered me a lift to the depot, then drove me to a park and tried to get me to perform oral sex. I screamed so loudly they drove me back to the bus. I think. The rest of that day is a complete blank.

In my twenties I experienced domestic violence. On numerous occasions I sported a black eye, a busted lip and bruised arms. And that's just me. One woman. And I'm a little more confident and self assured than most. So what are the rest of our stories? As a mother of four daughters it frightens me we hand our girls a legacy of sexual assault and violence. Just recently when with family in Sydney in Vaucluse, my 15 year old daughter was confronted in broad daylight by a man who asked to touch her breasts. Just a few weeks ago she and her girlfriend were swimming at Belongil when they noticed an 'old man' (must have been about 35 or so) masturbating in the sand dunes. They reported him to the police but were told that it happens all the time and there wasn't anything they could do about it. So apparently in Byron Bay it's completely fine to jerk off in public around kids. It's easier to spot an ejaculating penis in the dunes then it is to catch the sight of a breaching whale. We should just put up with it.

None of this is unusual. Most women have felt threatened or intimidated at some time in their life. We are scared to walk alone. We won't sleep with our doors open. We know that some footballers don't just play team sport on the field. We expect to be sexually harassed occasionally. Young women know that it's quite likely that they may have their drink spiked and end up in a sexual situation that they weren't quite prepared for. They know that there could be photos circulating on some social network.

Any what probably frightens us most of all is that any one of us could have been Diane Brimble. One night a year women are asked to come together, young and old, black and white, fat and thin, rich and poor to walk in solidarity and demand the right to live without fear and the reality of rape and violence. When we march for Reclaim the Night, we as women demand the right to use public space without fear. This is not just a civil liberty, it is a basic human right. I ask you all, my sweet lovely sisters, to join us this year in Byron Bay at the Peace Pole at 4.30pm. The blokes can show their solidarity by cheering on from the side or at the back of the march.

Murwillumbah at 2pm and the Chinderah Tavern on Saturday, October 30 at 3pm.

Nitestar

Nitestar lead a pre-Halloween theme party at the Australian Hotel, Murwillumbah this Friday. There will be prizes for the best dressed, so come dressed as silly or as spooky as you want. Enjoy an early trick and treat, with fun, rock and roll entertainment by Nitestar. Celebrations kick off at 8pm.

Shadow Thieves

Shadow Thieves perform a fusion of rock, indie, progressive rock, roots, funk and atmospheric music. The band consists of four key members: Matt Buckley, Jack Letizia, Joey Green and Cass Wilson. The project began as ENACIO in early 2006 after performances with other local Gold Coast bands. Word soon spread and the band went on to perform shows with Spiderbait, The Angels (Angel City), Shihad, You Am I, Grinspoon and a list of other great bands. They were later discovered by Blue Tongue Management, and were included in the 2009 Big Day Out, Loud Fest and Caxton Street festivals. Discovering new inspiration, the band made some serious changes and became known as the Shadow Thieves. They have continued to develop their new desired sound and released their debut album Space Between in August. The Shadow Thieves perform at Swell Tavern, Burleigh on Friday, October 29.

THE MURWILLUMBAH THEATRE COMPANY'S ANNUAL PANTOMIME FANTASTIC MR FOX IS ON VARIOUS TIMES THIS WEEKEND AT THE MURWILLUMBAH CIVIC CENTRE

JUNGAL AT SPHINX ROCK CAFE
SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31

Originally from Southport, Rack began performing at the age of six, playing to charmed audiences with his late dad, Billy Rack, a multi-talented jazz musician. This year has seen the three-piece chalk up performances at Byron Bluesfest, Ipswich Festival, Cairns Blues Festival and Blues on Broadbeach amongst others. See the band at Greenmount Surf Club, Coolangatta on Friday, October 29 at 9.30pm.

Dan Hannaford

Dan Hannaford combines rootsy acoustic guitars, bottleneck slide, jaw harp and a backyard built stomp to create a unique coastal country sound. The laid back Currumbin muso, who first began performing at his father's ministry in Ballina, has built up a strong profile in the region as in an in-demand pub act. He performs at Nerang RSL on Thursday, October 28 at 8pm and Pottsville Beach Sports Club on Sunday, October 31 at 4pm.

Fantastic Mr Fox

Building on the success of last year's pantomime, James and the Giant Peach, this year Murwillumbah Theatre Company's annual pantomime will be based on another Roald Dahl children's classic, the much-loved Fantastic Mr Fox.

This production will be an amazingly colourful feast for the eyes with wonderful costumes, cleverly inventive sets, exciting music and a talented cast ranging in age from 6 to 70.

The staging of Fantastic Mr Fox has presented the set building crew and the costume makers with some real challenges. The play tells the story of the mean and ugly farmers Boggis, Bunce and Bean, who, tired of sharing their chickens, try to starve Mr Fox and his family out of their hole. Meanwhile, the Fox family, assisted by a loyal animal fraternity, including badgers, rabbits, moles and weasels, manage to dig their way ahead into the hidden food storehouses and secret cider cellar, outwitting the terrible trio of farmers and ensuring a sumptuous feast for Mr Fox's entire family and all his friends. There will be four public performances of the production at Murwillumbah Civic Centre. The show opens on Sunday, October 31 at 2 pm and other performances follow on November 6 and 7 at 7.30pm. There will also be two special schools performances this Friday and November 5 at 10am.

Tickets are $12 for adults and $5 for children and are available from Murwillumbah Music Shop (02 6672 5404) or at the door. For more information please contact Rosemary on 02 6672 1520 or email rosieha@exemail.com.au.

Pins and Needles

Fun abounds in Tweed Theatre Company's adult Aussie comedy Pins and Needles. This lively, split-set comedy is centred around a hairdressing salon, tattoo parlour and the colourful characters who work within. Written by local identity Lori Stewart and directed by Terranora teacher Leonie Richards, the plot delivers many twists and turns, culminating in quite a few last minute surprises. Pins and Needles is on at Tweed Heads Civic Centre on October 29 and 30 at 8pm, with a matinee performance on October 31 at 3pm. Tickets cost $15 for adults and $12 for concessions and tables of 10 or more. Part proceeds go to Camp Quality. Bookings and tickets from Cafe Lazumba, Bay Street, Tweed Heads or call 07 5536 1811.

Television Guide

1. Two Chinese boy students are sent to the countryside for re-education and discover a beautiful girl and a hidden cache of Western novels. That's Balzac And The Little Chinese Seamstress (SBS2, Friday, 9.30pm), which reminds us that books can be revolutionary.

2. Nothing revolutionary about 27 Dresses (TEN, Saturday, 6.30pm), a rom-com through which the luminous Katherine Heigl waltzes as the bridesmaid yearning to be the bride.

3. ABC2's program The Fallen Vampire (Sunday, 7.30pm) looks at the troubled life of B-grade legend Béla Lugosi. Horror sucks.

WITH LILITH

This week's Sun joins Mercury, Mars and Venus in the sign of power and passion for an intense, no holds barred depth-dive into life's mysteries and contradictions...

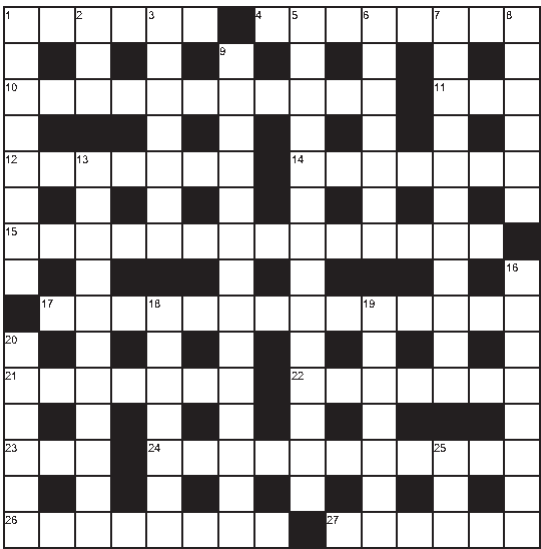

ARIES: This week asks you to be firm but not forceful, adaptable without being indulgent, determined rather than overbearing, strong and simultaneously sensitive. Accept the way things are rather than getting defensive or plotting payback – real power is having control over your own impulses. TAURUS: This week's strong desire nature is useful for either reinventing yourself or else resurrecting a part of you that hasn't seen daylight for a long time – perhaps never. Stay open to new people, methods and ideas and your natural practicality will be a reliable guide. GEMINI: This week's Venus isn't likely to have a headache, although she might give you one. You might want to consider this: the intellect's like a car driving 100 km/h, while intuition's more like a Lear jet. So stop. Feel. Listen to what your psychic internet's telling you. CANCER: 'Someone I loved once gave me a box of darkness. It took me years to understand that this, too, was a gift' wrote poet Mary Oliver in The Uses of Sorrow. Keep your own internal intelligence tuned to a similar degree of understanding this week. LEO: While this week gives your willpower extra clout, it could also engender a case of the inflexibles. Physical stretching, mental yoga, emotional pliability and spiritual suppleness will all make this week less of a head butting clash, more a successful joint force operation. VIRGO: If partners aren't exactly meeting your expectations, well do they ever? According to Buddhist nun Adrienne Howley, the coupling of assumption with expectation is a potent partnership for disaster. You can resist or surrender this week, though as always what you resist will tend to persist... LIBRA: While conciliation's a prime Libran motivator sometimes you just have to stand up for what's right. And as this week's cosmic spotlight shines beneath surface appearances, your reward for this will be finding something you lost, or possibly never even recognised – your own buried treasure. SCORPIO: Happy birthday Scorps as the Sun joins Mercury, Mars and Venus all in taut tail corner for your month of self discovery! This river deep, mountain high week is just the kind you like, and its karmic task is achieving your goals without using the sting. SAGITTARIUS: This week calls for the internal contemplation and reflection all Saggies need to keep their arrow aimed on target. And while you're in the mood for the truth this week others mightn't be willing or able to comply, so the Virgo quote above about expectations applies. CAPRICORN: If a fit of Saturnian gloom, doom and pessimism hits, don't isolate – reach out, because worry shared is worry halved. A good people fix is the best medicine for putting Commander Capricorn back in the driving seat again for others to follow your managerial lead. AQUARIUS: Secrets will surface this week, but be circumspect about passing on private information because indiscretions won't be quickly forgiven. A radical realisation could have you wanting to revise your life and do things differently – the challenge will be holding this vision after that flash passes. PISCES: If your feelings turn moody and steamy this week, listen to what they're telling you but don't let them control your moves. The present planetary package could heal family feuds or fractured friendships, so avoid destructive indulgences and tune into the lurve flow all around you.

Last week's solution

CHESS by Ian Rogers

Play at Seagulls Club, Thurs 6-10pm

One of the most anticipated tournaments of the year began in Nanjing, China, last week.

The Pearl Spring tournament features the three biggest draw-cards in world chess – world number one Magnus Carlsen, World Champion Viswanathan Anand and losing world title challenger Veselin Topalov – competing together in a serious tournament for the first time in more than two years.

Three other top class Grand-masters – Vugar Gashimov, Etienne Bacrot and home favourite Wang Yue – will also take part.

For the second time this month, chess fans in Australia have found themselves in a favourable time zone; after the Olympiad in Siberia, the Nanjing Grand Slam tournament can also be viewed live on the net each evening.

Nanjing 2010

White: M Carlsen

Black: E Bacrot

Opening: Scotch Game

1.e4 e5 2.Nf3 Nc6 3.d4 exd4 4.Nxd4 Bc5 5.Nb3 Bb6 6.Nc3 Nf6 7.Qe2!?

theory of White's artificial-looking system is still developing, but 7...d6 looks more flexible. 8.Bg5 h6 9.Bh4 a5 10.a4 Nd4 11.Qd3 Nxb3 12.cxb3 Re8 13.0-0 d6 14.Qc2 Bd7? Criticised by Carlsen after the game; 14...c6 was stronger. 15.Bc4 Be6 16.Rhe1! Qe7 17.e5! dxe5 18.Rxe5 Qf8 Already rather desperate, but 19.Nd5! was a powerful threat. 19.Bxf6 gxf6 20.Re2 Qg7 21.Bxe6 Rxe6 22.Rxe6 fxe6 23.Rd3! Simple chess – with just a handful of pieces, Carlsen launches a devastating attack. 23... Kh8 24.Rg3 Qh7 25.Qd2! Bc5 26.Ne4! Be7 26...Qxe4 loses to 27.Qxh6+ Qh7 28.Qxf6+ 27.Rh3 Kg7 Now White wins brilliantly but after 27...Kg8 28.Qf4 f5 29.Rxh6 Qg7 30.Rh3! Black's cause is hopeless. 28.Qd7 Kf7 (See diagram) 29.Ng5+!! A great idea, though the computer-assisted spectators pointed out that 29.Nxf6! was equally efficient. 29...fxg5 30.Rf3+ Kg8 31.Qxe6+ Kh8 32.Rf7 Bd6 33.Rxh7+ Kxh7 34.Qf7+ Kh8 35.g3 Ra6 36.Kb1 Bb4 37.f4 gxf4 38.gxf4 1-0

White to play and win

A sad end for a great lizard

David Solano.

Saturday afternoon I did something you are not supposed to do and that is catch a very big fish on very light gear.

I was using Atomic Hardz in the 'ghost gill' colour and Gulp Shrimps in the new 'penny' and 'nuclear chicken' colours The rod is a GLX G-Loomis with a Diawa Sol 2000 reel.

Now here's the interesting stuff. The reel was spooled with 6lb Diawa PE braid, topped with two metres of 4lb Sunline fluoro carbon leader.

I'd been out for a few hours and was returning home and decided to have a couple of casts with the atomic into the run off of this nice basin. First cast something big grabbed it and screamed out towards the middle of the river. 'Cool', I thought. 'No snags out there so if I do this right, I gotta.'

Whatever it was, it was going nuts. I got it close to the kayak four times. I could see my leader but not the fish and each time it would go racing off. 'What have I got?' I wondered. On the fifth attempt I finally saw what it was: a monster 88cm flathead. Unfortunately for the fish it was bleeding badly from the gills; obviously the lure had done some damage.

Now it gets strange – the fish was too big for my net with only its head able to fit. When I attempted to net it, it gilled me (cut the line), but instead of swimming away it sat still so I put its head into the net and gently lifted it into the yak, then all hell broke loose. Its tail sent my gear flying all over the place with a spool of leader line landing two metres up a mangrove. It was then that the fish died.

I wouldn't normally ever keep a big breeder, but I wasn't going to throw it back. It reminded me of the episode of The Simpsons where Homer eats his pet lobster 'Clinky'.

That's just what I felt like.

Fluoro carbon leader is used at the end of braid as it's invisible and softer. It gives you a lot of feel but with flathead this size maybe 12lb is safer.

Sports Ed: David was so saddened by the death of this lovely creature that he couldn't bring himself to eat it and he gave it away to a mate.

■ If you have any fishing news you would like to share with David, phone 0415 747 969.

District Shield and Diggers Day success

TBDWBA District Shield is played between the ten clubs in the district. The result was a repetition of the 2009 competition with Murwillumbah (5 wins, Aggregate 92) retaining the Shield and Pottsville (4 wins, Aggregate 106) being the runners-up. Winners of the District Shield for Murwillumbah WBA pictured above: Mary Chisholm, Marlene Durrrough, Joan Highfield, Daphne Edwards, Lil Bland, Caroline Caine, Joan Lawson and Eileen Colefax.

The Pottsville RSL 'Diggers Day' annual bowls event was a great success with a flag raising ceremony and dedication of plaques to the Anzac Green and the RSL Green. Pictured below on the day are Merv Mason, John Hawes, Clive Cramb, Darren Townsend, Patron Phil Bonner, Ray Faulder, Peter Field and Greg Sawtell.

Your chance to live in Packer's Palace

We often hear of these famous people jetting around the globe to their million dollar properties with private airstrips and helipads and picture ourselves doing the same.

For most of us, it's a dream we will never realise; however, there is now a real opportunity for you to live a lifestyle of the rich and famous, providing you have the bank balance.

New to the property market is 'Larundel', a magnificent 2,500 acre masterpiece situated just 75 minute's drive from Melbourne.

The former Victorian abode of media mogul James Packer, Larundel comes complete with its own helipad and hangar situated at Docklands which, if you have a helicopter handy, will cut your Melbourne trip by around 55 minutes!

Currently on the market with Abercromby's Real Estate, Larundel features an elegant 90 square mansion on prime productive land. A working sheep station that can be traced back to the mid 1800s, Larundel's landmark bluestone and polychrome brick homestead is surrounded by five acres of sublime formal gardens designed by world renowned landscaper Paul Bangay.

The home features a 4000 bottle wine cellar, billiard room, gentleman's study, nine bedrooms, the long gallery and a conservatory to accompany the nine bedrooms and six bathrooms.

The homestead's grand charisma is matched by that of the guest quarters dubbed 'The Stables'. The Stables is a stand-alone self-contained four bedroom, three bathroom residence incorporating its own library, commercial quality kitchen, lounge area and 30 seat formal dining room.

The five acre formal garden integrates with parklands, lake and manicured rolling lawns to form 40 hectares of tranquillity. A quaint gardener's cottage is surrounded by a charming croquet lawn, championship north-south tennis court and polo field. The lake is a real standout at Larundel, featuring two islands, a rotunda, boardwalk and jetty.

Ok, so you have the run down, now for the (pardon the pun) million dollar question! How much would you expect to pay?

Prestigious Larundel is currently on the market for a mere $14 million (recently reduced from $20 million). If you're like me and don't have that kind of cash rolling around in the console of your car and want to call this place 'home sweet home' grab a Tattsлото ticket and cross your fingers!

Housing finance reflects a flat market

Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) Housing Finance figures for August show, in trend terms, a slight increase of 0.3 per cent in the number of finance commitments for owner occupied homes compared to the previous month.

"In trend terms, increases were recorded in New South Wales, South Australia, Victoria and Tasmania, with falls in all other states and territories," said Real Estate Institute of Australia (REIA) President, Mr David Airey.

The number of commitments for the purchase of established dwellings rose by 0.6 per cent in trend terms. In seasonally adjusted terms, the number of commitments for established housing increased 1.4 per cent.

The number of first home buyers, as a percentage of total owner occupied housing commitments, fell from 15.9 per cent in July to 15.5 per cent in August – well below the long-run national average of 20.1 per cent and dramatically down from the 27.1 per cent level a little more than a year ago. In trend terms, the value of investment housing commitments fell by 1.3 per cent compared to the previous month, following a fall of 1.2 per cent in July. On a seasonally adjusted basis, there was a 3.9 per cent decrease in August 2010.

"Investment housing had been the bright spark of housing finance earlier this year, however this is no longer the case," said Mr Airey.

"We are seeing the cumulative effect of six increases in official rates between October last year and May this year and concerns about further increases in the months ahead, particularly from first home buyers and investors," he continued.

"The message for the Reserve Bank is clear, the latest finance commitments confirm a flat housing sector with no further tightening of monetary policy necessary," concluded Mr Airey.

Hard to believe, but the Gold Coast City is way ahead of the Tweed in terms of environmental awareness and makes Tweed Council look well past its use by date. The mostly urban council across the border has endorsed a 10-year management plan aimed at improving highly valued conservation areas in the increasingly congested neck of the woods around the Coomera and Nerang Rivers. The reserves, around 1,200-acres, feature 15 different remnant vegetation communities and are home to 20 threatened animal species, including koalas, the sooty owl and glossy black cockatoo. The plan calls for $5.4 million worth of improvement works over 10 years. The Tweed has no tree protection of any meaningful sort, prefers to spend its money on useless motor rallies and doomed plans for dams, has no big budget for its sustainability programs and steers clear of prosecuting developers who brazenly chop down protected vegetation.

Why are we not surprised to read that the Richmond River at Ballina has been polluted to death by agrochemicals washed off farming properties in the catchment area. A meeting at Lennox Head last week was told that a massive oyster population that once thrived in the river, as well as fish and other aquatic species, had been wiped out by chemicals such as fertilisers and pesticides, which are also harmful to humans. The area was once known as Boolinah, or place of many oysters, the meeting was told. An upsurge in intensive agriculture in the 70s is blamed, but on the bright side the river can apparently recover and improve if measures such as paying cane farmers to create wetland areas and paying macadamia growers to use other environmentally friendly methods to control pests are adopted.

Residents able to see over the top of barriers screening the ongoing beautification of the Jack Evans Boat Harbour say they are horrified by pylons being driven into the harbour in an area designated for swimmers.
‘It looks like a slipway, an industrial port, I thought we were getting a beach, the harbour is hideous, the plans we were shown didn’t look like this mess,’ are some of the comments harbour watchdog Stephanie Deane (who provided this picture) says she’s collected from irked locals in recent days.
But council staff overseeing the contractor’s efforts in the harbour’s northwest corner said sheet piles had been driven into the harbour to create a temporary dam to allow beach construction to begin. ‘They will be removed when the work is finished,’ said a spokesman.

‘Residents shouldn’t be alarmed by the appearances during construction as the final outcome will be the same as the design plans viewed by the public,’ the spokesman said. ‘The aim is to provide a safe swimming area for the public, with headlands, rock pools and an all access path to the water.’
Ms Deane said residents really wanted a usable park with pathways, lights, barbecues, toilets, shade and a play area for the kids.

The shock decision last week to dam Byrrill Creek has raised questions about the casting vote after the new mayor used it (giving him two votes) when the tally was tied at 3-3 (Cr Joan van Lieshout having declared a conflict of interest and abstaining). The convention in the past has been that the mayor should use his casting vote to maintain the status quo or at least support the staff’s recommendations, rather than push through something completely different.
Readers attending to the thoughts of Chairman Skinner (see page 2) will have noted this statement: ‘So far the vast majority of calls I’ve had favour the Byrrill Creek option.’ Never one to doubt the word of a Tweed Shire mayor, Back- burner is nonetheless somewhat perplexed. Who are these mysterious callers? Is this the silent majority councillors always invoke when they do something stupid? At last they are becoming vocal; we look forward to seeing them in council meetings and letters columns.

So we have Tweed Council wanting to ‘consult’ the community on its draft Tweed Community Strategic Plan (the new Tweed ‘vision’) which is on display for comment until November 8 (go to www.our-tweedvision.com.au – an audio version of the plan is also available to download). Residents are urged to take part in the online discussion forum and fill out an online survey. Council says it wants you to ‘speak up and have your say about the type of economy, the type of natural and built environments, the type of community and the type of leadership you want for the Tweed.’

Well, residents tried that with the water supply options issue and were simply ignored by our current type of leadership, one of whom, Cr Phil Youngblutt, is on the record as saying we’re ‘morons’. Why on earth did this under-performing councillor take part in the community working group deliberations when all along he was telling other group members that dams were the only way to secure water supply. He didn’t even bother taking part in the field trips to the dam site areas with the group, or the meetings which focused on the environmental issues, or the meetings looking into social impacts of the water supply.

Grail Quest

Introduction to Grail Quest (an 8-week course) which is the opening term of the two year part-time foundation course.

GRAIL QUEST offers a modern form of adult education based on the work of Rudolf Steiner. Through a deepened understanding of the inner workings of the world and ourselves, inner development and soul transformation are brought about. This in turn leads to an enhanced capacity to transform the outer world.
The course consists of lectures, discussions and workshops which are expanded through artistic experiences in music, painting, sculpture, story telling, speech, drama, craft and the new art of eurythmy. No previous artistic experience is necessary. The emphasis of the course is away from competition and is focused on individual growth. The course aims to teach through the heart, hand and mind and to bring our efforts to fruition through love of the deed. GRAIL QUEST is also the prerequisite for the Steiner Teacher Training programme.

...a journey into the Spiritual Science of Rudolf Steiner...

Some of the themes explored in the course are:

The Quest for Meaning. The Elements. The Temperaments. Sacred Geometry. The Origins of the Earth & Humanity. The Evolution of Consciousness. Christology. Mystery Schools & Mystery Centres. The Birth of Modern Consciousness in the Renaissance. The Search for the Holy Grail. Life Phases: an Exploration of Biography.
